Quincy 2000 Hires Consultant Firm To Design Directional Signage System For Center

A contract has been awarded to a Watertown consultant firm to design a "significantly improved" directional signage system for Quincy Center, Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino announced Tuesday.

The firm, Sasaki Associates, is nationally recognized for excellence in urban design and planning projects, Mannarino said.

"Their environmental graphic designers are highly experienced in the planning, design, and implementation of directional signage systems," Mannarino said.

Sasaki Associates was hired by Quincy 2000 last year to prepare the Quincy Center Action Plan. In November, the Quincy 2000 Corporation presented the action plan to the City Council where it was endorsed unanimously.

One of the plan's key recommendations is creation of an improved system of directional and educational signage that will help lead travelers to and around Quincy Center.

"With the construction of the Concourse Roadway Project connecting Burgin Parkway to Hancock Street scheduled to begin this year, a signage program has become a top priority for Quincy Center. I am very pleased that The Quincy 2000 Corporation is able to move forward with a wayfinding signage program that will significantly improve the accessibility and identity of Quincy Center," Mannarino said.

"The signage system conceptual design work is scheduled to start immediately and construction to begin this fall.

Bruce Arons, Quincy Center development coordinator, will serve as project coordinator for this component of the Quincy Center action plan.

ST. PATRICK'S CELEBRATION sponsored by The Quincy Partnership was held at the Quincy Lodge of Elks. Among those in attendance were, from left, City Clerk Joseph Shea, Ed Keohane of the Keohane Funeral Home, Partnership chairman; Thomas Koch, executive director of the Quincy Parks, Forestry and Cemetery Department; Bob Galligan of Best Western/Adams Inn and comedian Paul O'Donnell.

$9,000 Appropriated For Trash Receptacles

The City Council appropriated $9,000 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account to the Department of Public Works Monday night for the purchase of new trash receptacles to be placed in various parts of the city.

DPW Operations Manager Lester Gerry said his department is trying to completely do away with the older, 55-gallon trash drums that have been eliminated in Quincy Center but are still used in some parts of Quincy.

Gerry noted that the new receptacles are more aesthetically pleasing than the older drums and also have lids that will prevent trash from blowing out of the containers. In addition, because they only hold about 38 gallons, they are easier for city workers to handle.

Gerry said the $9,000 appropriation, which was necessary because the DPW had not budgeted for the expenditure, will purchase about 12 to 15 new receptacles.

placed at a disadvantage while older, more influential council members will have the inside track to the presidency. He also said, although there is no guarantee a councillor will be re-elected to a second two-year term, that only a blatant abuse of power will prevent someone's re-election.

After the meeting, Kolson, who provided the swing vote that broke a 4-4 deadlock and could now serve a second two-year term, said he would have supported the change even if he were not council president.

"I would have voted for it anyway," he said. "I think two terms give you continuity in what you're trying to do. It helps you get things accomplished."

Kolson is currently serving his second year as president of the council.

"This is the people's house," he said. "It should be elevated to its proper standards."

Councillor Paul Harold agreed.

"It's a project that's really been needed for a long time," he said.

Harold did express some concern, however, that the plan as presented could cause problems with the acoustics in the chambers. Sheskey said he will look into the matter and address the council again before the work begins.

THE GREENING OF AMERICA'S HIGHWAYS

As the saying goes, "nothing lasts forever." Now the same may be said of car color, as car buyers have made their top choice during the past year. With green gaining the top spot in color preference for the first time in over two decades, there is a decided trend toward lighter, brighter colors in automobiles. For a few years now, color prognosticators have been indicating that the average person's increased concern for recycling, organic greenery and healthy living (issues which fall under the heading "greening of America") would be reflected in a preference for the color green. They were right. From here, color experts predict that brown shades as tan and gold. As always, white and black will remain among the favorites. And, vehicles who is to tell sports car enthusiasts that red is anywhere but on track? HINT: White remained the preferred color among van and truck buyers in the year past, with green running as the number two choice among truck buyers.

Over 700 Attend 45th Anniversary Dinner

'Father Bill' Tribute Raises Over $50,

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Fr. William McCarthy got "top billing" at a special celebration in honor of the 45th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

But without tremendous dedication and commitment of a compassionate and caring "supporting cast," Quincy's beloved Fr. Bill said his pastoral accomplishments, notably the Quincy homeless shelter which bears his name, would not have been possible.

"In establishing Fr. Bill's Place, I had a lot of help and a lot of that help is here tonight because without your help and support, this place couldn't be established," Fr. McCarthy told the more than 700 guests who attended the celebratory banquet in his honor last Wednesday at Lantana's, Randolph.

"Everything which I have asked for, you have been there to support me and give of yourselves."

The banquet was a prime example of that commitment. The dinner and event program book together raised more than $50,000. Proceeds will go toward the renovation and expansion of Fr. Bill's Place and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services.

After head table guests praised Fr. McCarthy's spiritual guidance, the guest of honor acknowledged the assistance of some very close friends and associates.

First, he singled out shelter Executive Director Joseph Finn and the staff for their assistance and cooperation since becoming the shelter's community relations officer a year and a half ago.

Then he thanked Mayor James Sheets for supporting the expansion and renovation of the shelter located at 38 Broad St.

"This is another milestone for Fr. Bill's Place," Fr. McCarthy said referring to the project's groundbreaking held on Monday. The 2,540-square-foot addition will allow the shelter to expand its services to those in need.

The project calls for relocating the shelter's administrative offices from 1120 Hancock St. to 38 Broad St., developing seven "wet" beds for those under the influence of alcohol, expanding eight beds for women and providing more space for case managers and clinicians.

Fr. McCarthy also acknowledged Jack McDonald of the Common Market who catered a birthday party for Fr. Bill last December at no cost to the shelter as a fundraiser for the project. That event raised $7,000.

"Only true happiness comes from squandering ourselves in a purpose," Fr. McCarthy said. "We try to squander ourselves in Fr. Bill's Place."

"When we look at what we want and then compare that with what we have, we shall be unhappy. When we think of what we deserve, then of what we have, we certainly thank God."

"I thank God for each and everyone of you here this evening. May God bless you."

Fr. McCarthy was born Dec. 9, 1926 in Haverhill, MA. His home parish was Sacred Heart in Bradford, MA.

He attended Peabody public schools and graduated from St. James High School in 1945, St. Clement's Hall in 1946 and St. John's Seminary in 1952. He was ordained Jan. 10, 1952 by Richard Cardinal Cushing at Holy Cross Cathedral.

His first assignment was St. Rose's Church in Chelsea and in February 1963 arrived at St. Gregory's Church in Dorchester. Fourteen years later, Fr. McCarthy became pastor of St. John's Church in Quincy. He retired Feb. 1, 1995.

Most Rev. Joseph McGuire, Archbishop of Springfield and former pastor of St. John's, praised his fellow clergyman for his kindness, generosity, sacrifice and love.

"Fr. Bill, in the people of St. John the Baptist, the City of Quincy, and the South Shore area of the Archdiocese of Boston, you are a living legend. You are a priest held in the highest esteem."

"You represent everything that is noble and authentic in the Catholic priesthood. By your acts of charity, you honor us, your fellow priests."

"You inspire and you encourage us to live the words of Jesus. I have come not for the self-righteous but for those who are most in need of my help. What you do for the least of my brothers and sisters, you do for me."

"May this night, this tribute, this outpouring of affection and gratitude be a reminder, an enduring symbol of how much you are respected and how much you are loved," Bishop McGuire said.

Others expressing tribute to Fr. McCarthy included the Most Rev. John McCormick, Mayor James Sheets, House Speaker Tom Finneran, and Finn.

McCormick, the Archbishop of the Archdiocese of Boston, said, "There's probably no person here on the South Shore who's made an impact in the human way on the lives of so many people as much as Fr. Bill has," the crowd clapping in approval.

"He's always struck me as a person who is warm, honest, caring, always welcoming everyone and anyone. . . No one stood outside his interest of care. He typifies for me that he took whatever was weak and made it strong, and he does it through the grace of God because he points us to Christ, he points us to God."

In recognition of his 45 years of spiritual and moral leadership, Sheets and the city's four former living mayors presented Fr. McCarthy with a framed painting of the city "that really loves you," Sheets

FIVE QUINCY MAYORS were among the over 700 honoring Fr. William McCarthy, "Father Bill" on the 45th anniversary of his ordination at a dinner at the Lantana in Randolph last week. Presenting him a painting of Quincy's historical sites are, from the left, former Mayor Frank McCauley, former Mayor Arthur Tobin who was the master of ceremonies, Mayor James Sheets, and former Mayors Joseph LaRaia and Walter Hannon.

MEMBERS OF Fr. William McCarthy's family and friends were among those honoring him at the dinner. From the left are nephews and niece John Perrone, Jr. (foreground), Carl MacDonald, Sr., holding Carl MacDonald, Jr. and Kimberly Tessier; Mary Perrone, Fr. McCarthy's sister; Victoria Damphouse and Linda Baxter, family friends; William Perrone and John Perrone, Sr., nephews and Lucie Perrone, niece.

AMONG ST. JOHN'S parishioners at the dinner in honor of Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor and now senior priest, were, from the far left, Anna and Mary O'Brien, Rita Sullivan, Eleanor Reidy, Mary Boethel, Louise Sullivan, Phyllis and Virginia Rosa, Joan Todd and Mary Corcoran.

The mayor then read the inscription: "On the occasion of the 45th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, in grateful recognition of your spiritual leadership and compassionate ministry to those in need."

The plaque was signed by Mayors Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Francis McCauley and Sheets, all of whom were in attendance. Tobin served as master of ceremonies.

"Fr. McCarthy, when you approached the door to your new life of service 45 years ago," Sheets said,

"you put your hand into the hand of God and that served you better than light and carried you more safely than a known way."

"Today, your hand is still in the hand of God but stretched behind you as far as the eye can see and the mind can imagine with their hands in yours are the needy, and the homeless, as you guide them into the night and toward the light."

In his keynote remarks, Finneran noted life is more than the accumulation of material things. "It is the discharge of spiritual things that one is weighed and one is measured. . .

"Fr. Bill has been much, much more than simply a speaker of words, much much more than somebody who gives a sermon on Sunday no matter how inspirational that sermon is."

"Fr. Bill has been more than a speaker of words. He has been a doer of deeds."

In his praise, Finn said, "So many of us in our life seek to simply carve out some private niche apart from the disturbances of life that confront us in difficult times. Yet Fr. McCarthy has always called us to a higher vision."

"He's called us to recognize and respect the dignity of the human individual."

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH was well-represented at this table. From the far left are Deacon Joseph Papile, Susan Troy, Charlotte Gugliemi, Fr. Peter Quinn, pastor; Fr. Theodore Fortier, William Horne, Grace Steward, Louise Kearns and Patricia Mullin.

A CITY COUNCIL citation for Fr. William McCarthy's work with the homeless and the needy and his 20-year ministry at St. John's Church, is presented to him by Council President Peter Kolson, former Mayor Arthur Tobin and Councillor Daniel Raymond.

CO-PASTORS Rev. Alicia and Dr. Peter Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational Church were among those attending the dinner. With them is Arthur Tobin, who was the master of ceremonies. Behind them at left is retired Bishop Joseph Maguire, former pastor of St. John's Church.

been spent on the effort so far, according to Wheelwright. That includes a $10,000 state grant obtained in 1995 and about $12,000 from the DPW budget, he said.

The pond has been treated annually with bacteria and enzymes that digest dead organic matter in the pond's water and sediment. That process has successfully reduced odor, digested excess nitrates and phosphates, and improved the health and quality of the water, Wheelwright said.

In addition, he noted, wetland plant material has been reintroduced along the side of the pond, creating a natural habitat for birds, fish, frogs, and zoo-plankton which help to reduce the algae and maintain an important strand in the food web of the pond, further enhancing the pond's health.

The fence around the pond also has been repaired and other work performed, Wheelwright said.

There was also, in addition to all of the ecological and physical improvements, the anti-fowl feeding ordinance passed in 1994 that slaps a $50 fine on those who feed waterfowl at the pond.

And all of the work is finally beginning to pay off, according to Wheelwright. For instance, he noted, if someone were to drop something into the pond today, he or she could watch its descent into the water's depths for a considerably longer period of time now that the pond is clearer.

"It's much better," he said.

Wheelwright said the city plans to hold an event "reopening" the pond on May 19 or 21. New signage about the pond's history--part of the educational component of the revitalization plan--will be unveiled during the ceremony.

The work will not end there, however. Wheelwright said the improvement efforts will continue, and the possibility exists that a special escrow account could be established that would result in both the city and local residents contributing financially to the future upkeep of the pond.

DON'T HOLD THAT SNEEZE!

Few things are as utterly frustrating, maddening and unsatisfying as a sneeze that never quite makes it. On the flip side, few things are as hard to squelch as a sneeze on its way out. The question is, should you try to hold sneezes back? The answer is no. Sneezing is the body's natural and necessary way of clearing out irritations. Even if you succeed in squelching a sneeze, the urge to purge will return until the irritation is removed. The real harm in suppressing a sneeze, though, is the potential damage you could do to your inner ears. The average sneeze comes barreling out at about 100 miles per hour, and if you throw up a tight roadblock, by clamping both nose and mouth shut, you could end up forcing that blast up into the Eustachian tube and beyond to the eardrum. The result could be a painfully ruptured ear drum, possible infection, and even hearing loss.

P.S. Sneeze if you need to, but BY ALL MEANS cover your mouth! Sneezing is one of the most potent ways of spreading germs.

If you have a cold which lingers longer than a week or so, it might be time to see your physician to see if something more is happening--such as a sinus infection--that might be amenable to treatment. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to help. We are at 700 Congress St., Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE.

SPRING CAR CARE

'Spring Cleaning' The Car

When you see a few blades of grass sprouting from your floor mat, you know it's time to vacuum out the car. For most of us, the ritual of spring cleaning the car is therapeutic, even cathartic. What a great feeling to slide behind the wheel of a car that's been cleared of a winter's accumulation, inside and out.

Even more important than attention to cosmetics, said the Car Care Council, is spring cleaning in the areas that affect the function of the vehicle.

How long has it been, for example, since you cleaned the battery connections? The corrosion that may have accumulated through the winter, acting as insulation between the battery terminals and their cable clamps, can disable even the best electrical system. Connections should be removed, cleaned and, after reassembly, treated with an anticorrosive product.

Because the air filter is an engine's number one dirt catcher, it eventually loads up with minute particles loads up with minute particles that can restrict the free flow of air to the fuel system. With inadequate air to mix with the fuel, your engine becomes a gas guzzler, eventually causing high exhaust emissions, fouled spark plugs and other problems. Replacing an air filter is a quick, easy and inexpensive spring chore.

Include the cooling system in your spring cleaning. Flush the radiator and install new antifreeze-coolant.

Your engine oil is likely to be more contained in the spring than at any other time of the year because of condensation that can form in cold weather. If it has not been done within the recommended mileage interval, change the oil. Also, says the Car Care Council, the dirtiest oil in your engine is trapped in the oil filter, so you don't want to mix that with the new oil. Always have a new filter installed when you change oil.

Finally, in grandpa's days cleaning the spark plugs was part of the spring Saturday ritual. Not with today's engines. By the time the spark plugs are in marginal condition they should be replaced; you may face a long summer of driving before thinking of spark plugs again.

The Council emphasizes the importance of proper disposal of drain oil and antifreeze. Don't dump on the ground or down the sewer. Check your auto supply store for the location of the nearest disposal site.

For more information on periodic car checks, mail a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. UH, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452. They'll send you an illustrated pamphlet called "How to Find Your Way Under the Hood and Around the Car."

What Do You Know About Car Care?

"All I know is to turn the key to start it."

"Brake fluid? What brake fluid? My husband checks that, I think. Shouldn't he?"

Sound familiar? These excuses typify how some people explain their neglect of preventive maintenance which leads to mechanical trouble.

As a step toward filling that void in public awareness, editors of the Car Care Council have compiled a book of 110 multiple-choice questions and answers on this subject. Their objective: to reduce maintenance neglect in the interests of highway safety, fuel efficiency and reduced vehicle emissions.

To receive the Car Care Quiz Book, send a check or money order for $5.95 to: Car Care Council, Dept. Book, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Brian Fitzgerald: A Real Three-Sport Athlete

By SCOTT GIBBONS

Unlike celebrity two-sport athletes like Bo Jackson and Deion Sanders, Quincy native Brian Fitzgerald doesn't get the press or the money that professional athletes get, even though he's played three sports this year as a senior at Nichols College.

A 1993 graduate of North Quincy High School, Fitzgerald was a backup point guard on the men's basketball team this season.

"It was a last minute decision to play basketball," he said, "but I love the game and decided to give it a shot."

Despite not playing organized basketball since his junior year in high school, Fitzgerald worked his way into the lineup and played substantial minutes, averaging 1.2 points, 1.0 rebounds and 1.4 assists in 13 games. In a game against Eastern Nazarene College, he scored a career-high four points, grabbed three rebounds, dished out three assists and made three steals.

He was a midfielder on the Nichols men's soccer team for three years before deciding to challenge himself a little more this past fall.

"The football coach was looking for help with the kicking game, and I thought it would be a challenge," Fitzgerald said. "I'd always wanted to play football, but it conflicted with soccer when I was growing up."

Fitzgerald talked with the football coach, and before long, he was handling the team's kickoff duties around soccer duties.

Last Sept. 21, Fitzgerald played in an overtime soccer game in the morning against Roger Williams and then hustled over to the football field to play in the second half. Would Deion Sanders do that for nothing?

BRIAN FITZGERALD of Quincy, a senior at Nichols College in Dudley, recently completed his third varsity sport at this year—basketball. A graduate of North Quincy High School, is currently participating in his fourth sport at Nichols: rugby.

"That was a hectic day. I was getting changed in the dugout while all of the soccer team's parents were walking around," he laughed.

Soccer has been Fitzgerald's top sport as a collegian. At 5-10 and 200 pounds, he was one of the top offensive/defensive players in the Commonwealth Coast Conference.

"Fitzzy is one of our better two-way players," said Greg Clements, head soccer coach at Nichols. "You can play him at the sweeper position for defense, or you can move him up to midfield to utilize his offensive skills. His biggest asset is that he's very coachable, and he'll do whatever the team asks him to do to win."

Fitzgerald finished his soccer career this past fall after playing in 74 career games. He scored five goals and assisted on seven others for 17 career points. His best statistical season was in 1995 when he had four goals and two assists for 10 points.

A solid all-around athlete while growing up in Quincy, Fitzgerald played basketball, hockey and tennis, as well as soccer, in high school. When it came time to decide on a college, he settled on Nichols.

"I looked at a few other schools, but Nichols had the right combination of business and computer technology," he said, adding that the school's strongest attribute is the closeness of the student community.

Looking towards the future, Fitzgerald is a marketing major and hopes to find a job in advertising after graduation. With the basketball season over at Nichols, it's now time for his fourth sport of the year: rugby.

"This will be my second year playing rugby, and I enjoy the game a lot," he said.

Don't be surprised if he decides to play something else before he graduates.

Four Quincy Girls Played Vital Roles On Fontbonne Freshwomen Hoop Success

Four Quincy girls helped pace the Fontbonne Academy freshmen basketball team to a perfect 19-0 record this season.

Co-captains Jill Nicholson and Julie Keane of West Quincy, point guard Maria Coughlin of Montclair and center Michelle Maguire of Squantum all played vital roles in the success of this year's freshmen women's squad.

The Ducks' undefeated campaign was the first by the freshmen team in the school's history and was a singular accomplishment among area high schools.

Under coach Bob Norton, the Ducks vanquished each rival, including North Quincy, Notre Dame, Brockton, Milton, Canton, Boston Latin, Arlington Catholic, en route to their undefeated season.

The keys to victory, according to the girls, included a great team chemistry, solid two-way basketball, dedicated parental support, and a wonderful coach in Norton, who elicited the best from every member of the team.

The girls' final drill is to prepare and serve a season-ending thank you spaghetti dinner for their parents and coach. If they can cook meatballs as well as they can handle a basketball, it will be a tasty meal.

Walker On Westfield State Swimming And Diving Team

Nan Walker of Quincy competed on this season's Westfield State College swimming and diving team, which finished with a school-record 9-3 mark.

field State, Walker is a graduate of North Quincy High School.

WCVB-TV Channel 5 sportscaster Mike Lynch hosted the event, which raised more than $35,000 for the Faulkner Breast Centre Research Fund.

Led by first-year coach

Sal Leale, the Panthers finished 12-9-1 overall and captured second place in the ECAC North with an 8-3-1 mark for 16 points. It was the first winning campaign for PSC in three years and this year's team matched the total number of wins of the previous two seasons.

Bobby Muollo Jr. of Quincy was recently named as an early selection to the 1997 S.S.B.C. Seadogs 12 and under division AAU Travel Team Baseball program by the South Shore Baseball Club in Hingham.

Muollo, 12, played for the Seadogs last year in the 11 and under division and is the only Quincy resident on the 12 and under roster.

As a member of the Seadogs, Muollo will compete against other AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) organizations in Massachusetts for the right to appear in the AAU Baseball National Championships in Burnsville, Minn., in August.

"He (Muollo) is a hard-hitting left-hander and real dedicated baseball player," said Pete Nesserella, 12 and under team manager.

McKeon collected a hat trick to pace Quincy to an 8-2 romp over Dedham. Other goal scorers included Mike Giordano, Chris Rooney, Matt Giordano, Jim Fitzpatrick and Jones. The assists were by Evan Harrington (2), Tobin (2), Fasoli (2), McKeon (2), Gio, Fitzpatrick and Ray Marchand.

Despite being short-handed defensively, the A's received tremendous defensive play from Fasoli, Marchand and Jonathan Conso.

Sorrento was solid in net as he has been all season, making spectacular saves to preserve the A's victories.

McKeon's hat trick and Matt Giordani's goal sparked the Quincy Mite A's to a 4-2 triumph over Allston-Brighton.

Sorrento played well in goal while Pat Devlin, Marchand, Fasoli and Andrew Donovan provided sound defense in front of the net.

Forwards Conso, Fitzpatrick and Rooney also turned in solid efforts, as did Harrington, Tobin and Mike Giordano.

The entire team played sound two-way hockey and kept the A-B goalie busy most of the game. Pat Devlin won the assist award for passing to McKeon on his first and third goals. Tobin and Jones provided assists on the other goals.

Rob Mooney assisted on the goal.

The two evenly-matched teams battled back and forth throughout the third period until Conso scored with 2:35 left, diving for the rebound of John Chevalier's shot from the point. The B's held on to win by playing good defense the rest of the game.

Bruce Maggio played well in net for the B's, as did defencemen Bobby Donovan, Steve Romanowski and Matt Alleva.

Also playing solid defense and checking Triboro's forwards throughout the game were Chevalier and Sean Moriarty.

The forward lines consisting of John Walsh, Jimmy Devlin, Scottie Markarian, Mike McGonagle and Mark Tetreault also played well and kept the pressure on Triboro.

Coached by Rick Maz-zocchi and Steve McInnis, the Pee Wee B's next game is in the state tournament this weekend in Hyannis.

Defense, Goaltending Keys To Barter's Bullies Shutout Win

Quincy Youth Hockey's Squirts, aka Barter's Bullies, took to the ice against the red hot Squirts from Wellesley at the MDC Rink in Waltham, known for its freezing temperatures.

The tempo of the game brought the temperature up enough to keep the crowd comfortable, with Quincy shutting out Wellesley, 2-0.

Quincy goalie Ryan (The Beezer) Barter was the man of the hour, stopping numerous blasts and frustrating the Wellesley forwards throughout the game.

Paul McLean put the Bullies on the board with an unassisted breakaway goal in the first period that stirred the crowd into a frenzy. Later in the period, Brendan Linnane charged up ice and lifted it past the Wellesley netminder, assisted by Joey (The Iceman) McManus and Mike Faherty. Forwards Danny Donovan and Tony (Benji) Benigni had a few accurate shots turned away by some outstanding goaltending. Forward Alex Shaffer was denied a goal by the Wellesley defense on a breakaway.

Keith Flaherty had the Bullies' defensive zone under control, turning back everyone who dared to challenge him in the zone. A hard shot to the leg brought Flaherty down in the third only to see him return to his position after an equipment check. Jonathan O'Connor, the Bullies' speedy defenceman, rushed up ice numerous times, skating past everyone in sight.

Chris (The Bulldozer) Sheehan used his stick and skating ability to work the defensive zone as he knows best. Brendan Clifford used his stick like a scoop as he defended the zone, robbing the Wellesley forwards of any opportunity to score on The Beezer.

With four players missing from the game, coach Billy Barter was thrilled with the performance of his team. Sugarmans of Quincy, the team sponsor, was once again well-represented on the ice by the Quincy Squirts.

Squirt A's Tie Up Wellesley, Blank Parkway, 4-0

Led by the non-stop hustling of Steve McGrath, the Quincy Squirt A's battled a strong Wellesley team to a 4-4 tie in the third meeting between the teams this season. Each team had picked up a win in the previous two meetings.

Apparently still asleep, Quincy fell behind 1-0 as the first period ended. McGrath sounded the wake-up call with two goals in his first shift of the second period. McGrath's first goal tied the game as he one-timed the puck after quick passes from linemates Josh Giordani and Ryan Conley. Seconds later, Conley again found McGrath, who unleashed a quick wrist shot to put the A's ahead, 2-1.

Wellesley answered with two goals early in the third before Matt Grazioso notched the equalizer off passes from Liam Powers and Matt Germain. Wellesley again moved ahead by a goal until Giordani's breakaway goal following an excellent pass from Brendan Craig tied the game at 4-4 with four minutes left. Not content with his two goals, McGrath nearly scored the game-winner for a hat trick by being denied on a great save by the Wellesley netminder.

Earlier in the week, Quincy blanked Parkway, 4-0, behind solid netminding from Nick Manning and strong defensive play from Ryan Feldoff, Kyle Carmody, Kevin Richardson and Patrick Maxey. Fellow defenseman Tim Duggan scored a goal and Craig added an assist to his impressive statistics as an offensive defenseman.

Billy Barter opened Quincy's scoring with an assist from Craig. Brendan Conley notched an assist, as did Barter, for two sharp passes that Powers finished with a blistering goal. Grazioso lit the lamp on an unassisted rush the length of the ice. Matt Lavery's outstanding hustle was missed as he recuperated from a bout with the flu.

In other recent action, the Quincy Squirt A's won the state regional playdowns to become the District 3 champions behind a stellar goaltending effort and strong defense.

Manning notched another shutout as Quincy blanked Milton by a 1-0 score. Germain scored Quincy's lone goal late in the third period, one-timing a Lavery pass from behind the Milton net.

Duggan and Feldoff anchored a tenacious defense, leaving Milton few opportunities to remain in front of Quincy's net. Defenders Carmody and Craig kept the pressure on Milton by continually keeping the puck in the Milton zone.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

How young a person are you? Are you a tired 30 year old or a vibrant 70 year old? A wise person once said that age is not measured by years. Nature does not equally distribute energy. Some people are born old and tired while others are going strong at 70...

"Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind; It is the temper of the will; a quality of the imagination; a vigor of the emotions; a predominance of courage over timidity. Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years; people grow old only by deserting their ideals. Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul. Worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear and despair are the long, long years of aging. Whether seventy or sixteen, there is in every being the love of wonder, the sweet amazement at the stars and the star-like things and thoughts, the unfulfilling child-like appetite for what is next, and the joy and the game of life. You are as young as your hope, as old as your despair. So long as your heart receives messages of beauty, cheer, courage, grandeur and power from the earth, from man and from the Infinite, so long you are young."

Concourse Meeting Today

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will hold a special meeting today (Thursday) at 3:15 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The purpose of the meeting is to decide what recommendations CAC members will put forth to Mayor James Sheets and the Quincy Center Concourse Project Task Force for inclusion in the engineering design plans.

The CAC has been meeting for three years to arrive at a public consensus relative to traffic and pedestrian safety regarding the $8.7 million roadway and bridge that is scheduled to be built beginning later this spring.

The CAC has studied the preliminary 25 percent design plans submitted by Quincy officials and Earth Tech engineers and have restated recommendations which were arrived at last year. One recommendation the CAC made in December pertained to crosswalks on the bridge over the Red Line and Old Colony Commuter Rail Tracks.

The CAC favored two crosswalks be included in the bridge design. The planning officials wish to provide a 75 percent design set of plans for the project which will then be voted upon by the mayor and the task force.

Elected to the Massachusetts Senate in 1985, Keating currently chairs the Legislature's Judiciary Committee and is the Senate vice-chairman of the Criminal Justice Committee.

Three Quincy officials who have worked with Keating in his legislative capacity are Bellotti, Morrissey and Harold.

"Whether it's leading the fight against juvenile crime or finding new ways to combat domestic violence, Bill Keating has been one of the strongest public safety advocates in the Legislature," said Bellotti. "His decision to run for District Attorney will provide the Commonwealth and Norfolk County with a great prosecutor."

Morrissey said, "Much of our state's recent progress in the areas of crime prevention and victims' rights can be attributed to Bill Keating's leadership and sponsorship of key pieces of legislation."

"Bill Keating is well-known and well-regarded in the law enforcement community," said Harold, a former state senator. "On criminal justice, he led the effort to try juvenile murderer defendants as adults."

Keating was the first recipient of the JFK Library Foundation's Daniel H. Fenn Award for Political Leadership, and was named 1996 Legislator of the Year by the Massachusetts Coalition of Police. In 1993, his clean water legislation earned him Environmental Legislator of the Year honors from the Environmental League of Massachusetts. He has also been recognized as Legislator of the Year by the Victim Witness Public Policy Board, the Massachusetts Police Association, Massachusetts Bar Association, Massachusetts DARE Officers, and the Massachusetts Veterans' Agents.

Keating presently serves on the Council of State Government's Criminal Justice Board of Directors.

Part-Time Custodian Held On $50,000 Bail On Church Rape Charge

A 34-year-old Quincy man is being held on $50,000 cash bail after pleading innocent last Thursday to raping a South Boston woman in the basement of United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

Ronnie E. Green of 50 Bennington St., a part-time custodian at the church, was ordered held on high bail by Judge Charles Black because he has a criminal record and a history of drug dependency. Green, who is being held in the Norfolk County jail, is due to return to court April 4.

Green pleaded innocent to charges of rape, indecent assault and battery, threatening to commit a crime and two counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

The alleged assault took place about 1:30 a.m. on the day before the arraignment.

Police said Green, after having several drinks with the woman at her friend's South Boston apartment and a Quincy Square bar, took her to the church basement where, after using cocaine with her, he hit her with a metal pipe, kicked her and raped her.

Police said Green then told the woman to get dress and leave.

Church officials provided Green's last name and address to authorities, police said. The victim had told police that she only knew the man's first name.

For Outstanding Community Service Olin Taylor Honored As Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

Olin A. Taylor of Taft St., Quincy, was honored Sunday as the 1996 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year" for his "labor of love" of helping others, especially veterans, ill children and the less fortunate.

The 12th annual award was presented to him at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by city and state officials, clergy, representatives of the numerous organizations he has been active with, family, friends and other invited guests.

Taylor, 79, was selected for the honor from among 40 nominations submitted by Sun readers. The final choice was made by a panel of judges that considered all 40 nominees.

Sun Publisher Henry W. Bosworth presented Taylor with a clock plaque inscribed: "To Olin A. Taylor for outstanding community service, giving freely on his time and talent to his community, church, veterans and those in need."

Bosworth told Taylor the clock "symbolizes all the time you have given to your community and to the many you have helped."

A companion award, a special Page 1 of The Sun, was presented to Taylor by Sun Editor Robert Bosworth. The memento tells the story of Taylor's selection as Citizen of the Year, lists the 11 past recipients, this year's other nominees and the selection panel.

In accepting the award, Taylor said he was very honored and thanked his family, friends, invited guests, the Sun and the selection committee "for sharing this day with me."

"I am very proud to be the Sun Citizen of the Year. It is a great honor for me. There are many people who have helped me do what I do."

"The list is long, so I won't take the time to name each of you, but you know who you are and I greatly appreciate your assistance."

He singled out a few people, including his wife, Frances, who he gave special thanks. He also presented her with a special pen inscribed "the real Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year."

"I want to give thanks to God for giving me the skills and the opportunities to help when and where I've been able. I get more out of the things I do than the people I'm doing it for. That's the God's honest truth," the guest of honor added.

Taylor was nominated for the honor by his daughter, Cynthia Booth, and Christopher Carroll, chairman of the Quincy Conservation Commission of which Olin has been an active member for 20 years.

"I believe he is an asset to our family, his community and the city of Quincy," his daughter said. "I feel he is unique for his efforts over many years." In his nomination, Carroll said, "He is very dedicated to environmental issues and the city of Quincy."

"But," Bosworth said, "they only scratched the surface. There's a lot more to Olin than that."

A disabled veteran of World War II and an active member of the Morrisette Legion Post, Taylor has refurbished, repaired or replaced, at his own expense, more than 2,100 veterans' plaques and markers at Quincy graves. All at his own expense.

A retired senior technical specialist with Polaroid Corporation, he also volunteers his machinist skills

4 Captains To Take Civil Service Examination May 10

Mullen To Retire As Police Chief

Police Chief Francis Mullen will reach mandatory retirement age this summer and four department captains have filed to take the civil service examination to succeed him.

The examination will be held May 10, coincidentally the same date as a state-wide exam for chief is scheduled.

But the examination to determine Mullen's successor will be for the four Quincy captains only.

Mullen, who will be 65 Aug. 24, has been chief nearly seven years and recently marked his 40th year as a career police officer.

A hands-on chief, he spends seven days a week at the station. When asked why he puts in all that time, his reply is usually along this line: "I like to know what's going on."

When reached by The Sun for comment Tuesday, he said:

"I intend to work as diligently as I have for the past 40 years. I am going to keep on working right up to the minute I go out the door."

The four captains who filed applications to take the examination are, in alphabetical order:

•Thomas Frane, in charge of communications.

•Terrence Kelly, night platoon captain.

•Fred Laracy, day platoon

FRANCIS MULLEN

captain.

•Robert Salvaggio, head of the detectives.

Of the four, Laracy is senior in service, followed by Salvaggio, Frane and Kelly.

The department's fifth captain, Donald Riley, inspector of divisions, did not apply to take the examination.

Deadline for applying was March 14.

If only three of the captains had filed, the examination would then have been opened to the rank of lieutenant. There are approximately 17 lieutenants in the Quincy department.

Mullen was appointed chief by Mayor James Sheets Sept. 6, 1990, succeeding the late Francis Finn on his retirement that year.

Mullen, who grew up in West Quincy and is now a Hingham resident, followed in his father's footsteps to a police career. His father, Francis, served 35 years in the Quincy Police Department before him.

Mullen reportedly could ask for an extension at least to the end of 1997 but when asked if he might, he said: "I don't know about that."

To allow for any appeals of grades, it usually takes three to four months before the final eligibility list is established after the examination is taken. Once established, it is good for a two-year period.

Mayor Sheets is the appointing authority and can select the chief from among the top three candidates based on their examination grades.

However, if he does not select the top man, he is required to give an explanation.

Similar To Downtown Effort Firm Hired To Form Point Action Plan

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A contract has been awarded to Alice Boelter and Associates of Boston for the preparation of an action-oriented master plan for Quincy Point similar to the one devised to revitalize the city's downtown.

Announcement of the awarding of the contract was made jointly by Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino and Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

The Quincy Point Action Plan will focus on the commercial corridor along Washington Street from the Fore River bridge to Southern Artery. It will propose strategies to take advantage of the area's untapped market potential.

In addition, the Action Plan will identify development opportunities in the area to address current needs and future growth.

Mannarino likened the plan to the Quincy Center Action Plan being implemented by Quincy 2000 that was initially drafted by Sasaki Associates of Watertown.

Mannarino and Raymondi said the new Action Plan is scheduled to start immediately and should be finished by the end of June. Mannarino added that the $25,000 plan will be paid for through the city's federally-funded Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) account.

Raymondi said he looks forward to the plan's results.

"It's a project that I've wanted to accomplish for Meeting To Be Held April 29 Over 500 Join New City Retiree Group

A new group that will act on behalf of retired Quincy city workers will hold its first general meeting Tuesday, April 29 at 3 p.m. at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus.

The Quincy Retiree Association Inc. has sent mailings to around 2,100 retirees or their surviving spouses, according to Steve Moynihan, who is serving as interim president of the new organization. At press time, he said about 520 people have sent replies along with $10 membership checks to the group.

"We are very much enthused at the response," said Moynihan. "The organization will only be as good as its members and their participation, but we're off to a good start."

Moynihan, who served as director of business affairs for the Quincy Public Schools for 23 years before his retirement, said the association hopes to get between 700 and 800 members. Currently, he noted, there is a working group of more than 30 people that met Monday to approve the group's by-laws and go over the agenda for the April 29 meeting.

Later in the year, the group will hold a meeting to elect board members, he added.

Moynihan told The Quincy Sun last month the Quincy Retiree Association Inc. will give city retirees a greater voice in the community by promoting, protecting and enhancing the general welfare of the retirees themselves as well as their spouses and surviving spouses.

Specifically, he said, the association "will monitor legislation pertaining to employee benefits as they relate to retired Quincy employees" and will appear before the City Council, School Committee and other officials when necessary to discuss that legislation.

The group also has voted to allow active Quincy employees to join the association as non-voting associate members but has not yet approached any city workers toward that end.

In addition, the association plans to hold a couple of annual socials in addition to its other general meetings and will publish a newsletter containing obituaries, listings of new retirees, legal columns and other articles.

For more information, write to Quincy Retiree Association Inc., P.O. Box 0456, Quincy, MA 02169.

Bikeway Topic April 8 At Ward 4 Center

A presentation on the proposed citywide bikeway will be given Tuesday, April 8 at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

The event will be presented by Jason Loiselle of the Quincy Engineering Department.

The $500,000 bikeway, which would be paid for mainly by federal funds, would total about 15 to 20 miles and link a number of sites throughout the city.

For more information, call Loiselle at 376-1962.

But Council Concerned About Roads, Sewers, Drains Support For Senior Facilities At Marina Bay

Despite some lingering City Council concerns about needed roadway, sewer and drain improvements, a proposal for new senior facilities at Marina Bay received only support at a public hearing Monday night.

In addition, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, whose ward includes the proposed project site, said after the meeting the proposed development will be good for the area if all details can be worked out.

Following a lengthy presentation by several project proponents and Atty. Dennis Harrington, legal counsel, four local residents spoke in favor of the plan and two others signed in support. No one voiced or signed in opposition.

Among the residents who voiced support was James Stamos of 15 Sonoma Rd.

"I think the development is an excellent plan," he said. "And I know the talk in Squantum is generally favorable for this project."

Tom McKay of 2001 Marina Drive, a member of the South Shore Building Trades, also spoke in favor, although he stressed he was speaking "as a resident of Marina Bay."

Developers who have plans for the Marina Bay site include Peter O'Connell, Peter Gordon and Thorndike Development.

Marina Bay Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Center Inc. has applied for a PUD (Planned Unit Development) permit to construct a 167-bed nursing facility and a 110-unit assistant living facility on a portion of Lot 24 in Marina Bay. Harrington said Peter Gordon, the principal of the group who was away on a family vacation Monday night, has many years of experience in the nursing business.

Councillors did not express many reservations about the project itself but did say they are concerned about the deteriorating conditions of some of the privately-owned road, drain and sewer systems in Marina Bay. They said building permits for Gordon, as well as those for Quincy developer Peter O'Connell and Thorndike Development of Braintree--both of whom also have proposed separate projects for Marina Bay--should require the developers to make needed improvements in order for their projects to go forward.

Council members also said they want Townsend Co. of Maryland to repave Commander Shea Boulevard, the main access road to Marina Bay. The company, which owns the aging roadway, should make it driveable again, they said.

Harrington and Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade said Gordon, O'Connell and Thorndike have expressed willingness to pay for their improvements but the city has not yet heard back from Townsend Co.

"There's a need for senior housing in North Quincy, and the abutter impact is minimal," Ayers said. "I think, overall, if it can be built to city standards with no negative impact, I can see this as a good use for the land."

Ayers added that at a recent Planning Board meeting, representatives from the Marina Bay Association spoke in favor of the plan and the Squantum Neighborhood Association sent a letter in support.

The Planning Board is expected to make a recommendation April 9. The council will vote on the project at a later date.

PALM SUNDAY PARADE was held Sunday by Quincy United Methodist Church in Wollaston with a pony leading the way. Church members marched down Chapman Street in commemoration of Christ's entrance into Jerusalem.

Cataract Removed

Sheets OK After Eye Surgery

Mayor James Sheets is feeling well following the removal of a cataract from his right eye last week.

Sheets, 61, who had the surgery performed by Eye Health Services Inc.--which has nine offices, including one on Adams Street in Quincy--said both his eyes now have approximately 20/20 vision when aided by glasses or contact lenses.

The cataract was first discovered by his optician about four years ago and had gotten progressively worse.

"For all practical purposes, I had no vision in that eye (prior to the surgery)," he said. "But it's coming along fine now."

Mariano Checking 'The Neighborhood'

On Mariano has not yet ruled in or ruled out a run for Norfolk County Sheriff.

"I haven't decided yet, but I am giving it very serious thought," he says.

Mariano could be taking a big step toward a final decision April 8.

He has a fund-raiser set for that date, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Pier 4 in Boston. Tickets are $100 per and available by contacting his aide, Joseph Murphy, at 328-5166.

At $100 per and the Pier 4 setting, Mariano will be able to get a reading on whether he can raise enough money to finance a successful campaign against Jack Flood next year.

Mariano and others figure it will take something in the neighborhood of $200,000 to make a good run. He'll get a chance to check the neighborhood April 8.

Flood, a former Democrat now a Republican, was named by Gov. William Weld to fill out the unexpired term of Quincy's Clifford Marshall who died last August after a long battle with brain cancer.

Local Democrats want the badge to come back to Quincy but acknowledge that Flood isn't going to surrender it easily. They are going to have to yank it from him. The question is: do the Democrats have enough yank?

Flood knows his way around the political landscape. Weld probably couldn't have picked a better Republican to hold onto the badge.

Mariano, a friend of Marshall's, feels he can win it back for the Democrats. But he's realistic about it.

He needs a full tank to run on.

IF YOU ARE still wondering whether Tim Cahill will run for another city council at-large term this fall, you can stop. He's already off and running.

Cahill, had one fundraiser earlier this month to help pay off his campaign expenses incurred in his successful bid for Norfolk County treasurer last fall. And, is planning a second one for sometime in May.

This one is strictly for his campaign for re-election to the city council.

FORMER WARD 5 Councillor Chuck Phelan has a career change coming up. He will join the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department April 7 where he will head up the computerization division. He will be managing an information networking system.

PHELAN

Phelan is leaving the Burke Distributing Company where he had been 16 years.

"It's a new challenge," he says. "And a good opportunity."

FRANK TERRANOVA, former chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners and before that, the superintendent of maintenance, is recuperating at home after a hospital stay and a bout with pneumonia.

TERRANOVA

Hard to believe it, but Frank will be 90 in November. He hardly looks it. And to what does he credit his longevity and much younger appearance?

Well, he doesn't smoke. And he doesn't drink. But that's not it.

"It's the prunes," he insists. "I eat three of them every morning."

KELLY

CAPTAIN Scott Kelly, commanding officer of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, will be running in next month's Boston Marathon.

Kelly, who has been informed he will be assigned an official number, hopes to do the grueling 26.2-mile course in 3 hours, 30 minutes. He's been warming up running in four recent marathons. His best time so far is 3:33:05.

He's looking for sponsors to raise needed money for the Salvation Army Quincy Corps. If you would like to pledge and help the needy, you can reach him at Quincy Temple, 6 Baxter St. (472-2345)

VIC DI GRAVIO, Sr. wants to thank all of you who sent him cards and letters for his 80th birthday.

We mentioned here a few weeks ago that Vic, one of Quincy's all-time great athletes and a former outstanding college basketball official, would be celebrating No. 80 in February.

"The response was terrific," he says. "I received at least 100 cards and a number of letters. It was great hearing from old friends and guys I played with going back to high school. It brought back a lot of fond memories. Thank you all."

READERS FORUM

A Job Well Done By Quincy Public School Bus Monitors

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The wind beneath the drivers' wings. A co-captain of a bus. Their first priority, the safety of the children.

They are the city's public school bus monitors.

They help the small up the stairs and hold the older from stampeding. They help the shy, the timid, and the indecisive find a seat, and teach the ones that want the whole seat that they have to share. This is a great help to the driver and the public trying to move along.

They are the extra set of eyes spotting the late child running down the street, or comforts the sad one having a bad morning. They clean the soiled sneaker in the grass, so all others may un-pinch their nose and breathe again. They run for the plastic bag when one feels nauseous and for paper towels to clean. They wipe tears, noses, and mouths. They tie shoes, fix hats, and zipper jackets.

They are all mothers from the City of Quincy and like all mothers they nurse, counsel, referee, teach and protect the children on their buses. They encourage harmony and respect. They wear the weather well—snow, rain, sleet, puddles, etc., for there's no time for umbrellas or restricting hoods on this job. They are one of the fittest groups employed by the city, for they do the Stairmaster every day, sometimes 20 times on one school route (most do three schools, plus their kindergartens). They memorize names of grandparents, aunts, uncles, and babysitters; who goes to day care, CCD, Girl Scouts, and sports events; who's missing, etc., etc.

For all the hundreds of students under their care, they do a commendable job; but the most important job of all is crossing the students. There are hundreds of reasons why one does not see school bus lights flashing; and in an ideal world, we would like to think everyone would, but the reality is they don't. Being school bus drivers for 20 years, we have experienced the heart-wrenching feeling of seeing that car that's not going to stop, or having to beep our horns in the monitor's ear, warning her something's coming from behind and witnessing her instinctive reaction of holding the children back while waving (but restraining herself from throwing) her stop sign at the passing car.

We would like to commend the City of Quincy for providing this service to the public, the public paying their taxes to pay for their service, and especially the women who do a wonderful job. We hope everyone will realize and understand how important they are to this city.

Ferrazzi Calls For State Police Help In Shipyard Strike

By PAUL HAROLD

Police Chief William Ferrazzi called on Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to ask Gov.

Furcolo for the assistance of the state police in handling the strike at the Fore River shipyard.

March 27 -
April 2, 1960
37 Years Ago

Earlier this week, there were tense periods when 200 supervisory workers stood around the shipyard gate, considering entering the yard, until they were sent home by management.

The chief noted that he had 70 policemen at the site, where locals 5, 90 and 151 had 200 pickets.

In the meantime, John Grogan, president of the Shipbuilders Workers Union, met in Washington with Eastern Congressmen. He told them that striking workers at Bethlehem plants at East Coast yards would return to work if President Eisenhower appointed a fact-finding board.

Congressman James Burke was told by representatives of the Labor Department that the President would not name a fact finder unless the request was made by both parties.

HISTORIC BOARD MANAGERS REJECT STATUE

D. Foster Taylor, chairman of the Board of Managers of Historic Places, opposed the proposal to erect a statue of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams.

"The Board of Managers of Historic Places desires to be recorded in opposition to the proposed erection of a statue memorializing Presidents John and John Quincy Adams for the reason that they are adequately memorialized at the present time," he said.

Taylor termed the project, which would be built by students' donations, to be in poor taste, too expensive and without a suitable site.

HERBERT BOOSTS SHORE PROJECTS

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert pushed for state funds to match the city's three quarter of a million dollars in proposed shore improvements at Adams Shore, Houghs Neck and Germantown.

The Herbert package included seawall construction at Braintree Ave. and Shelton Rd., rip-rap construction along Manet Ave. and at Snug Harbor, dredging at Bayswater, beachwork at Edgewater Dr. and a boat ramp at Nowe's Boat Yard.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Easter Ring

During this past week, I've been making each member of my family a baked Easter ring, a tradition ever since I can remember.

Although all year long I use this same recipe for biscotti cookies, at Easter time, I make a ring out of it with eggs surrounding the top.

Easter Ring

1 stick butter or margarine
3/4 cup sugar
2 beaten eggs
2 1/2 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 teaspoons anise extract (I also have used almond extract) eggs for the top

Melt the butter, add the sugar. Fold in the eggs and gradually add the rest of the ingredients until the dough can be handled. Add a smidgen more of the flour if sticky. Place on a floured board. With this recipe you can actually make two small rings with three eggs on each.

First, keep a small piece of dough to make strips to hold the eggs in place.

Mold the dough into a circle about 6 inches in diameter resembling a large doughnut. Place the uncooked eggs (two or three) around the top pushing them in just enough. With your hands, roll the small strips of dough and place them across the eggs securing them onto the ring.

Put on a slightly greased cookie sheet and bake in a 350 degree oven for 25-30 minutes.

Icing

Powdered sugar
Multi-colored candy sprinkles
A few drops of anise

For the icing I use some of the anise with powdered sugar and a couple of drops of water. Brush on top of the cooled ring and sprinkle the top. Just a small piece tastes great with a cup of coffee or tea and keeps for days. Happy Easter!

Christmas Festival Committee Seeks Parade Theme For 1997

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee is seeking suggestions for this year's Christmas Parade theme from the general public and parade participants.

The theme winner is invited to participate in the parade and be recognized as he or she travels along the approximate three-mile parade route. The committee presents a gift of appreciation to the winner at the awards ceremony immediately following the parade.

The suggested theme should bring to mind numerous ideas for potential float building and eliminate potential float duplication.

Theme entries should be mailed to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Quincy, MA 02170 no later than Friday, April 11.

The committee will select the winning theme Wednesday, April 16.

Past parade themes have included "Christmas on Parade," "Forty Years or Christmas Memories," "The Wonders of Christmas," "Christmas in Toyland," "Christmas Around The World," "The Magic of Christmas," "Memories of Christmas," "Joys of Christmas" and "Christmas Wishes on Parade." The 1996 theme was "A Storybook Christmas."

Accent On Quincy Center

By BRUCE ARONS
Quincy Center Development Coordinator

Quincy Center will have two new restaurants opening up this spring.

Kevin's at the Heritage, located in the Heritage Building at 1495 Hancock St., is expected to open in late May.

The Mando Restaurant located at Hancock and Maple Sts. is scheduled for a late spring opening. This will be a family-style Italian restaurant with a 72-seat dining area. Larry Agnitti, a local Quincy resident will manage the operation.

Sleep-a-Rama, currently located at 1506 Hancock St., is moving a couple of storefronts down to 1514 Hancock St. to make room for a new tenant moving into 1506 Hancock St. Demand for retail space in Quincy Center is very strong and is becoming increasingly difficult to find.

Congratulations to Frantic Framers as they celebrate 25 years of doing business in Quincy Center. Stop by and take advantage of their anniversary sale prices and shake the owner's hand for continuing to provide a very special quality service to Quincy residents.

According to Prime Locations Consulting, the Rite Aid Building at 1445 Hancock St. is under agreement to be sold and should have a new owner very shortly. It will be good to see this building improved and occupied, and providing additional services to the downtown population.

Quincy Center continues to strengthen and expand its economic base in a very committed and steady manner. Keeping this progress on course requires patience, perseverance and vision. To date, the city has shown an ample supply of each.

Until next time, be sure to check out what's "happening" in downtown Quincy Center--and feel free to write me with your comments and suggestions. (Mailing address: The Quincy 2000 Corporation, 1250 Hancock St., Suite 802N, Quincy, MA 02169.)

Correction

Emmanouil, who plans to build ships at the Fore River shipyard beginning this fall, can be seen in the photo standing between Sen. Edward Kennedy and Gov. William Weld.

The Sun regrets the error.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NOSEBLEEDS

Nosebleeds can be embarrassing and even frightening, but they are rarely a serious cause for concern. The amount of blood lost is usually quite small, even when it seems to be gushing out. There are several common causes of nosebleeds, including frequent noseblowing or being in an overheated room. (Warm air dries out the lining of the nose, leaving the blood vessels close to the surface vulnerable to rupturing.) The first impulse upon getting a nosebleed is often to tilt the head back, but this is not the most effective approach. Gently blow the nose, then sit up straight and bend your head forward while pinching the nostrils firmly shut for 10 minutes. If bleeding persists, try spraying nasal decongestant and pinch the nose shut for another 10 minutes. Call your doctor if the bleeding hasn't stopped after 20 minutes.

P.S. If you have frequent nosebleeds, talk to your doctor. They may be a sign of a more serious underlying condition. Occasional nosebleeds are not really a problem, but if you find you have frequent and persistent nosebleeds, then medical intervention may make sense. Call your physician with questions on this or any other medical topic which concerns you. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550.

Many ambulance services now look to a national conglomerate for guidance.

We look here.

Fallon Ambulance Service has been run by the Fallon family since James Fallon Sr. founded our company in 1936. The philosophy of compassionate personalized care that was established by James is what guides us today.

So while many local ambulance services have caught the merger bug and become branches of large national companies, Fallon Ambulance remains true to its roots and an unwavering belief in personalized service. James Fallon Sr.'s philosophy of compassion plays a role at every level of the company, from the way we treat our employees to the individualized attention patients receive from our EMTs.

Staying true to our roots also means playing a visible and important role in our community. We do just that with unmatched volunteer work, serving schools with educational programs and providing transportation for charitable events. Special programs like our "Bringing Families Together" and "Extra Miles for Kids in Need" are unique in the industry.

Give us a call and find out how our "family" commitment to unconditional patient care can benefit your facility.

Farewell Party For Foreign Exchange Students

The Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy Point, will sponsor a farewell party tonight (Thursday) for the 14 foreign exchange students returning home to Forli, Italy.

The party, which begins at 6:30 p.m., concludes the students' visit to Quincy and the Boston area as part of a foreign exchange program between Quincy High School and a high school in Forli, a city of 100,000 in northeastern Italy, near Bologna.

"It will be a nice wrap-up of their visit to our community," said Joan Gallagher, head librarian at the Bradford Library at Quincy High School, who initiated the exchange program along with Professoressa Alessandra Ghini, a high school teacher in Forli. "It was a wonderful community effort. A lot of people donated things to help make the students' all the more enjoyable. They even got to spend a night on the USS Salem, thanks to the generosity of the Shipbuilding Museum."

During their week-long stay, the Italian students and their three adult chaperones took in the sights around Quincy, Boston and also embarked on a trip to New York City. The students attended a tour of the State House in Boston led by Rep. Steven Tobin, a tour of the North Shore, visited the John F. Kennedy Library, the Hard Rock Cafe, a Leonardo da Vinci exhibit and took in a performance by the Blue Man Group.

Gallagher said she got the idea for the program a few years ago when she met Professoressa Ghini at an airport in Milan, Italy.

"A few summers ago, I was waiting in line at the airport and asked a woman to keep my place in line," said Gallagher about her first meeting with Professoressa Ghini. "We got to talking and I found out she taught English in a high school in Italy. We both thought that there should be an exchange of students and decided to work together to make it happen."

Over the past one-and-a-half years, Ghini has taken on the major role of organizing the program and bringing the Italian students to Quincy, said Gallagher, who hopes to take Quincy High students to Forli next April during the school vacation week.

"A lot of preparation and hard work went into making this happen," she said, "but it's definitely worth it when you see how much the kids enjoy and benefit from the experience."

Realtors Can Help You Determine Property Value

People actively shopping the real estate market with the assistance of a professional probably have a sense of what homes cost, but how do you assign a value to your property?

Knowing the true value of your property is important even if you are not currently planning to sell. Without question, the purchase of a home is the single largest investment ever made by most people, and knowing your home's current market value may be important to your financial planning.

Be aware that different prices may be attached to your property by different people, and that home prices are surprisingly fluid, says Richard Coughlin, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors (SSAR).

Homeowners pay their taxes, finance home improvement or education loans, and gauge their ability to refinance or purchase another home based upon the current market value of their property.

"So much of our financial equity is in the home, it is better to understand what your property is really worth," says Coughlin.

The SSAR suggests property owners consider various sources of data in determining property value. For example, mortgage lenders employ property appraisers to assess property value when considering the risks and terms of a mortgage loan. The town or city where you reside also employs a property appraiser to assess property values in order to set property tax rates. (Property tax assessments are only conducted periodically.)

In both of these cases, the property is assigned a value based upon criteria including the lot size, number of bedrooms and bathrooms, type of construction, and the age of the property. But these base values rarely include cosmetic details such as new carpeting, or proximity to a school.

Property values rise and fall, sometimes dramatically, because of economic conditions such as the closing of a nearby manufacturing plant, or the opening of a new one. Population growth or migration also can effect home prices if, for example, there is a strong demand for housing at the same time there is a decline in the number of people selling homes. These factors cause an ebb and flow in home prices that can be better navigated with the help of the most current market data.

While formulas are necessary to give lenders and local government the best guess about your property's value, the property actually is worth only what a qualified buyer is willing to pay for it. The best way to determine what properties are actually selling for is to ask a Realtor. Realtors are trained to provide you with current comparisons of homes like yours that have recently sold.

A Realtor should be able to show you the recent sale price of at least three other homes of the same relative age, size and condition. These comparisons may vary slightly from the community tax rate assessment, or from a conservative lender's assessment, but the inclusion of a Realtor's comparison is imperative to determine what you believe the actual selling price should be.

SPRING CAR CARE

Engine 'Transplant' Puts New Life In Your Car

When Al and Nancy B. searched for a vehicle in which they could travel comfortably after retirement, their selection narrowed to a used van. The appearance of this 10-year-old customized beauty belied its 150,000 miles. It had everything the couple had been looking for at a price below what they had planned to spend. Body and interior had been well cared for but it needed major engine work.

After a few phone calls they found they could have a completely remanufactured engine installed for about $2,000 to $2,500. The most important component of the van, consequently, would be like new with a warranty.

The retirees made a decision: go for it!

As new car prices escalate, buyers and/or owners of older vehicles face similar repair vs. replace decisions. Instead of shopping the Car Care Council, first ask for the expert opinion of your automotive technician. He (or she) can estimate the extent of repairs needed.

"Because most car owners are familiar with the most common mechanical repairs, like replacing spark plugs or drive belts, we usually can take these services in stride," said Council President Don Midgley. "Having an engine replaced with a like-new one is a procedure that has become familiar to many owners as they realize the economic benefits."

A remanufactured engine, as the term implies, is one that has new or reconstructed components. In addition to using many new components, other durable parts such as the block and crankshaft are cleaned and machined to factory specifications. Typically, pistons, rings, bearings and timing chain or belt are new.

After the rebuilt engine is installed, fuel, ignition and cooling systems are checked to be sure everything under the hood is in top operating condition.

The economic benefits of installing a remanufactured engine vs. "trading up" go beyond purchase price, concludes Midgley. You'll save on sales tax and insurance as well.

Car Care Council offers an illustrated pamphlet citing the benefits of remanufactured engines. For a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car

Care Council, Dept. Drive, Port Clinton, OH
NEPMA, One Grande Lake 43452.

Ask For A Used Car's Maintenance Records

The used car business is in the fast lane, passing new car sales at a surprising rate. For budget conscious shoppers a late model used vehicle, especially one that has been well maintained, is a viable alternative to a new one.

There's less risk in buying a used car today, according to Charles Pitts of the National Independent Automobile Dealers Association, the nation's fastest growing trade association.

"Newer cars hold up better and last longer than their predecessors," said Pitts. "Reputable dealers are fussier about their merchandise; warranties are better, too."

Whether buying from a dealer or private party, suggests the Car Care Council, ask for maintenance/repair records. When available, they are akin to a pedigree and add to the value of a vehicle. Documenting the car care history also enhances the vehicle you're selling, a good cause for keeping them.

For used car shoppers the Council offers "The Used Car Buyer's Manual" that takes the reader, step-by-step, through the buying process.

Home Security -- Invest In It Now

If you were locked out of your house, would you still be able to get in?

Maybe you keep an unlocked window in the back, or a hidden key in your mailbox or on top of a window ledge.

You may think this is a good idea, but guess what? If you can break in, so can a burglar!

One out of 10 homes will be burglarized this year. For a small amount of time and money you can make your home more secure and reduce your chances of being a victim.

Many burglars will spend no longer than 60 seconds to try breaking into a home. Good locks -- and good neighbors who watch out for each other -- can be big deterrents to burglars.

CHECK THE LOCKS

Did you know that in almost half of all completed residential burglaries, thieves simply breezed in through unlocked doors or crawled through unlocked windows?

- Make sure every external door has a sturdy, well-installed dead bolt lock. Key-in-the-knob locks are not enough.

- Sliding glass doors can offer easy access if they are not properly secured. You can secure them by installing commercially available locks or putting a broomstick or dowel in the inside track to jam the door. To prevent the door being lifted off the track, drill a hole through the sliding door frame and the fixed frame. Then insert a pin in the hole.

- Lock double-hung windows with key locks or "pin" windows by drilling a small hole into a 45 degree angle between the inner and outer frames, then insert a nail that can be removed. Secure basement windows with grilles or grates.

- Instead of hiding keys around the outside of your home, give an extra key to a neighbor you trust.

- When you move into a new house or apartment, re-key the locks.

CHECK THE DOORS

A lock on a flimsy door is about as effective as locking your car door but leaving the window down.

- All outside doors should be metal or solid wood.
- If your doors don't fit tightly in their frames, install weather stripping around them.
- Install a peephole or wide-angle viewer in all entry doors so you can see who is outside without opening the door.

Door chains break easily and don't keep intruders out.

NEXT WEEK: Check the Outside of Your Home.

Only One Returning Starter Despite Inexperience, Sylvia Optimistic About Presidents' Chances

By LIAM FITZGERALD

With only returning starter and three others with varsity experience, Quincy High School baseball coach Bob Sylvia isn't expecting an Old Colony League title, though he believes the Presidents may surprise some teams along the way.

"We are a very young team with a lot of new players, but they're all good athletes who play other sports and are enthusiastic about the season," said Sylvia, in his 14th season at the helm of the Presidents' varsity squad. "I'm looking forward to the season, because with a young team, you never know how good they can be; they could sneak up some people."

Senior catcher Mike Russo is the lone returning starter for Quincy, which narrowly missed a tournament bid last season. Junior assistant captains Steve Wiltshire (first base) and Steve Maze (second base) saw significant action at their respective positions in 1996. Junior Mark Kelly, a lefthanded pitcher, pitched in a few games last season for the varsity squad.

"Other than those guys, we're brand new," said

Sylvia. "Our objective is to get our feet wet the first five or six games and start getting some confidence. The kids have the right to get some experience under their belts."

"You can't expect a group of sophomores and juniors to come out and dominate right away. Hopefully, we'll play our best ball in the second half of the season."

Five new hurlers join Kelly on the pitching staff: junior righthander Ryan Ploof, sophomore righthanders Dennis Palardy, Sean Sperber and Tom Daly and sophomore lefthander Bill Armstrong. Ploof and Palardy are also infielders, while Daly and Armstrong can play the outfield and Sperber can serve as a backup catcher.

Among the new players battling for jobs at the regular positions are juniors Jason Crossman, Tony Stalfier (shortstop), Steve Clark (third base), Scott Desmond (outfield) and Sean Walsh, along with sophomores John Caliri (outfield), Jason Caduyer (catcher) and Mike Clark (outfield-pitcher). Walsh is currently injured, but Sylvia expects to have him back within two to three weeks.

What has impressed Sylvia about this youthful squad is its desire to work hard every day and its eagerness to improve as the season opener approaches.

"This is a real good bunch of kids that will do whatever it takes to get better," he said. "They've been busting their humps every morning at 6 at practice, doing double sessions. When kids are enthusiastic about getting up at 5 a.m. and practicing, you know they want to play."

The Presidents open their season Saturday, April 5 at 10:30 a.m. in a non-league game against Boston Latin at Adams Field. Quincy's first OCL test will come April 7 at 4 p.m. at Taunton, followed by league games against Weymouth (April 9, 4 p.m.) and at Bridgewater-Raynham (April 11, 4 p.m.).

"With our first three league games, we're right in the thick of it," said Sylvia. "B-R is always strong and has a lot of depth. There are no real weak links in the league, so we'll have our work cut out of us every time we take the field."

Girls' Softball

Depth, Positive Attitude Keys For North Quincy

At North Quincy High School, the outlook for the softball team is positive, with seven starters returning to the squad under the guidance of first-year coach Bob Doyle.

"The overall attitude is good, and the girls are working hard to improve their skills," said Doyle, who has coached at the JV and freshmen levels the last six years at North. "The girls are very upbeat and looking forward to starting the season. I've had no problems motivating them to work on their games, which is nice to see as a coach."

"Even though the OCL (Old Colony League) is a tough league, I think we'll sneak up on some teams. We have a good amount of depth and experience at this level and the girls who came up from the JV were starters there, so that should also be a plus."

Defense will be the key, according to Doyle, if North is to have a successful season.

"I've concentrated on defense a lot in practice, because the pitchers in the OCL are tough to hit, making defense all the more important," he said. "If we play solid defense, we'll give ourselves a good chance to win."

North's new starters will be Bridget Shaughnessy (catcher), the team's lone senior, and sophomore Maura O'Brien (right field), who played at the JV level last season.

Shaughnessy, a backup last season, takes over for Kerry Ginty, who decided not to play softball this spring.

"Losing Kerry was tough, because she was one of our big leaders, but we're looking for Bridget to step right in and help the team out," said Doyle. "We'll look to her for some leadership as the only senior. She's worked hard for four years and set a good example for the younger players." Juniors Danielle Likas (third base), Jessica Flana-

Continental Cablevision Earns National Honors

Continental Cablevision announces that "View Smart to Vote Smart: The Truth Congressional Race" has been nominated for two of the most prestigious awards in the nation for local cable programming.

The program, telecast from Continental's Quincy studio on Nov. 1 and simulcast on New England Cable News, featured then-Congressional candidates William Delahunt and Edward Teague in a unique debate format. Questions were prepared by students across the district, videotaped by Continental staff members and shown to the candidates for their response.

In addition, viewers also had the opportunity to e-mail questions during the program to Continental Cablevision's World Wide Web site, which were also answered by Delahunt and Teague.

"We are very proud of this program," said Continental's Quincy Program Manager Bill McColgan, the director of the telecast. "'View Smart' was a wonderful opportunity to utilize our relationship with the schools, our advanced fiber-optic network, and our local production capabilities and talented staff to present a debate that was informative and interesting for our viewers."

The program has been nominated for the prestigious national CableACE Award in the category of public affairs programming. The winner will be announced March 18 at a ceremony in New Orleans. The local "View Smart" project has also been nominated for a Beacon Award by the Cable Television Public Affairs Association. The Beacon winners will be named at a ceremony in Washington, D.C. on April 29. Continental and Quincy Community Television also announce that the QCTV Sports Team was recently honored by the national Alliance for Community Media with a 1996 Hometown Video Award. The crew, made up of Continental staff members and many talented community volunteers, took the top prize for Best Sports Programming in the nation.

"This is really a tribute to the dedication of our volunteers," said Bill Earley, a longstanding member of the crew and former president of the QCTV Council. "It's gratifying to win this award for putting the spotlight on the kids."

Legislators Working To Keep Marina Bay Shuttle Operational

Congressman William Delahunt, state Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Michael Bellotti recently met with MBTA and Central Artery/Tunnel Project officials regarding the Marina Bay Computer Boat Shuttle in an attempt to find alternative sources of funding to keep the service operational.

The shuttle, which services approximately 80 to 100 daily riders, was scheduled to close on Feb. 28, but as a result of the combined legislative effort with the shuttle owners, the service will keep running for two additional weeks so that every available option of sustaining the service can be explored.

Delahunt said, "As a resident of Marina Bay, and consistent with my commitment to improving water transportation options from the South Shore, I realize the importance of sustaining this service and have designated P.J. O'Sullivan, my district director, to work with Sen. Morrissey, Rep. Bellotti and all other officials to find alternatives to keep the service running."

Morrissey added, "The daily commute to Boston from the South Shore is difficult enough without the senseless elimination of a quick and affordable alternative like the Marina Bay Water Shuttle. With the ever-increasing strain on MBTA parking facilities, as well as the always-present Central Artery construction, transportation alternatives such as water shuttles must continue to be studied and viable routes must be supported."

Bellotti said, "This service acts as a viable commuter alternative, available to not only Quincy commuters, but to all South Shore commuters, and its continuance will only help to further alleviate their already difficult commute."

All three legislators will continue to work with officials from the MBTA, the Central Artery/Tunnel

Project and the Executive Office of Transportation and Construction to arrive at the best possible alternative for the shuttle and its riders. The legislators were hopeful after the initial meeting and expect an answer within the next two weeks on whether or not viable options exist for the continuation of the shuttle service.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Easter is a time for rejoicing; one of the most joyous days of the year. It symbolizes the reawakening of life that is universally associated with springtime . . . the season of robins' singing . . . meadows turning green . . . of life renewed. It is the happy time of people's faith.

Easter commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ but, surprisingly, the theme of Easter is older than Christianity itself. Among the most ancient civilizations, rituals of rebirth were very common. . . Sunrise services date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun rises. The present-day parades that mark the day had their beginning in the original Easter walk of Europe, when devout men and women congregated and walked in an orderly manner reciting prayers and singing. And one of the most charming of all customs is the Easter egg hunt for children - renewing the custom far older than Christianity. In pre-Christian time, the egg was the symbol of spring. In the Christian era the egg became a symbol of the rock tomb out of which Christ emerged in His resurrection. Thus, Easter is a symbol of Christianity, just as it is a symbol of the faith and hope of mankind.

Easter combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good; both are needed by the soul of man. . .

Your Social Security

Self-Employment And Social Security

By CAROL BOYLE

Writing off your business expenses may make you smile when you file your income tax, but it could make you frown if you become disabled and unable to work. Although it's legal to deduct most business expenses, even to the point that you may not owe income taxes, self-employed persons sometimes lose their Social Security disability protection when they don't pay taxes.

This is what happened to a 44-year-old trucker whose injuries in an automobile accident disabled him for nearly three years. Because of the seriousness of the injuries, the trucker met Social Security's definition of disability. Unfortunately, he couldn't receive disability benefits because he had not paid Social Security taxes in recent years.

Earlier in his life, the trucker had paid Social Security taxes for more than 10 years. But, in recent years, he had eliminated his tax liability because he had been replacing expensive business equipment frequently. When a person's net earnings are less than $400 in a year, he or she doesn't have to report them. Therefore, no taxes are due. But, in that case, Social Security disability protection may be reduced or even eliminated for the present. To have been currently insured and eligible for Social Security disability, the trucker would have had to pay Social Security taxes for five of the past 10 years ending with the year in which he became disabled.

The trucker said that, because he had worked and paid Social Security taxes for 10 years, he had assumed he was insured for Social Security and was surprised to learn that he was not currently insured for disability. He is, of course, insured for retirement benefits.

When a person is self-employed, there are some special considerations concerning reporting and paying Social Security taxes. For example, there are two income tax deductions that reduce your tax liability. For one, your net earnings from self-employment are reduced by an amount equal to half of your total self-employment tax. And second, you can deduct half of your self-employment tax on your tax form.

For more information about paying Social Security taxes as a self-employed person, call or visit your local Social Security office or call our toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, and ask for a copy of the fact sheet Social Security: If You're Self-employed (Publication number 05-10022).

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

TOWARD A MORE FLEXIBLE POSITION

While a plaintiff may be single-mindedly determined to win a case, he or she must maintain a flexible attitude about how this goal can be reached. As a civil case progresses toward trial, the processes of investigation and discovery are likely to bring new information to light which may alter the perspective with which the case may be viewed. A lawyer's recommendation that a client settle the case at any point before trial is based on getting the best possible results with the facts at hand. As the issues become more narrow and defined, the opportunity for settlement may present itself more clearly. Those plaintiffs who view their lawsuits more as processes than ends in themselves may be in the best position to reap the benefits of a settlement recommendation.

Hint: It is a lawyer's responsibility to view a case more dispassionately than a client.

If you think you have a lawsuit, but aren't sure whether there is enough evidence, call 773-2880 for a free consultation. Don't go it alone, let a professional help! I am your local personal injury attorney. Our office is located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street. We handle personal injury cases on a percentage fee basis. Delahunt Wants Josiah Quincy House Named National Landmark Congressman William Delahunt has asked the National Park Service to designate the Josiah Quincy House a National Historic Landmark.

"The designation of the Josiah Quincy House as a National Historic Landmark would be a fitting and desirable complement to the properties that comprise the Adams National Historic Site," said Delahunt, a member of the House Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands. "Taken together, they would afford both the historian and the tourist valuable and enriching insight into the lives of several of Quincy's—and indeed, the Boston area's—most important historical figures."

The property, built in 1770 in Wollaston, has been nominated by staff of the Park Service for inclusion in the Historic Landmark Program, the purpose of which is to focus attention on properties of exceptional value to the nation as a whole, rather than a particular state or locality. A final decision on designation is made by the National Park System Advisory Board, after review of public comments.

In a letter to the Park Service, Delahunt focused attention on the architectural and historic significance of the Josiah Quincy House:

"It is an outstanding example of American Colonial Georgian architecture with the integrity of materials, design, and workmanship required by the rules. Of particular note is that the house has been relatively unaltered since it was built in 1770, unlike many comparable houses of its era. As the study points out, several features, such as the monitor roof and the entrance portico, are outstanding and rare examples of these architectural forms."

"The building's history is no less impressive. The Quincy family, several generations of which resided in the house, made significant contributions to the political, economic, educational and cultural life of the nation. Josiah Quincy was a neighbor, a supporter of the revolution and friend of many of its leaders, including George Washington and Benjamin Franklin. His son Josiah II followed in his father's footsteps as a skilled writer and orator for the revolutionary cause.

"As a summer resident of the home, Josiah Quincy III continued the family tradition of public service, as mayor of Boston and president of Harvard University. Included among the guests at the Josiah Quincy House during his residence were John and John Quincy Adams, Lafayette, James Monroe, and Daniel Webster."

The Park Service will accept comments from the public on the nomination of the Quincy House through May 5. They can be sent to: Ms. Carol D. Shull, Chief, National Historic Landmarks Survey, National Register, History and Education (2280), P.O. Box 37127, Suite 310, Washington, D.C. 20013-7127.

New Commuter Passes At Harbor Express

Harbor Express, the high-tech water shuttle service at the Fore River shipyard that offers service to Logan Airport and Boston's Long Wharf, now has commuter passes.

In addition to its weekly passes, Harbor Express is offering a monthly commuter pass for $156 for 40 one-way rides that can be used any time during the year.

"Our commuter request for this was significant," said co-manager Mike McGurl. "With a new company, we have to grow into different types of programs that work for the public."

The project was initiated by Water Transportation Alternatives, Massport, BRA, EOTC and Mayor James Sheats. The Central Artery Project, parking congestion at the Red Line parking garages, and parking mandates in Boston and Logan Airport are the driving forces to make the service easier for the commuter and the airport traveler.

The service is an efficient way to get to the airport and downtown Boston. At the airport, there are free shuttle buses to take passengers to their terminals. Upon arrival at the Long Wharf Marriott, they can either board the MBTA blue line or walk to their destination.

The reason for the dock location at Long Wharf was the proximity to the financial district, Faneuil Hall (Quincy Market) and the MBTA stop.

For more information on Harbor Express, call 376-8417 or visit its web site at <http://www.harborexpress.com>.

Firm Hired To Form Point Action Plan

properly into the next century so that we can plan as well as capture the economic opportunity from the Fore River shipyard," he said. "We're very excited about this opportunity. These are indeed exciting times for Quincy Point and the Ward 2 community."

The plan's objective of making improvements to Washington Street makes sense, Raymondi added, because the street is one of the gateways to the city. It is also an opportune time to do it, he said, because of other Quincy Point projects including the anticipated re-opening of the shipyard, construction of a new Quincy Point elementary school, the planned opening of Wal-Mart and the recently-opened Roche Bros. Supermarket and Harbor Express commuter shuttle service.

Mannarino said he anticipates that the consultants selected to put together the Action Plan will do an exceptional job.

"The team assembled by Alice Boelter & Associates includes Bergemeyer Associates, Cambridge Systematics and Pilot Development," said Mannarino. "This unique approach provides excellent specialized attention to the issues of land economics and development, traffic analysis, and urban planning."

Mannarino said the team of Boelter/Bergemeyer, Pilot Development, and Cambridge Systematics have all worked extensively on urban/transportation planning, development planning, and economic analysis projects. Separately, they have experience with an array of clients, such as the City of Boston (Central Artery).

Boston Redevelopment Authority (Charlestown Navy Yard), MassPort, the City of Los Angeles, and others.

Mannarino said the Action Plan will focus on areas such as opportunity analysis, market potential analysis, a land-use plan, traffic impact and the potential impact of the shipyard re-opening.

As part of the plan, a Planning Committee consisting of 15 to 20 local merchants, property owners and residents is being formed. The committee will work with the consultants to come up with ideas for what kinds of improvements should be made to Washington Street.

Raymondi, who will serve on the committee and Mannarino said the committee's first meeting is tentatively scheduled for Monday, March 31 at 9 a.m. at St. Joseph's Church. They added that in the future, other meetings will be held to get the general public's input.

Raymondi also said those involved with the planning must discuss with officials from the Quincy Planning Department what, if any, state and/or federal funds can be used for the Quincy Point improvements.

MWRA Plans Subsurface Investigations In Fore River

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) is proposing to perform in both subsurface geotechnical investigations within the Fore River in both Weymouth and Quincy.

The testing is part of a feasibility assessment of a Marine Pipeline alternative to the Deep Rock Tunnel. The geotechnical program for the Deep Rock Tunnel alternative was the subject of a previous filing before the Conservation Commission.

The purpose of the testing is to determine existing geotechnical and chemical characteristics of sediment along several corridors, extending from Nut Island in Quincy to the future Intermediate Pump Station (IPS) at the Sprague site in North Quincy. The information will provide data for the selection of potential marine pipeline alignments.

If the MWRA determines that a marine pipeline route is feasible, additional documentation will be required and will be the subject of a future Notice of Intent filing.

A Quincy Conservation Commission hearing on the matter is scheduled for Wednesday, April 2 from 7:40 to 9 p.m. at City Hall. It is open to the public.

After Blizzard: Almost Back To Normal

Quincy was still digging out and trying to get back to normal at midweek from what will long be remembered as the April Fool's Day Blizzard.

Mother Nature pulled the joker out of her deck of weather cards Tuesday with the third biggest blizzard in the area's history, howling in with up to 60 mile-per-hour winds and burying the city under 20 inches of heavy, wet snow. It was the heaviest snowfall ever locally for April.

Although it wasn't as big as the Blizzard of '78, it was a mean storm, bringing down trees, limbs and power lines and causing outages affecting an estimated 700 Massachusetts Electric homes in Quincy.

Meteorologist Mike Ellis reported the total snowfall in Quincy to be 20 inches. Other local totals included 30 inches in Milton and 18 in Hingham, he said.

One section of Quincy Point in the Graham-Edison Sts. area was without power for 12 hours during the height of the storm.

On Wednesday, Amy Tull, spokeswoman for Massachusetts Electric said 47 homes in Quincy were still without power but said they hoped to have them restored by the end of the day.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said all main and secondary roads in the city had been cleared by 11 a.m. Wednesday. The city would next clear parking areas and walkways and make plans for the reopening of Quincy's schools, which were closed Tuesday and Wednesday, he said.

Colton added at press time that downed power lines on Wampatuck Rd. in Merrymount and Forbes Hill Rd. still needed to be removed by Massachusetts Electric.

Fortunately, despite high tides and the whipping winds, flooding in the Houghs Neck, Squantum and Quincy Shore Drive areas was minimal.

The storm brought the city to a virtual standstill Tuesday except for emergency crews and public safety personnel.

Mayor James Sheets declared a state of emergency in the city at 1:30 a.m. Tuesday. Gov. William Weld declared a state of

It was unclear at press time if schools would reopen Thursday. Supt. Eugene Creedon could not be reached for comment.

Mother Nature, after causing all the havoc with the two-day storm that started Monday and continued through most of Tuesday, was trying to make amends by Wednesday.

A welcomed meltdown began with sunny skies and temperatures expected to reach the high 40's or low 50's Wednesday and as high as 62 on Thursday.

emergency for the entire state at 6 a.m.

Because the city declared a state of emergency before the state, it is eligible for financial and other assistance from the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency, the mayor said.

City Hall was closed Tuesday, but Sheets maintained a command post in his office throughout the night. With him were Michael McFarland, his executive secretary; City Clerk

Cheney Will Not Seek Re-Election

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney announces he will not seek re-election for a ninth term on the City Council.

In January, Cheney will have completed 13 years of public service--five years as Ward 1 councillor and eight as councillor-at-large.

Cheney said the reason he is not running is that he wishes to spend more time with his family.

"I have enjoyed every day that I have served in public office," he said. "However, there comes a time when family must come first. Therefore, I will not seek re-election for councillor-at-large."

Cheney has held every major committee assignment in the City Council including chairman of the Finance, Ordinance and Public Safety committees.

Among his accomplishments are the successful bid to keep the primary and secondary sewer treatment plant off Nut Island, which is due to become a park in 1997. Cheney also has successfully convinced the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority not to dig up the third marsh or Palmer Street to facilitate the expansion of the Braintree-Weymouth sewer pipeline.

Ten years ago, Cheney created the Human Relations Committee in Germantown and later sponsored an ordinance in creating the successful Human Relations Commission. He also started, and still serves as chairman of First Night Quincy, a New Year's Eve

Joe Malone
Treasurer and Receiver-General,
Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Under the Massachusetts abandoned property law, accounts which have been inactive for three or more years are declared abandoned property and turned over to the State Treasury for safekeeping. At the Treasurer's Office, additional efforts are made, such as this notice, to locate property owners who never lose their right to claim what is legally theirs. Owners or their heirs need not pay a finder's fee to anyone. If you see your name or wish to make a general inquiry, please call my office at 617-367-0400 or write to Treasurer's Office, Unclaimed Property Department, One Ashburton Place, 12th Floor, Boston, MA 02108.

Malone Seeks To Return $85 Million In Unclaimed Money

State Treasurer Joe Malone announces that the Treasurer's Office has compiled a list of individuals and organizations who have money waiting for them under the Commonwealth's abandoned property law, and that it is available for viewing for the first time on the World Wide Web.

The list was published last week, and is also being published this week, in daily and weekly newspapers throughout the state. Previously, it was published as a free-standing insert in The Boston Sunday Herald and The Boston Sunday Globe.

The Web address for computer users is www.state.ma.us/treasury/.

"This year, over $85 million has been turned over to my office as unclaimed property," Malone said. "I urge every citizen to check the abandoned property listing because we are eager to return all of this money to its rightful owners."

Under Massachusetts' abandoned property law, accounts which have been inactive for more than three years are declared abandoned and turned over to the Treasurer's Office for safekeeping. Unclaimed property consists of any financial asset that has not had any owner-generated activity for an extended period of time. This includes savings accounts, checking accounts, unpaid wages or commissions, stocks, shares, unashed dividends, customer deposits or overpayments, certificates of deposit, credit balances, refunds, money orders, paid-up life insurance policies and uncashed benefits checks.

In accordance with Massachusetts' Unclaimed Property Act, property becomes "unclaimed" when there is no owner-generated activity on a financial asset for a three-year period, 15 years in the case of travelers' checks. Under the law, the "holders" (banks, insurance companies, businesses, etc.) must make a determined effort to locate the true owner.

If they are unsuccessful, they are to report the names and last known addresses of the owners to the Treasurer's Office, where additional efforts are made to locate the owners. The money is then deposited in the General Fund.

There is no time limit on claiming abandoned property. Owners and their heirs need not pay a finder's fee to anyone to claim what rightfully belongs to them. All funds accrue interest until claimed.

Anyone who sees his or her name on the unclaimed property list may call the Treasurer's Office at 367-0400 weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. or write to: State Treasury, Unclaimed Property Division, One Ashburton Place, 12 Floor, Boston, MA 02108. When writing or calling, respondents should give the name as it appears on the list, plus current address, address three years ago, social security number and daytime telephone number.

City Almost Back To Normal

Joseph Shea, Treasurer/Tax Collector Dana Childs and two other members of the mayor's staff, Helen Murphy and Kerry Driscoll.

Sheets said there were at one time at least 80 different locations throughout the city where either trees or limbs were down.

"It may be even more than that," he said.

The mayor said the power at his house went out around 11 p.m. Monday night and did not come back on until 5 a.m. Tuesday. He noted that at least 700 Massachusetts Electric customers were without power for a prolonged period and estimated that at one point, at least half the city—about 12,000 homes and apartments—lost power.

Park and Forestry Department crews, headed by Executive Director Thomas Koch, were out throughout the night, Sheets said, and removed a dozen fallen trees. The mayor said that the trees and limbs were being removed on a priority list according to how dangerous they were.

Koch said at press time his department had removed 15 city trees and another 80 large limbs with about 300 limb locations remaining throughout Quincy. One city tree landed on a house on Beale and Everett Sts. but caused only cosmetic damage, he noted.

Koch stressed that the removal of trees on private property is the responsibility of the property owners.

He added that the Cemetery Department was "working feverishly" at press time to have Quincy's cemeteries ready for funerals by Thursday.

The National Guard Armory at Hancock Street and Furnace Brook Parkway was opened as a shelter. Forty beds were set aside at Quincy Hospital for anyone needing them and shelter.

Abandoned cars were scattered throughout the city, interfering with snowplowing efforts.

Schools were closed, as was Quincy District Court, as well as City Hall. Funeral services and visiting hours at funeral homes were rescheduled. Most activities of various organizations were cancelled.

MBTA buses were not running Tuesday. There was service on the Red Line on a delayed basis.

The city's Department of Public Works snow-fighting equipment was out at 11 p.m. Monday night, but the snow was coming down at a rate of 1 to 3 inches an hour. That and the abandoned cars made it difficult to keep up with the falling snow. Secondary streets were still being plowed on Wednesday.

The Quincy Emergency Management Agency headed by Tony Siciliano provided transportation to patients on dialysis and others to doctors and Quincy Hospital.

Sheets had high praise for the members of the DPW, Emergency Management, and all other city departments and volunteers who assisted with transportation of medical personnel and others to the hospital as well as other efforts.

"I think they've all done an excellent job," he said. "I think everyone's done as good a job as can be expected."

Sheets added that those still experiencing storm-related problems can call 376-1943 or 376-1959.

Although Tuesday's snowstorm was memorable, it still did not equal the ferocity of the Blizzard of '78, which dumped more than 26 inches of snow on Quincy and brought the city to a standstill for at least four days.

No Major Injuries During Storm

Despite severe weather conditions Tuesday, Quincy Hospital reports no major injuries resulting from the storm.

The city was fortunate in that regard. Several other area hospitals have reported a number of injuries, mainly due to snowblower accidents.

MASSACHUSETTS ELECTRIC employees work to restore power at Post Island Tuesday around 4 p.m.

Cheney Out, Gillis In?

Mike Cheney's decision not to run for re-election stops dead in its tracks what would have been one of the best city council at-large horse races in years.

But, it may have set the stage for another one just as good.

Before Cheney bowed out Tuesday because of family reasons there appeared to be four major candidates with only three seats to go around.

The line-up, it appeared, the three incumbents--Tim Cahill, Paul Harold and Cheney--trying to fend off former Mayor Frank McCauley.

Now that Cheney has taken himself out of the picture it leaves, for the time being, at least, two incumbents seeking re-election and McCauley running for the seat being vacated. Three candidates. Three seats. And, three automatic winners.

Maybe not.

There could be another good horse race in the making.

Former City Clerk John Gillis, now a Norfolk County commissioner, who has been thinking about running may now be convinced that Cheney's decision not to seek re-election is a green light for him.

GILLIS candidacy early after Cahill indicated he would not seek re-election.

Gillis, at that time, was considering running, believing, like McCauley, that there would be a vacant seat.

But when Cahill decided to seek another term McCauley was already committed to run. Gillis wasn't. He was reluctant to get in because Cahill is a friend and he didn't want to run and take votes away.

But now that there is an open seat, Gillis doesn't have to be concerned about his friendship with Cahill. He would be running for the open seat and not against Cahill or Harold.

Cheney, who is finishing up 13 years in the council, says:

"I've enjoyed every minute of it. I have no regrets. But the time comes when you have to put your family first. And that time has come."

But he plans to remain a community activist as a private citizen.

"I'm not going to fade away," he vows. "I'm going to be around."

For one thing he has told Mayor James Sheets that he will complete this year as chairman of the successful First Night celebration he started six years ago and has put his heart and soul into.

"And if he wants me to stay on in that role next year and after, I will be happy to do so."

Cheney has been no shrinking violet as a councilor. And doesn't intend to become one as a private citizen.

"I'll continue to speak out on issues," he says. "I'll probably make more noise than I have as a councilor."

What about the future? Is this the end of his political career?

"I'm not saying it's the end," he says. "Just call it a chapter. I'm not closing any doors on the future."

WELL, not everybody has to pay big bucks to have coffee with Bill Clinton in the White House.

"I had coffee with the President and it didn't cost me a dime," mused Judy George as guest speaker at a membership meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association last week.

GEORGE

George, who grew up in Quincy and went on to a huge success in the retail business, is chairman and CEO of Domain, a specialty home furnishings chain she founded.

George was selected by Clinton to represent women CEOs at a "Women in Trade" Business and Development Mission in Amsterdam and London.

She was invited to the White House to participate in a conference before last year's election.

"I sat right across from the President," she said, "and I almost died. He's so cute."

She said she also had lunch with Peter Jennings. "He's really cute," she says.

George attended Central Junior High School and is a 1958 graduate of Quincy High School.

She confided she gets sentimental whenever she comes back to Quincy because of the many fond memories for her here.

In fact, that day, she walked through the corridors of Quincy High School before the QCBPA meeting. And she brought along her copy of the 1958 yearbook The Goldenrod of which she was business manager.

If you're a woman you need to do some pushing to make it in business, she says.

And she turned to two photos--not one--of her in the Goldenrod to illustrate a little pushing technique.

A mother and grandmother, she is not a college graduate and didn't start taking on the business world until she was 31.

But she really took it on.

DR. SUMNER HIRSHBERG and Herb Fontaine, former WJDA news editor, will be guests of Jordan Rich on his WBZ program Sunday at 10 p.m.

Hirshberg and Fontaine will be talking about the "Great Music For A Great Cause" big band and jazz event scheduled for May 20 at the Lantana in Randolph.

SMILE DEPT: From the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): "The first sign of maturity is the discovery that the volume knob also turns to the left."

Their Valor And Nobility Should Be Commended

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is undue reasoning to confuse glorifying war with glorifying the valor and sacrifice of those who have fought in an unwanted conflict thrust upon them during World War II.

What we must glorify through the majesty of our monuments are the values and ideals of a great nation whose people came together in one of the nation's finest hours, and who offered up their lives to defeat the ruthless aggression of determined and relentless forces of tyranny.

The valor and the nobility of spirit of that generation of Americans who fought should be boldly and eloquently commemorated in stone and bronze and lettered in gold, so that generations to come will have their examples set before them for all time.

The profound love of country and immense sacrifice enabled all of us to continue to enjoy freedom and liberty each day of our lives. What better way to commemorate and pay tribute to our World War II veterans could there be other than a statue in their honor?

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

CHILD'S PLAY?

When a child causes an accident, the issue of legal liability is resolved on the basis of the same notion of care and carelessness as pertains to accidents caused by adults. The difference is, however, that the same standards of care that apply to an adult cannot be applied to a minor. This is because children cannot understand implied risks in the way adults can. The law, therefore, applies different standards to different age groups when making a decision as to whether minors are to be held liable for injuries they cause. Children under the age of seven are generally not held liable for the injuries they cause because they are too young to understand that they have been careless. Once children are old enough to know right from wrong, they can be held responsible for intentional injuries that they cause.

HINT: Children above the age of seven are generally held liable for negligent conduct if they did not behave as carefully as other children of the same age would understand is reasonably careful.

If your child has caused an accident, you need the assistance of an experienced attorney. For the advice you need, call 773-2880. All of our consultations are informative, confidential, and followed by effective legal representation. Our office is conveniently located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

raise $4,000 to participate. A fundraiser to benefit the 24 students, which will feature past and present members of the New England Patriots, will be held Sunday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the J.P. McKeon Post, 4 Hilltop St., Dorchester. There will be free autographs, t-shirts and door prizes available.

Cancer Society's South Shore Unit Raises $63,825

The American Cancer Society has reached its $1.1 million goal for the 1997 Daffodil Days campaign.

The society's South Shore Unit, which includes Quincy, raised $63,825 for American Cancer Society programs of cancer research, prevention, patient support, and education. More than 44,000 bouquets of daffodils were sold for $5 each, to make up the record-setting statewide total.

This year, schools were the number one purchaser of daffodils. Students and teachers bought more than 500,000 flowers. Other major customers were banks, hospitals, churches, and synagogues.

More than 4,000 Gifts of Hope—a vase with 10 daffodils—were purchased anonymously by individuals and sent by the American Cancer Society to cancer patients in hospitals around the state.

"Daffodil Days has been one of the American Cancer Society's most popular special events in Massachusetts for the past 16 years," said Joyce Kulhawik, Massachusetts' chairperson of the event since 1983. "As a three-time cancer survivor, I know how important these daffodil sales are for continued research, patient services, and education, not to mention how they remind us of hope and rebirth and spring."

Proceeds from Daffodil Days have contributed to programs including $26 million in American Cancer Society research in Massachusetts, patient and family support networks, free goods and services for cancer patients, skin cancer screening, tobacco control and smoking cessation education, a toll-free information line that receives nearly 20,000 calls a year, and mammography outreach and education.

The daffodil is the first flower of spring and the American Cancer Society's symbol of hope in the fight against cancer. In 1982, when Daffodil Days began, the relative first-year survival rate for cancer was 41 percent. Today, the rate is 56 percent and rising due to advances in research and treatment funded in part by the society's Daffodil Days.

For information about cancer prevention and detection, and referrals to local support services for cancer patients, call the Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345.

Many ambulance services now look to a national conglomerate for guidance.

We look here.

Fallon Ambulance Service has been run by the Fallon family since James Fallon Sr. founded our company in 1936. The philosophy of compassionate personalized care that was established by James is what guides us today.

So while many local ambulance services have caught the merger bug and become branches of large national companies, Fallon Ambulance remains true to its roots and an unwavering belief in personalized service. James Fallon Sr.'s philosophy of compassion plays a role at every level of the company, from the way we treat our employees to the individualized attention patients receive from our EMTs.

Staying true to our roots also means playing a visible and important role in our community. We do just that with unmatched volunteer work, serving schools with educational programs and providing transportation for charitable events. Special programs like our "Bringing Families Together" and "Extra Miles for Kids in Need" are unique in the industry.

Give us a call and find out how our "family" commitment to unconditional patient care can benefit your facility.

Tobin Legislation Would Aid Domestic Violence Victims

State Rep. Stephen Tobin recently testified before the Joint Committee on the Judiciary on legislation designed to protect victims of domestic violence.

Tobin is the chief sponsor of House Bill 2893, which establishes an Address Confidentiality Program to assist victims of domestic violence who must permanently relocate in order to avoid further victimization. The legislation is modeled after the Address Confidentiality Program in the State of Washington.

The bill allows victims of domestic violence to establish a post office box as an official address for public records purposes, and allows victims to keep their real residential address confidential.

Abusers often locate their victims through public records such as voter registration lists which require an authentic and current address.

"This bill takes a critical step toward protecting domestic violence victims," Tobin said, "by allowing victims to use a substitute address for public records."

Successful programs have helped as many as 1,100 women and children find protection from batterers and abusers who have no legitimate need to know the whereabouts of their victims, he added.

"Our state should not make it easy for abusers to know where their victims live," said Tobin.

If enacted, the legislation would require state and local government agencies to recognize the substitute address.

"The program can be instituted with little cost and no new bureaucracy," Tobin said.

Silver-Haired Legislature To Meet At Tobin Towers

The Massachusetts Silver-Haired Legislature will meet Saturday, April 12 from 10 a.m. to noon at Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., Wollaston.

There will be an open agenda. All senior citizens are encouraged to attend. For more information, call 471-5664.

IRISH TENOR John McDermott (center), seen here with Mr. and Mrs. Edward McDermott of Quincy, will perform a benefit concert for United First Parish Church Friday, April 11 at 8 p.m. at Quincy High School. Tickets are $25 and may be obtained by calling 770-3310.

At Quincy High School April 11 John McDermott Concert To Benefit First Parish Church

Popular Irish tenor John McDermott will make a concert appearance here Friday, April 11 to benefit historic United First Parish Church.

Proceeds from the concert will go to the church's Presidents' Crypt Visitation Program.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. in the Quincy High School auditorium. Tickets are $25 and may be obtained by calling 770-3310.

First Parish Church, known as the "Church of Presidents" hosts an estimated more than 7,000 visitors a year. Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine, are entombed in the crypt below the church.

McDermott, internationally-acclaimed because of tours of his native Canada, Australia and Ireland, has also performed at numerous events throughout Greater Boston, including the American Ireland Fund Party, The Charitable Irish Society dinner, former Senate President William Bulger's annual St. Patrick's Day breakfast and at fundraisers for the elderly and veterans of military services. He has also appeared in the South Shore area.

Signed by Capitol Records to a long-term recording contract, McDermott has produced four compact discs—"The Danny Boy Collection," "Old Friends," "Christmas Memories" and "Love Is A Voyage." More than 350,000 copies have been sold in the U.S.

McDermott has received gold and platinum record awards and international media attention for his sold-out concerts and charity work, all of which have prompted a demand for more live appearances.

McDermott's return to the South Shore highlights the Church of the Presidents' inaugural effort to raise public funds. The church is not eligible for state or federal funding, so proceeds from the concert will provide for staffing and materials for the Crypt Visitation Program for the current year.

Local sponsors of McDermott's appearance are Arbella Insurance, The Flatley Company, and State Street.

SPRING CAR CARE

Engine Timing Belt Can Be A Ticking Rubber Time Bomb

If you drive a car that's less than 10 years old, there is an excellent chance you are driving with a ticking rubber time bomb under the hood.

By ignoring this out-of-sight, out-of-mind, "maintenance free" component, catastrophic side-of-the-road failure is not a question of "if" but of "when."

Most of us are familiar with the rubber belt used to transfer power from the engine to the cooling fan, alternator, power steering pump, and air conditioner. In most cases, these belts can easily be inspected periodically for fraying or excessive wear, and are relatively easy to replace. If they do not break, you can usually still make it to the repair shop or a telephone.

But many vehicles are equipped with another belt, the engine timing belt, that is not easily viewed. If neglected, it can cause far more damage than any of the other belts.

Timing belts keep the valves, pistons, and other internal engine parts properly synchronized. The good news about rubber timing belts is that they don't actually stretch, which means there is no need for periodic adjustment. The bad news is that they eventually will weaken and break.

The Car Care Council advises that the "cost" of a broken belt can be much more than simply being stranded on the side of the road. Many of today's high-tech engines are manufactured to such extremely close tolerances, that a broken timing belt will allow the pistons to hit the valves, bending them and possibly destroying the pistons or even the complete engine as a result.

Timing belts often fail from the inside out, making visual inspection somewhat unreliable. This is why vehicle manufacturers recommend replacement of timing belts, typically every 60-90,000 miles, although this varies among manufacturers. Timing belt replacement intervals can easily be found in your owner's manual, or any garage or dealership service department can look it up for you.

Timing belt replacement is a simple procedure for trained technicians. This once every four or five years investment is a small price to pay considering the alternatives, because when it comes to keeping your internal engine parts internal, timing is everything!

Potholes Can Cause Damage To Your Car

Has your car been steering erratically lately? Have you noticed an unfamiliar "clunking" noise coming from under your car? Are your tires wearing unevenly?

These symptoms can be the after-effects of hitting a pothole.

Hitting a pothole or rough railroad crossing can do more than jar your teeth; it can damage a tire or certain under-car parts. Car Care Council advises that, to minimize the jolt and potential damage, you should apply the brakes before you reach the obstruction, releasing the brake during the impact. If your foot remains on the brake, causing the wheel to slam into the pothole rather than to roll over it, damage may be aggravated.

The Council also urges a close inspection underneath the vehicle of tires and other components after a serious altercation with a pothole, curb or other obstruction.

Worn Parts Can Exaggerate A Problem

The effects of an impact with a rut, or series of ruts, are amplified when chassis parts are worn. Rubber bushings wear with time and mileage, as do the swivel joints that support and steer the car. Weak shock absorbers or struts, which help absorb the blow, cause a vehicle to be especially vulnerable to damage.

The life expectancy of steering and suspension components such as ball joints, tie rod ends and idler arms is shortened more by travel over rough roads than by long-distance driving.

Never underestimate the value of a semi-annual alignment check along with tire rotations and balance, says the Council. It can disclose an undercar problem than not only can save tire wear but also can affect driving safety. Remember, too, that your front-wheel drive car may require four-wheel alignment.

The Council offers a free pamphlet on the subject of shock absorbers and struts. Just send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Car Care Council, Department RC, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

SIZING UP THE STOMACH

Have you ever eaten a huge meal or several large meals in a row and remarked something like, "Boy, I've really stretched my stomach out?" Or have you done the opposite - gone through a period of eating very little and thought to yourself, "My stomach must have shrunk?" The human stomach is highly elastic, able to stretch and contract to match its dietary intake. For most of us, however, the change in size is relatively small and only temporary. Even after a feast of epic proportions, a stomach will return to normal size within hours. On the other hand, people who eat extraordinary amounts of food day after day very well may stretch their stomachs to the point that their full capacity is larger than normal. Studies have found that obese people may need 50 percent more food than their normal-weight peers to feel "full." P.S. It takes about three cups of food for the average adult stomach to register a "full" feeling.

Eating healthy food regularly, along with routinely exercising, is your best prevention against a host of illnesses, whether it's just the common cold or something more serious. We are here to help you take care of you! When you visit us, you'll find that you are treated with the utmost of respect. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. Alternative Center Completes Community Service Project

Norfolk County Sheriff

John H. Flood announced the completion of the Braintree Alternative Center's 3,000th Community Service Project during a recent City Hall ceremony.

Mayor James Sheets was on hand to recognize Flood and the center's accomplishment. Inmates of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Community Service Program completed the 3,000th project involving cleaning, painting and refurbishing of City Hall.

Since 1985, the Braintree Alternative Center, a satellite facility of the sheriff's office, has been active within the communities of Norfolk County. The Community Service Program has completed 417,067 hours of service in schools, town offices and municipal buildings.

The program utilizes the Alternative Center's non-violent inmate population to accomplish each project for non-profit qualified agencies. The free labor has saved Norfolk County taxpayers $3 million.

In January, the Alternative Center received accreditation by the American Correction Association in honor of their commitment to excellence in corrections.

McDermott Calls For Redesign Of Newport Avenue Repairs

Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott recently called for an emergency meeting with Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton and Mass Highway project engineers at Newport Ave. and Brook St. in Wollaston.

McDermott called for the meeting after noticing a problem with the redesigning of the intersection.

The intersections along Newport Ave. were identified by Mass Highway as qualified for its improvement program. Pedestrian signals are to be modified and coordinated and handicap ramps are to be installed, but McDermott pointed out an additional problem that occurs near the Wollaston MBTA Station.

"During rush hour, traffic backs up almost to North Central Ave., and no one can get onto Newport Ave.," said McDermott, a resident of the neighborhood. The backup is a result of vehicles parking on Newport Ave. at Brook St., he added.

McDermott proposed a redesign of the intersection to provide for on-street parking while also allowing the free flow of two southbound lanes for vehicular traffic.

"Right now we have a severe bottleneck situation at that intersection," he said.

"Why not address this issue at the same time as the redesign of the intersection?"

McDermott said Colton and Mass Highway Project Supervisor John Boland agreed with his suggestion.

He also emphasized the need for the repair of Newport Ave. at the site of a water main break from last winter in the vicinity of the T station.

"The residents of the city expect this repair to be done this year, and I am happy to report that the DPW and Mass Highway have agreed to complete the project," said McDermott.

Curbside Leaf Pickup Begins April 7

Curbside leaf pickup in Quincy will begin Monday, April 7 and run until Friday, April 18.

Leaves will be picked up on the same day as regular trash by a separate truck. They should be put out for pickup either loose in uncovered trash barrels or in 30-gallon biodegradable kraft paper bags only. Leaves will not be accepted in plastic bags.

Since the fall of 1990, the city, through its refuse contractor, Browning-Ferris Industries, has picked up leaves curbside for municipal composting. Leaves are brought to the decomposition pad at the Department of Public Works Corporation Yard at 55 Sea St. There, the leaves decompose into a rich loam, which is reused by the city and made available to residents at no charge.

This year it will be mandatory to prepare leaves either loose in barrels, or use biodegradable 30-gallon kraft bags, which automatically decompose along with the leaves. Leaves will no longer be accepted in plastic bags for the following reasons:

First, the state DEM has imposed a statewide moratorium on plastic at landfills. Second, although advertised as such, the plastic bags are not biodegradable and cost the city time and labor to remove from leaf piles before natural decomposition can occur.

The program has been successful for past five and a-half years, keeping an estimated 20,000 tons of leaves out of landfills and saving the city the associated costs. The elimination of plastic bags will further improve the program and provide additional savings, according to officials.

Biodegradable kraft paper bags are available in grocery stores, neighborhood convenience stores, and home improvement outlets in packages of five for less than $2. The bags are easier to use than plastic bags for picking up raked leaves, hold more leaves, and are fully recyclable, decomposing along with the leaves.

BFI, the municipal waste contractor, will attempt to make the change go as smoothly as possible by tagging improperly prepared leaves, at the beginning of the collection program. It is expected that tagging will effectively inform anyone who is unaware of the policy change.

For more information, call Michael Wheelwright at 376-1901.

Road Repairs Topic For Montclair-Wollaston Assn.

Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott has invited Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton and company representatives involved in the projects to address the association. The projects include improvements on the Newport Avenue Extension and West Squantum St.

All affected residents are invited.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Take Care When Selecting A Home Remodeling Contractor

Q. We've just moved to a new city and bought an older home that needs extensive remodeling. How can we be sure to find a reputable contractor to do the job right?

A. You're wise to take extra care in selecting a home remodeling contractor. In some instances, home remodeling projects may involve $50,000 or more so it's important to watch out for unscrupulous contractors.

Decide, in advance, exactly what work needs to be done, and make an itemized list. Then be sure to have several reputable contractors bid on the exact same job list. Too often, homeowners change their job list from contractor to contractor and then cannot accurately compare bids.

Price, in itself, should not be the only reason to choose a remodeler. In some cases, a remodeler may low-bid an offer just to get the job and then begin the continuing stream of additional in-voices because he/she claims the job was misrepresented to him/her.

Be sure to get everything in writing. A reputable contractor will want this protection as well. The types of materials used, the total price and payment schedule should be agreed upon in writing in advance.

As a final consideration, contact the local Better Business Bureau for any complaints pending against the contractors who have bid your job.

National Flood Insurance: Safety at a Bargain Price

(NFI) - If you think floods occur only in high-risk, flood-prone areas then think again. That misconception can get you and your belongings soaked.

The National Flood Insurance Program, which offers low-cost flood insurance, says 20 to 30 percent of its flood damage claims come from low- to moderate-risk flood areas.

"Living outside a high-risk flood area is no guarantee that you won't be flooded," says Elaine McReynolds, administrator of the Federal Insurance Administration. The FIA manages NFIP and is under the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Another misconception is that many homeowners wrongly assume that flooding is covered by their homeowners policies.

Federally backed flood insurance — available through your insurance company or agent — protects your home, condominium, apartment or commercial building and its contents at relatively inexpensive premiums.

News USA

Flooding can occur anywhere, anytime.

In fact, as insurance goes, flood insurance may be the last great American bargain.

The average premium for a flood insurance policy is $300 per year for $98,000 worth of coverage. This compares with an installment payment of $300 per month for a $50,000 federal disaster home loan.

The NFIP also offers a policy for homes located outside high-risk areas for as little as $80 per year.

For more information about flood insurance and how you can purchase it, call (800) 427-9662.

Only Three Returning Players Quincy To Rely On Leadership

By LIAM FITZGERALD

With the loss of six seniors to graduation, the Quincy High School softball team will rely mainly on the experience and talent of senior captains Angela Hogrell, Alisha Ford and Lynn Maconochie.

As the only returning varsity players, the Presidents' captains will be looked upon to provide leadership and set an example for the younger players to follow.

"We will be a very young team, but I think our captains will step it up another notch and show the newcomers what it takes to succeed at this level," said Quincy coach Bob Keuther, who enters his fifth year at the helm. "Angela's a three-year varsity starter who will be our starting pitcher. She's the best pitcher I've coached at Quincy and has already been recruited by a number of Division 3 schools, so we're solid there.

"Alisha moves from center field to shortstop and is also a three-year varsity starter. She will be our main bat; she's a career .350 hitter who led team in RBI last season. Lynn's back as our second baseman, and we'll look for a big contribution from her as well."

Two other seniors, Melissa Ring and Kim Garthwait, made the jump from JV and will see significant playing time in the outfield this season. Keuther added that freshman Colleen Nichol will be the starting catcher, but that no other positions were set as of last Thursday.

"I expect freshmen Jen Grogan, Caitlin McLaughlin and Caitlin Nichol to see time at the varsity level," said Keuther. "We'll be a prominently freshman and sophomore team, so there will be a lot of teaching and learning going on throughout the season."

While Keuther admits the underclassmen may find it difficult adjusting to the varsity level, he admires their determination and drive to improve their skills.

"I love the freshmen's attitude; they're working really hard at getting better and have a real desire to learn," said Keuther. "My teams have always displayed a good work ethic and this one is no exception. This team will play hard and I'm anticipating good things from them."

Coaching his most inexperienced squad at Quincy, Keuther said the Presidents will do whatever it takes to generate offense.

"It'll be tough for the younger kids to adjust to the speed of the pitchers at this level, so we'll bunt and run a lot to try and put some runs on the board."

Quincy was scheduled to play a scrimmage game Tuesday at Milton and Friday at 4:30 p.m. at Harwich. Those two scrimmages, Keuther said, will determine the remaining starters and those who will begin the season at the varsity or JV level.

In their season opener next Monday at 4 p.m., the Presidents face visiting Taunton, one of the top contenders in the Old Colony League. Next Wednesday at 4 p.m., Quincy visits OCL rival Weymouth.

"The league is very tough again this year," said Keuther. "Taunton's a perennial state semifinalist, Bridgewater-Raynham's always tough, and Falmouth, Weymouth and North Quincy have all made major strides, so we'll be in the field every time we take the field."

DAVE DOHERTY of North Quincy was a member of the 1996-97 Suffolk University hockey team. A 6-2 sophomore defenseman, Doherty is a North Quincy High School graduate. The Rams, rebuilding under first-year coach Mark McHale, finished the season with a 5-19-1 record.

Confident Red Raiders Seek Division Crown

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Coming off a 13-7 season and an appearance in the state quarterfinals last year, North Quincy High School boys volleyball coach John Perkins expects this year's deep, experienced squad to clinch its sixth straight tournament berth.

"I feel this is a strong, contending tournament team," said Perkins, in his 11th season as the Red Raiders' coach. "We expect to be picked to win the South Division. It's important to the kids that we are, because it'll give them something to strive for."

"Experience is a big key for us. Most of our players played a lot last year, and we only lost one player, although he was a very valuable player (first-team All-Scholastic Jim Rendle). Seven players saw varsity action last season, so they know what it takes to succeed at this level."

The Red Raiders' veteran lineup will be led by All-Scholastic senior captain Mike Johnston, an outside hitter. Also starting for North are talented seniors Matt Bromley (middle hitter), Jerick Warrick (setter), Lewis Man (setter) and Jimmy Wong (outside hitter). Being considered for the defensive specialist position are senior Eddie Tan and junior James Cheung.

Coming off the bench to give the starters a breather are senior Nick Shea (middle hitter) and junior Rob McCauley (outside hitter). Also expected to see varsity action are seniors John Li and Vonnerey Marcial and sophomore Al King.

In addition to the squad's experience, another attribute the Red Raiders have that pleases Perkins is height.

"We have a lot of height on this team," he said. "Bromley is 6-4, and Shea and Johnston are both 6-1, so that'll give us a big advantage over other teams."

The Red Raiders were scheduled to open their season Tuesday at Brookline, but the blizzard prevented the teams from meeting. North is slated to host Durdie today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., unless either school is not in session, which would postpone the match.

Consistency Is Quincy's Key

Seeking its third straight tournament appearance, this year's Quincy High School boys volleyball team will be under the direction of a coach who is quite familiar with Quincy volleyball--Tom Henderson, Quincy girls volleyball coach for the past 14 years.

In his first year coaching the boys at Quincy, Henderson believes the Presidents have the ability to make the tournament again--if they play well throughout the season.

"Consistency is the key; if we play at a reasonably good level and play like that consistently, we should do pretty well," he said. "I'm optimistic, since most of our players have played a couple of years at varsity and know what it takes to win at this level.

"I think making the tournament the past two years adds some extra momentum into the season, because the kids want get back in it and show what they can do."

Henderson will rely mainly on seniors Geoff King (middle hitter), Don McCarthy (outside hitter), Ed Smith and Dom Catrambone (middle hitter) and junior Jared Downey (setter), all returning varsity players with the exception of Catrambone, a JV player a year ago. McCarthy and King are in their fourth year of playing volleyball at Quincy.

"The nucleus from last year remained mostly intact, the skill level and the team's attitude are good, so we could do all right this season," said Henderson. "We don't have a lot of height, which could be a detriment."

Smith, along with former JV players Matthew Chan, Felix Chan and Paul Pitts-Dilley, will be counted on to served in a number of roles.

"I'm going to need them to a lot of different things, including switching positions, because we don't have a lot of blocking," said Henderson, who added that one or two other JV players would probably move to varsity later in the season.

The Presidents' season opener Tuesday at Wareham was postponed due to the blizzard and rescheduled for Monday at Wareham at 4 p.m. Quincy's match today (Thursday) at 4 at Xaverian will go on as planned, unless one of the schools is not in session. Quincy's home match Friday at 3:30 p.m. against Brockton should be played as scheduled.

SIGNS OF WEAR

Car owners who suspect that their vehicles are in need of new rubber to replace the worn tires on their cars have two ways to check for excessive tread wear. The first is a built-in method which makes use of molded-in wear bars. These are raised sections of rubber in the grooves that span the width of the tread. When the tread wears down to the point where it is flush with these wear bars (the bars will appear as smooth bands across the tread), it is an indication that the tread is past its limit and that the tire should be replaced.

HINT: The most thorough assessment of a tire's tread wear involves the use of a tread gauge at several points around the circumference of the tire, as well as across its tread.

Only Four Seniors On Squad North Quincy Baseball: In '97, Youth Is Served

By LIAM FITZGERALD
How young is the North Quincy High School baseball team?

Here's an example: sophomore Chris Bregoli, who will be the Red Raiders' starting shortstop for the second straight season, will be one of at least four sophomores in coach Dave Perdios' opening day lineup.

"There's a good chance we'll even have five sophomores starting for us," said Perdios, beginning his second year as North's coach. "How well we do this season depends a lot on how fast we come around, how quickly the younger kids adjust to play at the varsity level. The main thing we'll try to do is compete."

Along with Bregoli, only four other players with varsity experience are back to lead this year's squad. Heading that group is senior pitcher Ryan Herlihy, who Perdios hopes will make the jump from No. 2 to No. 1 starter. Herlihy is the only returning player who pitched for NQ's varsity in '96.

Seniors Eric Wirtz and Brian Beaton, who both saw significant varsity action last year, will also be counted on by Perdios to provide leadership and set an example for the younger players to follow.

"We hope they step up and play good ball for us this season," said Perdios. "With only four seniors out of 18 players, we're going to need a lot of leadership from the veteran players."

Wirtz, who played shortstop, second base and third base in '96, will man one of the infield positions, said Perdios. A center fielder and left fielder a season ago, Beaton will see time in center and in right field.

The Red Raiders' other senior, Mike Sampson, will pitch for the varsity after playing JV ball last season.

Junior Brian Linskey, a third baseman and outfielder last season, will play third, outfield and also pitch for the Red Raiders in '97.

The remaining positions? "The rest is up for grabs," said Perdios. "We're not close to putting a lineup on the field. We have a lot of good young talent, with over 80 kids coming out for the team. There's a lot of talent at the sophomore and freshman level, and we're looking forward to seeing what they can do.

"We lost eight guys from varsity after last season, so this may be our year to grow and take our lumps a bit. If we can get our early game in, we'll get the young kids some playing time and see how they adjust to the varsity level. Both hitting and pitching are all brand new to them, so it should be a real interesting year."

Regarding the Old Colony League race, Perdios said the top contenders should be Taunton, Barnstable, Falmouth, Weymouth and Bridgewater-Raynham.

"It's a very difficult league, like it usually is," he said. "We'll probably spend one more year of chasing them, but we will be competitive."

The Red Raiders are scheduled to open their season Monday at 4 p.m. against Plymouth South at Adams Field. If Adams is not playable following this week's blizzard, said Perdios, NQ may play at Plymouth South Monday afternoon. Next Wednesday at 4 p.m., North is scheduled to play at Falmouth.

Blizzard Forces Postponement Of Spring Sports Openers

Besides wreaking havoc on city power lines and delaying the morning commute, Tuesday's blizzard also forced the postponement of the spring sports season at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

Tuesday, both schools' volleyball teams were slated to kick off their seasons on the road, Quincy at Brookline, North at Wareham. Both matches were postponed, and North's match at Wareham was rescheduled for next Monday at 4 p.m.

Quincy's match today (Thursday) at 4 at Xaverian will go on as planned, unless one of the schools is not in session, according to Quincy Public Schools Athletic Director Bill Walker. Quincy's first home match Friday at 3:30 p.m.

against Brockton should be played as scheduled.

North's boys volleyball team is slated to host Durfee today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., unless either school is not in session, which would postpone the match, said Walker yesterday (Wednesday).

Both schools' outdoor track teams (boys and girls) are slated to kick off their seasons today (Thursday), but those events will also be postponed, according to Walker.

The Quincy girls tennis team is scheduled to open its season Friday at 3:30 at Middleborough, but Walker said the remains of the blizzard will likely prevent the match from happening.

Quincy's baseball opener Saturday at 10:30 a.m. against Boston Latin at Adams Field will also be postponed, said Walker.

The season opener for NQ's baseball team next Monday at 4 p.m. against Plymouth South at Adams Field is likely in jeopardy as well.

"I'm sure the field here won't be ready, so we'd have to move there, possibly, to get it in," said Walker.

Quincy and North's softball teams are scheduled to open next Monday, with Quincy at home against Taunton at 4 p.m. and North at Plymouth South at 4 p.m.

Walker added that all outside events--baseball, softball, track and tennis--are subject to how soon the snow melts over the next few days.

Quincy WalkAmerica For March Of Dimes April 27

The March of Dimes will hold the 1997 Quincy WalkAmerica to benefit those born with birth defects Sunday, April 27 at Adams Field.

The event is being sponsored by Harvard Pilgrim Health Care.

WCVB-TV's Liz Brunner and City Councillor Paul Harold, honorary chairmen, will lead over 250 local residents in the 6.2 mile route. There will also be a "Buggy Parade"--a quarter-mile kids walk--for those with small children. The kids will be able to have their picture taken with Arthur, have their faces painted, play with Andy the Ambulance, and win prizes. After the walk, there will be a cookout for all at Pageant Field.

WalkAmerica, the nation's first and largest walking event, has raised over $900 million for research, education and community outreach programs to help prevent birth defects and reduce infant mortality.

Quincy residents will join 22 other communities in Massachusetts to celebrate WalkAmerica on April 27. More than 10,000 walkers are expected to step out across the state, raising an estimated $660,000.

Walkers raise funds by asking friends, family members, business associates and neighbors to sign on as their sponsors. To participate in WalkAmerica, call the March of Dimes at 1-800-BIG-WALK or pick up a sponsor form at T.J. Maxx.

Four Students Win Peace Poster Contest

Four Quincy middle school students have won the local competition in the International Peace Poster Contest.

Jenny Kwong Lo from Atlantic Middle School, Daniel Galligan from Broad Meadows Middle School, Meredith Longille from Sterling Middle School and Andrea Marshall from Central Middle School are the winners of the Peace Poster Contest and have taken their first step to becoming an internationally-recognized artist by winning the local competition sponsored by the Quincy Lions Club.

The winners were recently honored at the Lions Club's weekly luncheon at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy. Among those in attendance were School Supt. Eugene Creedon, principals and the art teachers.

Club President John Reed said he was pleased with all the work the students put into the project: "From looking at the entries, it was obvious that the participants have creative minds and artistic abilities."

All four winners' posters will now advance to Round Two District Competition in Quincy where their entries will compete against entries from many other local Peace Poster Contests.

Lions Club International is sponsoring the contest to emphasize the importance of world peace to young people everywhere.

Ultimately, one grand prize will be selected from 24 international finalists. The prize includes a cash award of $1,500, plus an all-expense paid trip for the winners and two family members to New York City for the awards ceremony at the United Nations.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An important breakthrough comes now in your relationship with either a child or a romantic interest this week. An inhibition is swept away. A new plateau is reached over the weekend in a relationship matter.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This is no time to entrust others with your secrets, particularly those of a business nature. The week's financial backing will enable you to get a project going once you make some solid plans.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) This is not a good week to lend others money. You may be disappointed in a friendship. However, a reconciliation or improved rapport is achieved with a relative over the weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You may feel that a business associate has let you down in some way this week. However, your social circle widens. You may decide this weekend to join a club or organization.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You may feel that someone in business is not sincere and has not kept his word. Either a friend or a group activity gives a happy lift to your spirits. Later in the week, be sure you understand all that is expected of you on a work project.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A greater confidence in your abilities will cause you to expand your business aspirations this week. However, in romance, it's best to take it one day at a time. Over the weekend, you're called upon to resolve a domestic dispute.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You're on the right track toward the achievement of a major goal. A new job offer or financial opportunity happily comes your way by mid-week. One person you deal with is untruthful over the weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A desire for self-improvement may lead you to investigate a new course of study this week. You could be painfully aware of a relative's weak points by week's end because of this person's behavior. Try to be supportive.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You'll be taking steps that will lead to greater self-confidence in the near future. Be alert this week for a travel or educational opportunity. Romance isn't favored this weekend and could be somewhat iffy.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You could feel someone in business is trying to pull the wool over your eyes this week. A gift or financial assistance may come from a relative later in the week. Over the weekend, a worry is lifted from your shoulders.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Be careful in financial dealings this week. Someone may try to take advantage of your good nature. Avoid gambling or otherwise taking risks. Couples will reach an important new level of understanding this week.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) One problem that has concerned you for some time is now happily resolved. Be alert this week for a new business or financial opportunity. A relative requires your consideration this weekend.

BUSINESS

Good Brothers Assists South Shore Hospital With Outpatient Shuttle

Good Brothers Dodge and Good Brothers Ford recently donated a van to be used for outpatient transportation at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

With transportation being their specialty, and the South Shore Hospital urgently needing help, Gerry Good Jr., president of Good Brothers and a member of the Presidents Circle and Board of Overseers at South Shore Hospital, answered their call.

"When we heard cancer patients were taking cabs from their homes to The South Suburban Oncology Center in Quincy for radiation therapy, we put financial considerations aside to help these people.

"The hospital and the patients needed assistance, and we felt that we could meet their needs and in some small way address patients' quality of life issues at the hospital," Good said.

In addition, "The Good Neighbor Shuttle" will be used for a variety of other outpatient purposes at South Shore Hospital including transportation for disabled patients, elders and other South Shore residents challenged by transportation.

Good Brothers is continuously proving its dedication and commitment to the communities which it serves through charitable and civic contributions. This recent donation is just an example of how the company continues to address critical needs which arise in the community.

"Good Brothers' generous donation improves the quality of patients' lives. The hospital will now be able to service more people at once, especially at The South Suburban Oncology Center located in Quincy," said Peter Dubay, executive director of the South Shore Health and Education Foundation.

The van will be placed in service this month.

Equipment For Disabled Donated By Ayers To Dominican Republic

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, chairman of the council's Committee on Disability, recently donated equipment for the disabled to the Dominican Republic through the Wheels For The World program.

The program allows individuals or businesses to donate such equipment to other parts of the world. The City Council recently endorsed a proposal by Ayers that Quincy participate in Wheels For The World.

Ayers obtained the equipment given to the Dominican Republic through his own Helping Hand Program which collects used wheelchairs, hospital beds, scooters, commodes, tub benches, walkers and other equipment donated by Quincy residents. He made the donation after J. Hidalgo Ferreras, president of Sociedad Dominicana de Massachusetts Inc., learned of Ayers' program.

Ferrera and a crew went to Ayers' business, Ayers Handicap Conversion Center--which converts vans for use by the disabled--crated the equipment, and shipped it to the Dominican Republic.

Ayers praised those who made donations to the Helping Hand Program, saying the equipment would most likely you would be right... But studies of actual jackpot winners show that you'll soon be back down to your customary 7, as the novelty of the new money wears off (and you start worrying about losing it). It has been claimed that some winners who quit their jobs, moved to new neighborhoods and cut themselves off from old friends actually wound up less happy than they were before.

Dr. David G. Myers, author of "The Pursuit of Happiness: Who is Happy- and Why?" (1992) stresses that happiness is often relative... "I felt bad because I had no shoes, until I met a man who had no feet." To a great degree, happiness lies in who we choose to compare ourselves to. One can look "up the ladder" at seeming glamorous 10s and feel envious, or walk through a hospital and count your blessings.

It has been said that staying happy is something of a struggle for most of us... but couldn't it be said that this isn't necessarily a bad thing for our species?... For it's the restless quest to recapture past happinesses (where are those 10s of yesteryear?) that often keeps us struggling, changing, trying to adapt to those inevitable new challenges the world poses...

IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 96-171

June 17, 1996

ORDERED:

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy that the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by adding at the end of Title 8 the following new chapter which shall become effective thirty (30) days after final approval.

CHAPTER 8.32
BODY PIERCING*8.32.010 Rationale.

The City of Quincy is promulgating rules and regulations which provide minimum requirements to be met by any person performing body piercing upon any individual and for any establishment where body piercing is performed. These requirements shall include, but are not limited to, general sanitation of premises wherein body piercing is to be performed and sterilization of instruments. These rules and regulations are necessary to protect the public's health by preventing diseases, specifically including, but not limited to transmission of hepatitis B and/or human immunodeficiency virus (HIV/AIDS).

In addition, these rules and regulations shall establish procedures for registration with the health commissioner of the City of all persons performing body piercing, for the requirement of minimal training standards for the prevention of disease transmission and for knowledge of anatomy and physiology, for regular inspection of premises wherein body piercing is performed, and for revocation of the registration of any person or establishment deemed in violation of the rules and regulations promulgated under this section. An annual, non-transferable registration fee set by the City of Quincy shall be paid by any person or establishment registered under this section.

8.32.020 Definition.

The following words as used in this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires, shall have the following meanings:

"Antibacterial solution", any solution used to retard the growth of bacteria for application to human skin and includes all products so labeled.

"Body piercer", any person who performs piercing of any part of the body other than the earlobe which is pierced by use of an appropriate piercing gun.

"Body piercer Certificate of Registration", a written instrument authorizing the person named therein to engage in the work of body piercing.

"Body piercing", any method of inserting a needle into the body to place jewelry in the perforation produced by the needle. Establishments and/or individuals involved in the piercing of earlobes only and using approved ear piercing guns are subject only to the general rules and regulations, as provided in Section 8.32.030.

"Germicidal solution", any solution which destroys germs, and is so labeled.

"Health Commissioner", the health commissioner for the City of Quincy and his clerk, officers, agents, assistants and/or inspectors.

"Minor", any person under the age of eighteen (18).

"Operator", any person who owns, controls, operates, conducts or manages any piercing establishment, whether actually performing the work of piercing or not.

"Piercing studio", any room or space where piercing is practiced or where the business of piercing is conducted or any part thereof.

"Sanitary", clean and free of agents of infection or disease.

"Sanitized", effective bacterial treatment by a process that provides sufficient concentration of chemicals for enough time to reduce the bacteria count including pathogens to a safe level on equipment.

"Sterilization", holding in an autoclave for thirty (30) minutes, at twenty (20) pounds pressure, at a temperature of 275 degrees Fahrenheit.

8.32.030 General Rules and Regulations.

A. No minors shall receive body piercing, unless accompanied by a parent or legal guardian who has signed a consent form. No piercing of the genitalia of minors shall be allowed.

B. No piercing of animals shall be allowed in piercing studios.

C. Pre-procedural consultation to discuss body piercing, its risks and potential complications shall be required with each client. An informed consent form shall be signed by all clients. Clients shall be supplied a copy of the consent form and the consent form shall be kept on file by the body piercer. Clients should be told to consult with their physician regarding any medical condition which could be exacerbated by the piercing procedures (i.e., hemophilia, open sores, etc.).

D. Patrons who admit to or are obviously under the influence of alcohol or other judgment altering drugs shall not receive a body piercing.

E. Body piercers shall not be under the influence of any substance, legal or illegal which might impair their judgment or ability to properly perform body piercing.

G. Appropriate disinfectants must be used to disinfect the surface of the skin in the area to be pierced, prior to piercing.

H. Infections and adverse reactions of any kind suspected from the application of piercing which become known to the body piercer shall be reported to the health commissioner within 24 hours and the patron referred to a physician for examination.

I. Body piercers who receive needle stick injuries and/or any potential exposure to blood-borne pathogens on the job shall follow OSHA guidelines on the reporting and follow-up on needle stick injuries. OSHA guidelines for needle stick follow-up shall be posted in employee area. (Code of Federal Regulations 29 CFR 1910.1030(f)).

J. It is recommended that body piercers receive the series of Hepatitis B vaccinations and tetanus doses or booster shot.

K. The gun used for the piercing of ear lobes only must be disinfected with an EPA-approved disinfectant such as madicide or a similar product.

contaminated) should be disinfected with a non-hazardous hard-surface disinfectant approved by the E.P.A. All jewelry contaminated or potentially contaminated with blood borne pathogens (previously worn by another person) should be autoclaved, stored in sterile indicator bags, sealed and dated.

(4) All needles used in piercing must be pre-sterilized, used on one person, in one sitting, for single piercing and immediately disposed of in a medical sharps container.

(5) All forceps, tubes, etc. must be pre-sterilized stored in sterile indicator bags, sealed and dated, used on one person, in one sitting. After one such use, they must be autoclaved and stored in sterile indicator bags, sealed and dated.

D. Disinfection Routine

Body Piercers shall:

- (1) Put on fresh gloves for disinfection routine.
- (2) Move in such a manner to avoid re-contamination of surfaces.
- (3) Discard disposable items and remove from areas.
- (4) Remove plastic barrier film (if used) and disinfect surface areas, drawer pulls, cabinetry, telephones, lamps, chairs, sinks, ultrasonic tanks, tables, chairs, floor area and any other surfaces that might have become contaminated.
- (5) Dispose of single use (disposable) lap cloths.
- (6) Remove gloves, discard gloves and wash hands.
- (7) Double bag or use bio-hazard bags and discard materials after each client.
- (8) Discard materials in medically appropriate manner.
- (9) All reusable non-sterilizable implements such as marking pen should be non-porous and disinfected after each use with an E.P.A. approved hard-surface disinfection liquid. Non-spray wipes for surfaces and liquids for soaking jewelry are preferred over spray disinfectants which may disperse pathogens into the air.

(10) Cleansing with ultrasonic cleaners should be the rule for removal of bacitracin or other triple antibiotic solutions, blood and other particles from a used contaminated implement (i.e., jewelry, forceps, insertion tapers, and pliers). Followed by steam autoclave.

(11) Steam autoclave must be used on all equipment that may come in contact with the client or the jewelry (i.e., receiving tubes, rubber bands, insertion tapers, forceps, files, gauge wheels, pliers, etc.). Equipment shall be bagged, dated and sealed and stored in a non-porous, dark dry cool place such as a medical credenza, etc. Spore indicators shall be used with each load to ensure spore eradication. Instruments shall be autoclaved at a temperature of 273° F under pressure of 20 PSI for 30 minutes from start. Autoclaves shall be spore tested by independent laboratories at least once every month to induce efficacy. Immersion in cold germicidal solutions provides incomplete sterilization and is inappropriate.

(12) Appropriate ear piercing guns should only be used for piercing ear lobes and shall not be used for piercing any other body part.

(13) Iodine, antiseptics and other ointments used shall be applied with single use applicators. Applicators that have touched a client once may not be used to retrieve antiseptics, iodine, etc. from containers and shall be disposed of after single use.

8.32.070 Disposal of Waste in Accordance with City's Infectious Waste Ordinance.

A. Bar setups, piercing needles, razor blades or other sharp instruments which are not to be sterilized shall be disposed of in medically approved sharp containers that are puncture resistant and have tight fitting lids.

B. Containers of sharp wastes shall be sent to a facility where they are either incinerated or otherwise rendered nonhazardous.

C. Disposable waste shall be placed in easily cleanable, closed containers with tight fitting lids, to prevent leakage or spillage.

D. Waste containers shall be kept closed when not in use.

E. Disposable waste shall be handled, stored, and disposed of to minimize direct exposure of personnel to waste materials.

That Snowblower Would Have Come In Handy

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A few months ago, our friends John and Shirley Haynes offered us an extra snowblower that they no longer were using.

Because my husband had given me an electric snow shovel for Christmas, I asked our son Dom if he wanted it (he lives on the same street as we do) so he could then help us on our driveway if we needed it.

When he tried it back in December, it wasn't working properly, so a couple of weeks later, he brought it to the repair man. Sometime in mid-December, he called me and told me what the repairs would cost. Since it seemed high, and we were all busy Christmas shopping and, most importantly, we didn't even have enough snow for a plain shovel, we didn't give it another thought.

Time went on, and as we know, the snow never amounted to very much. So we all forgot about the snowblower.

But this week, when the big storm appeared out of nowhere, Dom decided to go to the repair shop and get the snowblower. Only this time, he had to walk about a mile in the heavy snow to get it.

When he arrived, all of the snowblowers were covered with snow with just a hint of a handle showing through. He said to the man, "I guess this isn't a good time to pick up my snowblower." And the man agreed.

There were a number of lawn mowers outside as well. And even though Dom remembered the number on the ticket, it didn't do any good, because that was also covered.

As luck would have it, and remembering a little imperfection on the handle, he found it on the second try. Now he had to wheel it back home. When he had left to go the repair shop, nothing was plowed, but on his return home, someone had almost magically plowed a way practically to his house.

He used it aggressively for about an hour and it ran out of gas. He came by our house to say he now had to walk to the gas station to get gas and oil.

During all of this time, I was making homemade turkey soup and pizza. So naturally, when he came back up to our house, he stopped for lunch. By this time, he needed some dry socks, a pair of boots and a dry pair of gloves. Next year we'll have the snowblower ready no matter what!

Ceremony In Memory Of Hospital Hunting Hall Honorees April 13

The Quincy Hospital Charitable Foundation and Auxiliary will hold a celebration of the lives of those whose names are inscribed on the plaque in the Quincy Hospital Hunting Hall of Founders.

The ceremony will take place Sunday, April 13 at 2 p.m. in Conference Rooms B & C in the Education Center, McCauley Building at the hospital, 114 Whitwell St.

The Hunting Hall of Founders is named for Dr. Nathaniel Hunting, a member of the medical staff of Quincy Hospital from its inception in 1890 and its first chief of staff in 1919 when the City of Quincy assumed responsibility for the hospital.

Refreshments will be served following the dedication.

Name plates can be purchased to honor or memorialize a loved one or friend at a cost $75 each and become a permanent part of the auxiliary plaque.

Bellotti, Mariano Seek Police Laser Sighting Systems

State Reps. Michael Bellotti and Ronald Mariano have co-sponsored legislation that would provide laser sighting systems for police departments throughout Massachusetts.

If passed, the legislation would offer a grant program that would provide User-Installed High Intensity Laser Sighting Systems to municipal police officers and state police troopers that would be administered by the Executive Office of Public Safety. It would also provide mandatory training and education of police officers on the usage of such a laser system.

Bellotti said, "This legislation will serve as another mechanism providing for the further safety of our police officers as well as enhancing their ability to apprehend and control suspects without risking injury to innocent bystanders."

Massachusetts law currently offers a similar grant program for bullet-proof vests. To date, 17,875 vests have been purchased and saved lives.

According to Mariano, "The cost of the laser system is about the same as a police vest. This is minor when compared to the number of lives it may save. Because the red laser dot is intimidating, it will decrease the number of shots fired because in case after case across the United States, suspects have complied after having the laser sight directed upon them."

Bellotti added, "The result of this program will be a decrease in liability, trauma and violent situations. In our continued efforts to fight crime, this system will be very manageable and cost effective. If it stops one violent act from happening, it is worth implementing."

Local Groups Organize For Project Bread's Walk For Hunger

Quincy community, school and religious groups are organizing walk teams to take part in the 28th annual Walk For Hunger.

In the wake of severe cuts to federal nutrition programs—totaling $528 million in Massachusetts—the 1997 Walk For Hunger Sunday, May 4 will be a critical lifeline to hungry people in Massachusetts, benefiting children and families in 111 communities across the state.

Locally supported programs include Atlantic Neighborhood Association, Protestant Social Service Bureau, Quincy Community Action Programs, Quincy Crisis Center, Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, Salvation Army-Quincy Temple Corps, and Seaside Advocacy Group.

"Despite a strong state economy and low unemployment, 61 percent of the emergency feeding programs funded by the Walk For Hunger reported an increase in the number of people turning to them for help during 1996," said Ellen Parker, executive director of Project Bread-The Walk For Hunger. Currently one in five children under age 12 face hunger in Massachusetts.

"The need for emergency food has remained fairly constant in Quincy," said Marion Eisenberg of the Emergency Food Center. "Now, however, we see several households more than once a month and many more unemployed. Walk for Hunger grant money helps us continue our work."

Registration for The Walk For Hunger will take place Sunday, May 4 from 7 to 9 a.m. at the Boston Common. The MBTA will offer free rides to Walkers between 6 and 9 a.m. on any subway, bus or commuter train. The 1997 Walk For Hunger Leadership Sponsors are Au Bon Pain, BankBoston, Raytheon and Stop & Shop.

Project Bread is a nonprofit community organization dedicated to alleviating, preventing and ending hunger in Massachusetts. To learn how you can participate in the Walk For Hunger, call Project Bread at (617) 723-5000.

Cheney Will Not Seek Re-Election

the non-alcoholic family celebration of the arts. In addition, he created and chairs Van About Town, a senior citizen shuttle service.

Cheney also sponsors an annual family carnival, the next one to be held later this month at Faxon Field. He serves as chairman of the newly-created Presidents Day celebration in Quincy Center and also the Arts in the Parks program, a summer concert series oriented for families currently in its third year of operation.

Cheney served two years as City Council president—and as such, was acting mayor when Mayor James Sheets was out of the city—during which time he initiated the recodification of the city ordinances and strongly supported the rebuilding of many of the city's schools as well as bonding for the construction of new schools.

For a short while,

Cheney assisted with the responsibilities of Ward 2 while then-Ward 2 Councilor Ted DeCristofaro was recuperating from illness. During that time, he co-sponsored the rezoning of the Fore River shipyard for shipbuilding and facilitated for the construction of Roche Bros. Supermarket and the soon-to-be-opened Wal Mart store on Falls Blvd. through the Planned Unit Development process.

He also has arranged for the donation of land to Habitat for the Humanities for the construction of eight to 10 homes for low-income, qualified families. Construction of the homes is to begin later this year.

Cheney has received several awards during his 13 years in office, including one from Fr. Bill's Place for his work with the homeless; the prestigious Probis Award from Work Inc. for his work with the disabled; the Carmine D'Olimpio Labor Award for his dedicated work for the labor community and most recently, the Humanitarian Award from the Human Relations Committee for his work on civil rights issues. In addition, he received an award from the Germantown Community Council for his dedicated work with the Germantown community.

"Although I may not be in public office in 1998, I will have the opportunity to see some of the programs that I have put in place benefit the people of Quincy," he said. "For that, I will receive a great deal of satisfaction."

Cheney added he would like to thank the people of Quincy for giving him the opportunity to serve them for the past 13 years. He did not rule out the possibility of returning to politics someday in Quincy.

He also said the department heads, the mayor's office and all the city workers he has worked with have been extremely cooperative and that he will "miss them sorely."

"Department heads and staff people that perform day-to-day operations of city government make officials look good in the public eye," he said.

Cheney said he also wants to thank all the people with whom he has worked, particularly the City Council staff members who have worked tirelessly and given him much assistance.

Cheney said he is committed to working hard for the remaining nine months of his term in office.

"I committed to the people of Quincy that I would work hard every day that I was in public office," he said. "My intention is to fulfill that commitment."

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Senior citizens in Quincy will be able to earn money that can be used to help offset the cost of their real estate tax bills beginning this summer.

The City Council unanimously approved plans for the Senior Work Abatement Program (SWAP) Monday night. The program, originally proposed by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, will go into effect July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

Under the program, Quincy residents age 60 or older will be able to work up to 100 hours for various city departments in order to earn as much as $550 to be credited to their next quarterly real estate bill.

The plan calls for the program initially "to accommodate no less than 30 individuals," according to Raymondi's written recommendation. Seniors will be placed in various departments according to their skills.

Bernice Mader, Mayor James Sheets' administrative assistant who served on a task force along with Raymondi and other city officials to help plan for the SWAP, said the program

Residents Still Worried About 700-Foot Tower

Concerned West Quincy residents attended Monday night's City Council hearing to hear Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey provide an update on a controversial 700-foot communications tower in their neighborhood.

Mulvey appeared before the council at the request of Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, who said he has been contacted by concerned neighbors about new microwave dishes and antennae being placed on the tower, which residents have been angry about since it first went up four years ago.

Mulvey said there is not much the city can do about the tower, as long as its owner acts within the boundaries of the law. He noted that under Quincy's zoning law and the new federal telecommunications act, the structure is beyond city regulations.

The inspector agreed, however, to make all written information about the tower available in the City Council Office at City Hall for residents who want to learn more about it.

The tower, located in the hills off Ricciuti Drive, is owned by Industrial Communications and Electronics of Marshfield. It now has 68 small dishes and antennae, which are used by a number of private companies such as Sprint and Nynex and a number of data-transmission firms.

In addition, several government agencies, such as the federal Justice Department, and large contractors also have two-way communication equipment on the structure.

However, Mulvey noted that the current wattage of

For Protection Against Domestic, Sexual Crimes $500,000 Grant To Help Curb Family Violence

The city has received nearly $500,000 in federal funding under the 1994 Violence Against Women Act that will serve to help strengthen Quincy's domestic violence program.

The announcement was made last week at a press conference at City Hall. Among those in attendance were Congressman William Delahunt, who co-founded the program in 1978 as Norfolk County district attorney; Mayor James Sheets, Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee; Planning Director Richard Meade, who worked with Quincy District Court's Probation Department to apply for the funding and Lt. Thomas Malvesti of the Quincy Police Department.

The funding totals $489,000. The majority of the money comes in the form of a $357,000 discretionary grant from the Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies program that will be used to establish a domestic and sexual violence protection unit within the city's probation department.

In addition, there are three grants received under the Law Enforcement and Prosecution Grants program totaling $132,000: a $52,000 prosecution grant for the Norfolk County district attorney's office, a $50,000 victim services grant to DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) Inc. and a $30,000 law enforcement grant to the Quincy Police Department.

Officials expressed tremendous enthusiasm over the funding, particularly the $357,000 grant.

"Quincy has been recognized for decades nationally for its domestic violence efforts," said Sheets. "The city's program has served as a model for others in the country. With this funding, we'll be able to take the program to a new level."

"It's rewarding when my colleagues (in Washington) come to me and recognize our work (in Quincy)," said Delahunt, who noted that in 90 percent of domestic violence cases, "the violence was learned at home."

"Because of this, we not only will see a reduction in violent crimes, but in all categories of crime," he added.

Raymondi said in many domestic violence cases, "the victims are often left by the wayside. I support this initiative. I think it's critically important."

The $357,000 grant will help the Quincy Police Department and other local criminal justice agencies, including Quincy District Court, the court's Probation Department and victim treatment providers, establish a Second Generation Domestic and Violence Intervention Program.

Highlights of the program will include:

- Establishment of a quick response team to arrest identified abusers who abscond, violate the conditions of probation or release, or further threaten their victims. The effort will include creation of a shared violent predator database—complete with digitized photo and fingerprints—of all high risk offenders in the community as well as limited overtime reimbursement for Quincy and other area police officers toward that end.

- Establishment of a comprehensive criminal justice victim support and service program to guarantee that victims receive the same level of attention, services, support, information and treatment the criminal justice system currently focuses on offenders. For example, for the first time, full-time victim advocates will be stationed in the Quincy Probation Office to serve victims, even though the

Sawyer Towers To Get New Security Cameras

New security cameras soon will be installed at Sawyer Towers.

The City Council appropriated $50,000 for the cameras Monday night. The money was taken from the city's federally-funded Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) account.

Sawyer Towers, located at 95 Martensen St., is a senior complex that falls under the jurisdiction of the Quincy Housing Authority.

Both Councillor Paul Harold and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee, expressed support of the appropriation.

Harold also said the Housing Authority should give a presentation on security improvements at its buildings to the council as soon as possible.

Shaw's Parcel Rezoned At Quincy Ave.

The City Council voted Monday night to rezone a parcel that includes the Shaw's Supermarket on Quincy Avenue from Business "B" zoning to Planned Unit Development (PUD).

The area includes land located on the northwesterly side of Scammell Street and the northeasterly side of Quincy Avenue.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi had pushed for the rezoning after Shaw's announced plans to raze its current supermarket and the former Quincy Oil headquarters next door and build a newer, bigger store.

Although that plan has since been withdrawn, Raymondi was upset that Shaw's had obtained a permit from the Quincy Building Department for the project without notifying neighbors. That will not be possible under the PUD zoning, which will make the council the special permit granting authority for the site and require any future developer expressing interest in the location to receive council approval.

Raymondi and Guido Pettinelli, an area resident, spoke in favor of the rezoning at a public hearing held earlier in the evening. Twenty-nine other residents signed in support. There was no opposition.

Home Rule Petition Passed

Enhanced 911 System Gets Council Green Light

A home-rule petition to implement the Enhanced 911 phone system in Quincy was unanimously approved by the City Council Monday night.

After receiving the signature of Mayor James Sheets this week, the petition was sent to the state Legislature for final approval. Sheets said Tuesday he expects the system to be up and running by July or August.

The E911 system, which provides quicker, more efficient service than regular 911, will be divided between the Quincy Police Station and the Quincy Fire Department's headquarters on Quincy Avenue. The council wants the setup to remain basically the same as that of the existing 911 system, with five units at the police station and two at fire headquarters.

The city's original E911 plan called for both police and fire calls to be handled at the police station. In February, the president of the police patrolmen's union and a civilian call taker spoke in favor of that plan, while the president of the firefighters union spoke in opposition.

City officials who had backed the original plan, including Sheets and Data Processing Director Robert Brennan, said at the time that the single-site arrangement is the nationwide trend for E911.

Councillors, however, said they feel more comfortable with the idea of firefighters handling fire calls and police officers handling police calls.

Sheets said he does not mind implementation of the two-site system, as long as councillors provide him with any additional funding that may be required to keep the system in line with state requirements. As it stands, E911 in Quincy will be implemented through a $700,000 bond passed in February by the council, according to City Auditor Robert Foy.

The state has mandated that all Massachusetts communities have the E911 system by the end of the year.

New Surgery Chairman In Quincy Takes Over July 1 Partnership Between Quincy, B&W Hospitals

Quincy Hospital has reached a new partnership with Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston that will result in a new chairman of surgery fully taking over at Quincy Hospital July 1.

Dr. Magruder Donaldson, vice chairman of surgery at Brigham and Women's, will under the agreement immediately begin spending his mornings at Quincy Hospital before taking over as surgery chairman this summer. He will then divide his days between the two hospitals.

Anderson was introduced at a press conference last Thursday at Quincy Hospital.

Officials said if the arrangement works out, the two institutions may extend their affiliation beyond surgery and possibly even send medical residents to do their training at Quincy Hospital.

Quincy Hospital promised to bring in a Boston teaching hospital after two of its busiest surgeons removed the wrong kidney from a cancer patient last May. However, Donaldson said he will not make any immediate changes and will get to know the staff for about six to eight weeks first before beginning to chart a course of action.

He added that his duties will include "minimizing the opportunity for inadvertent problems and errors" and "maintaining quality while eliminating waste."

Donaldson also said the Quincy Hospital Surgery Department already has improved procedures and does not need major changes, only minor ones.

Both hospitals will help pay for the salary of Donaldson, who will spend 60 percent of his time in Quincy and the rest at Brigham and Women's. Quincy Hospital Director/CEO Ralph DiPisa said he does not yet know what that will cost the city-owned hospital.

Officials from Brigham and Women's said the affiliation will also work in their interest, since many large teaching hospitals have been pursuing ties with community hospitals where doctors control many of the patient referrals into Boston.

Officials said doctors perform 26,000 operations a year at Brigham and Women's in a department built for only 22,000 while 5,500 operations are performed annually by Quincy Hospital surgeons. A number of Brigham and Women's patients, particularly those seen by Donaldson, will now be seen in Quincy.

DR. MAGRUDER DONALDSON (center) is welcomed to Quincy Hospital by Director/CEO Ralph DiPisa as Jeffrey Otten, president of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, looks on. Under a new agreement between the two institutions, Donaldson will continue to serve as vice chairman of surgery at Brigham and Women's while also joining Quincy Hospital as chairman of surgery. $70,000 Appropriated For Webster School Renovations Architectural plans for renovations to the Point-Webster Elementary School received support from the City Council Monday night.

The council voted to appropriate $70,000 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account for the architectural work.

The school is to be converted to a middle school following the opening of the Sheriff Clifford Marshall Elementary School currently under construction. The changes at the Webster school and the new building are expected to help relieve overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School.

Middle school students from Quincy Point currently attend classes at Sterling, which is located in South Quincy.

DOVE To Expand Asian Services With $50,000 Grant

DOVE, Quincy's shelter for battered women and their children, has been awarded a $50,000 grant under the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA).

Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci notified DOVE of the grant. VAWA grants fund various criminal justice and victims programs aimed at helping bring an end to violence against women.

Program director for the VAWA Program is Rai Kowal.

The DOVE proposal targets programs to the Asian-American population, in addition to offering expanded services to victims of all races.

In order to implement a program of expanded community support services with an emphasis on culturally-appropriate programs for local Asian women, DOVE will hire a Cantonese-speaking advocate. The Asian Task Force Against Domestic Violence will provide the advocate with support, guidance and technical assistance in cultivating relationships in the community and creating multicultural services.

The Asian American Service Organization will also provide access to local support and clients.

The Quincy Police Department and Norfolk County District Attorney's Office will assist the program to develop contacts and garner support with the local community and provide referrals.

Outreach supporters point out Quincy has an Asian community of nearly 6,000 Asians and Pacific Islanders, according to recent census figures.

The Clifford Marshall School

Reaction to naming the new Quincy Point elementary school after late Sheriff Clifford Marshall has been most favorable.

It seems to have been one of the most popular decisions ever in the city.

The School Committee unanimously approved the name as proposed by Vice Chairman Ron Mariano, a long-time friend.

MARIANO

"He did an awful lot for Ward 2 and he did an awful lot for the city," said Mariano. "It was a logical step for me."

Outside of the Marshall family probably two of the happiest people in Quincy are two more long-time friends, Bill Draicchio and Guido Pettinelli.

Draicchio last December proposed in this column that the school be named for Marshall. And Pettinelli backed him up with a letter to The Sun.

Draicchio was "Officer Bill" to thousands of Quincy Point youngsters he safely crossed at busy Southern Artery and Washington St. as a member of the Police Department for 34 years.

Pettinelli was the School Safety Officer before he retired from the department after many years service.

Although Marshall grew up in Merrymount and not Quincy Point, Draicchio and Pettinelli noted that he "grew deep roots" in the Point. He launched his 31-year political career there as Ward 2 councillor in 1965 and served five terms.

He was a founder and president of the Ward 2 Civic Association and remained active there.

He served three terms as a state representative from the Quincy Point area and was elected to four terms as sheriff.

He never got to finish that fourth term as sheriff, losing a courageous battle against a brain tumor last August. He was only 58.

He had a most impressive political career. And a rare one. He never lost an election.

And if naming the school after him was a referendum question on the ballot, he would have won that one, too--by a landslide.

Ward 5 Association To Elect Officers April 14

The new Ward 5 Community Association will elect officers at a meeting Monday, April 14 at 7 p.m. in the Community Room of the Beechwood Knoll School on Fenno St.

Members will elect a president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer. These will be the first officers elected for the group which was formed last month. Any resident of Ward 5 is welcome to attend and participate.

The Ward 5 Community Association was formed to build community cohesion, augment city services and provide information to the citizens of Ward 5. There is no fee to join and new members are welcome.

Meetings will be held the second Monday of every month. For more information, call Joseph Murphy at 472-0825 or Joseph Mulvey at 472-5862.

The reason there is no "J" street in Washington, D.C. is because "J" as written during the eighteenth century, was often confused with other letters of the alphabet, particularly "I."

MARSHALL

IF YOU HAVEN'T heard John McDermott sing, you don't know what you're missing. But you'll get a chance to hear him in person tomorrow (Friday) as he makes a Quincy appearance.

McDermott, one of the great singing talents of today, will appear in concert at 8 p.m. at Quincy High School to benefit United First Parish Church.

McDERMOTT

The popular Irish tenor will sing numbers from his four Capitol Records compact discs: "The Danny Boy Collection," "Old Friends," "Christmas Memories" and his latest, "Love Is A Voyage."

Tickets are $25. And if there are still some left, they can be had by calling Connie Murphy at 770-3310.

Besides being a great talent, McDermott has the reputation of being a real nice guy. He willingly appears at benefits for worthy causes. And if it's for a veterans' group, just pull up the nearest piano and he'll sing his heart out.

WEDDING BELLS RANG OUT Saturday for Ward

6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers and pretty Maureen McCarthy of Wollaston. They were married at St. Ann's Church. Council President Peter Kolson sang the Communion hymn.

AYERS

That reduces the number of eligible bachelors in the city council to three: Michael D'Amico, Paul Harold and Pat McDermott.

A former Ward 6 councillor, Tom Gilmartin, who served in the 1940's and has been an Ayers booster and confidant, was among the invited guests. But Tom, who was injured in a fall a few weeks ago, made it to the church but was not up to going to the reception.

FORMER DISTRICT COURT Presiding Justice Robert Prince, who went on to become a superior court judge and is now retired, has a good reason to keep coming back to Quincy.

Although he has lived in Brockton 40 years, he comes back to get his hair cut at the his favorite barber shop. That's John's Hair Styling at Temple and Hancock Sts., Quincy Sq.

And if anyone has an appropriate name, it's His Honor. He's a real prince of a person.

Which will give them a daughter and a son. Colleen, 21 months, is excited waiting to meet her little brother. He won't be Mike Jr., but will be named Philip after an uncle.

JOANNE FALCO, who did a nice job managing someone else's downtown hair salon, is now doing her own thing. She recently opened Professional Cuts, Etc. at 1436 Hancock St. and is off to a good start.

Supports Marina Bay Senior Living Campus

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The proposed Marina Bay Senior Living Campus is a wonderful way for the area to be developed.

Not only will the facilities provide many employment opportunities, they will also provide the perfect retirement setting for people in our area.

I grew up in Squantum and have witnessed the transformation in the area from Boston Harbor Marina to Marina Bay. This change has come about with lots of community opposition and fighting. This is the first project that seems to have the support of the community and city leaders, yet that support is contingent upon unreasonable expectations of Mr. Gordon and the other developers.

The City of Quincy needs to reevaluate its position on the roads in Marina Bay. This area provides tax revenue to the city which will be increased with the proposed development. Tax money should be used to upgrade and improve the roads in Marina Bay.

From what I understand, all the developers are more than willing to do their share to make necessary improvements, but the City of Quincy should do its share as well. It will be a shame if this project is forced to pull out because of this unreasonable expectation.

Groups Oppose 'Meadows' Project At Marina Bay

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Friday, March 21 the Quincy Citizens Association, The Friends of the Neponset Estuary, and the Sea-side Environmental Alliance appealed a March 7 decision by the Quincy Conservation Commission to allow a six-story, 136-unit condominium building, "The Meadows," to be built in the woods between the Victory Road rotary and the Billings Creek salt marsh at Marina Bay.

The appeals triggered a review by the state Department of Environmental Protection, which has up to 70 days to determine whether the commission's decision complies with the Massachusetts Wetlands Act, the law the commission is charged to uphold.

About six acres of marsh-edge woods would be bulldozed, filled, and paved for the building and its parking lot. These woods are the last remaining at Marina Bay, and are locally known as the "Bird Sanctuary" for their wealth of wildlife. No woods of comparable size exist anywhere on the Neponset River in Quincy and Dorchester.

Our group believes that this site is critical to the maintenance of natural and scenic values in the Squantum/Marina Bay area. We will continue to oppose the Meadows project, and to promote acquisition of the site for public open space.

Urges Support For Hunger Walk

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to ask everyone in Quincy to join together with friends and neighbors on Sunday, May 4 and Walk for Hunger in Boston.

Your help is desperately needed to raise money to support Quincy Community Action Programs/Emergency Food Center and others like it in our area.

We see all kinds of people at QCAP—children, families, our elderly neighbors. It is tragic that people in our community must face the difficult choice between paying for rent, heat, medical care and food.

Recent cuts to nutrition programs will force even more people into crisis in Quincy. Your participation in the Walk for Hunger will alleviate some of this hardship by funding Quincy Community Action Programs and similar programs in this area.

I encourage everyone in Quincy to participate as a walker, sponsor or volunteer. Please call Project Bread at (617) 723-5000 as soon as possible to find out how you can get involved. I look forward to seeing many familiar faces from Quincy on Sunday, May 4.

Three-Alarm Fire At Lincoln Theater

By PAUL HAROLD

One hundred movie goers and 40 women bowlers were evacuated from the Lincoln Theater and bowling lanes as a smoky three-alarm fire hit the Quincy Point landmark.

The $25,000 in damages was confined mostly to the rear of the bowling lanes and owner Alcide Beaumier of Claremont Ave. expected that the theater could open as early as next week.

Curbside Leaf Pickup Postponed To April 21

Because of the April Fool's Day Blizzard, curbside leaf pickup in Quincy has been rescheduled to begin Monday, April 21 and run until Friday, May 2.

The original start date of the program was April 7.

Leaves will be picked up on the same day as regular trash by a separate truck. They should be put out for pickup either loose in uncovered trash barrels or in 30-gallon biodegradable kraft paper bags only. Leaves will not be accepted in plastic bags.

Since the fall of 1990, the city, through its refuse contractor, Browning-Ferris Industries, has picked up leaves curbside for municipal composting. Leaves are brought to the decomposition pad at the Department of Public Works Corporation Yard at 55 Sea St. There, the leaves decompose into a rich loam, which is reused by the city and made available to residents at no charge.

This year it will be mandatory to prepare leaves either loose in barrels, or use biodegradable 30-gallon kraft bags, which automatically decompose along with the leaves. Leaves will no longer be accepted in plastic bags for the following reasons:

First, the state DEM has imposed a statewide moratorium on plastic at landfills. Second, although advertised as such, the plastic bags are not biodegradable and cost the city time and labor to remove from leaf piles before natural decomposition can occur.

The program has been successful for past five and a-half years, keeping an estimated 20,000 tons of leaves out of landfills and saving the city the associated costs. The elimination of plastic bags will further improve the program and provide additional savings, according to officials.

Biodegradable kraft paper bags are available in grocery stores, neighborhood convenience stores, and home improvement outlets in packages of five for less than $2. The bags are easier to use than plastic bags for picking up raked leaves, hold more leaves, and are fully recyclable, decomposing along with the leaves.

BFI, the municipal waste contractor, will attempt to make the change go as smoothly as possible by tagging improperly prepared leaves, at the beginning of the collection program. It is expected that tagging will effectively inform anyone who is unaware of the policy change.

For more information, call Michael Wheelwright at 376-1901.

Inter-Agency Council Meeting April 15

The Inter-Agency of the South Shore will meet Tuesday, April 15 at noon in the Conference Room at

THE ALCOHOL FAT TRAP

Alcohol has been getting some good press lately, with several studies showing that moderate drinking may actually be a healthy habit for the average non-alcoholic individual. Sure enough, however, researchers are now reporting at least one drawback to regular drinking: It can pack on the fat. The problem appears to be two-fold. First, the body doesn't seem to count calories from alcohol when it gives feedback on being full. In other words, eat a sandwich and you feel satisfied; drink a couple of martinis and you're just as hungry as before. Calories pile up. Second, the body tends to burn up the calories from alcohol before dipping into fat reserves for energy, leaving fat to settle onto the waist and hips.

HINT: Obesity is one of the top risk factors for many serious medical conditions, including heart disease and diabetes.

Enjoying an occasional glass of wine or a beer is one of life's small pleasures that affords no real danger when done in moderation. However, we urge you to get the facts for yourself by asking your doctor what is advisable for you. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, at 700 Congress St., in Quincy or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Week Of The Young Child Begins April 14

Mayor James Sheets will officially kick off the festivities for this year's Week of the Young Child Monday, April 14 at 9 a.m. at Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

The mayor will greet parents, children, and teachers for a continental breakfast, story time and music program. Invited dignitaries will see firsthand how high-quality early childhood services are meeting the needs of young children and their families in the community.

This year's Week of the Young Child theme, "The Early Years are Learning Years...Make Them Count!"

is a reminder that early childhood lays the foundation for all later learning and shapes whether children succeed in school and later life. The week is a time to reflect on how well children's experiences in Quincy are preparing them to take full advantage of their educational opportunities and to become effective citizens, capable workers, and loving parents of the next generation and to develop specific strategies for improving the quality of life for young children in our community.

Other activities through the week, sponsored locally by the Quincy Early Childhood Advisory Council, will include parent workshops, children's activities and family events.

All event details are listed in a Calendar of Events available at all public schools, private daycare centers, preschool programs and children service organizations.

For more information, call Jeanne Satterlund at 472-2960 or Nancy Harvey at 984-8777.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Pet Shop Popular With Children Sandy's Pet Grooming Gives 'Member Of Family' Care

By LIAM FITZGERALD

To most pet owners, their pets are part of the family, and keeping them healthy, happy and looking their best are typically among the owners' top priorities.

Sharing this belief are Sandra Bradley, owner of Sandy's Pet Grooming, 233A Atlantic St., North Quincy, and her knowledgeable, helpful staff.

"We take the utmost care of your pets because they're part of your family, and you pay us to do our best to care for them," said Bradley, a Quincy native. "You have to listen to the customers, too. You can't do your own thing. Communication is the key; it makes the customers feel more comfortable with leaving their pets in your care."

An unpleasant experience with a pet groomer resulted in Bradley deciding to open a pet grooming shop of her own to prevent a similar experience from occurring again.

A veterinarian assistant with Dr. Pet Grooming in Braintree for seven years, Bradley originally wanted to become a veterinarian, but later decided grooming was the field she wanted to enter.

"I've always like animals, and wanted to be a vet originally, but decided I wanted to create, to give the customers what they want," she said.

Previously located at 68 Newbury Ave. in North Quincy, Bradley again saw the need to find a larger area in which to continue her business. Moving to the Atlantic St. location tripled the shop's space (900 sq. ft. to 2700 sq. ft.).

It was when Bradley moved the business to Atlantic St. that she decided to open a pet shop within the grooming shop. Consequently, the pet shop brought in a whole new audience--children.

"The shop's geared towards children," said Bradley. "If it weren't for them, parents wouldn't come in and make purchases. The children don't see unusual pets too often, so they love seeing the eels, spiders, tarantulas, hedgehogs, scorpions, snakes and others, including rabbits and turtles."

"We have a lot of kids come in after school and on weekends," said Mary-Margaret Alessi, an employee at the shop. "The kids do projects that deal with animals. We've loaned out some rats and other animals for school projects, along with magazines and books. That way, they learn respect for the lower life

AT SANDY'S PET GROOMING, 233A Atlantic St., North Quincy, taking the utmost care of a customer's pet is the top priority of owner Sandra Bradley and her knowledgeable, helpful staff. forms."

An eight- and an 11-year-old come into the shop, with their parents' consent, and work with the other employees while learning more about animals.

"They love it; they clean the fish tanks and learn more about fish while they're here," said Bradley. "The kids just want to touch the rabbits and turtles and have a good time here. I tell them, 'This is your store, have fun.'"

The nearby day care centers bring the children to the shop, said Bradley, who lets them pet the animals during their visit.

"It's a little field trip, something to break the day up for them and have fun at the same time," said Bradley.

Among the numerous items available at the shop include pet products for cats and dogs, fish products, cages and food.

"Mary will order things if we don't have them here," said Bradley. "We try to get what the customer wants, but if we can't, we're honest with them and tell them to go to some place bigger."

Among the pets Bradley and her staff groom are dogs, rabbits, ferrets, guinea pigs and even a pot-bellied pig on one occasion.

The shop has a separate area in the back where the grooming is performed and a large window through which the pet owner can oversee the process.

"There's plenty of room in our grooming area; no one is cramped for space," said Bradley. "We want the animals to feel comfortable."

"We encourage people to come and take a look around, see what we have to offer, anytime you want. You can see how we work, because everything is so open. You can see what's going on with your pet."

Another reason Bradley went into the pet grooming business was a desire not to sit around the house and do nothing all day.

"My five kids were all grown up, and I wasn't about to stay home all day and do nothing," she said. "That's not for me. Besides, I live on Billings St., so I can walk here easily."

A lot of the new business the shop acquires is through word of mouth, said Alessi.

"We make up cards for our new customers," said Alessi, "and I made up 50 on January 28 and within a month, we needed more cards. Most of our business comes from people telling other people about us. We also answer the phone a lot, which helps, too."

Bradley credits her family with helping her get started and for being there for her over the years.

"If it weren't for family and good help, I wouldn't be here running this place," she said. "That's how it all began."

If she has her way, Bradley would like to stay right where she is, not get any bigger and lose sight of what is important--the individual customer.

"When you get too big, you can't oversee everything," said Bradley. "I'd like to stay this way forever; it's a lot easier to manage. I'm happy with how everything is going these days."

At least eight people are employed at the shop, all part-time, including Sean Maloney, Jennifer Skotniczny, Carrie Foley, Susan Woods, Kathleen Morris and Tom Enos.

"They work the hours that are good for them," said Bradley. "We all work together well."

Open seven days a week, Sandy's Pet Grooming hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Summarizing the shop's message, Alessi offered this appropriate conclusion:

"It's a fun place to be."

Hey, kids!
Here's a chance to win a Disney Family Vacation for Four and test how observing you are.

The contest is sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun and Fine Light Photography.

It is open to all Quincy children, kindergarten through Grade 8. There is no entry fee.

If you are real observing you could be the one to win a five day/four night vacation at Walt Disney World resort for two adults and two children.

It includes round trip airline tickets from Boston to Orlando, Fla. and four-day passes. You will stay inside Walt Disney World at either the Caribbean Beach, Port Orleans or Dixie Landings Resort. Hotel taxes are included.

All you have to do to qualify for a chance to win the grand prize is to correctly identify the addresses of the architectural details of 16 Quincy Center buildings in photos taken by Fine Light Photography.

The 16 buildings, Hancock St. from Adams St. to Temple St. to School and Elm Sts., are shown on this page. Four large versions of the buildings will appear in The Sun each week for four weeks beginning with this week's issue.

Flyers showing all 16 buildings have been distributed to the Quincy schools. The entry form on the flyers or the one appearing in The Sun may be submitted for consideration.

Deadline for submitting the form is May 9. Submit them to: QCBPA Office, 1416 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

As a guest of one of the three resorts, you will be in the heart of all the fun and receive complimentary transportation throughout Disney World.

You will enjoy unlimited admission to all three theme parks and get into the Magic Kingdom on specific days even before the park opens to everyone else.

Those submitting the most correct answers will be eligible for a drawing on May 17 that will decide the winner.

Entry forms will also be available at the QCBPA Office, Fine Light Photography, 1386 Hancock St., and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St. For more information, call 471-3232.

YOUR MOVE

Avoid Headaches, Get a Move-On Early

By Steve Mumma
For News USA

(NU) - Every July or August you can scan just about any newspaper and find an article about moving. Some relay homeowner horrors about moves that went sour. Most give tips on what you should know to avoid problems and guarantee a smooth move. Unfortunately, if you're moving and haven't planned yet, by the time you read the article, chances are the advice comes too late. To avoid headaches, or worse, you need to get a move-on.

Nearly 45 million Americans relocate each year, most of them during May through September. Last summer, the moving industry was so busy that some late planning consumers found themselves without transportation on moving day. Van lines were at capacity. So, the single best piece of advice you can get about moving is to plan early — plan now.

There's no such thing as too soon to start. If you're planning to move six months from now, you should already be making plans. The sooner you get started, the better off you'll be. You won't get stuck with the only available mover. Instead, you can shop around, get estimates, and feel comfortable about the decisions you make.

Experts tell us moving is the third most stressful event in your lifetime, behind death of a family member and divorce. While it may never be stress-free, there's no reason to expose yourself to the added strains of being ill-prepared.

One way to avoid moving migraines — and the summer premium nearly all movers charge — is to move during the off-season. Here are some "first steps" to get you started on the road to a good move:

- Contact up to three movers.
- Check to see if each company is licensed. Contact your state Department of Transportation, Public Utilities Commission or the U.S. Department of Transportation.

- Call the Better Business Bureau in the county where the mover is located to see if any negative reports have been filed against your prospective mover.

- Ask your friends for referrals. If your friends were happy, you probably will be.
- Get written estimates (at least two or three). There are three kinds of estimates: non-binding, binding and not-to-exceed estimates. Make sure you clearly understand the terms before signing on the dotted line.

The simple act of planning ahead can make all the difference between a successful relocation and a moving nightmare.

Look For Signs Of Quality In A Home

(NAPS)—A "For Sale" sign isn't the only sign you should pay attention to when shopping for a new home. Homebuyers who want to get the most for their money should also look for signs of quality in home construction.

These include:

- new name brand appliances and fixtures.
- a sound roof.
- new windows.
- CPVC plumbing.

Made of a special vinyl material, FlowGuard®

You can't tell from the outside, but CPVC plumbing inside means quality home construction.

Gold™ CPVC plumbing pipe from The BFGoodrich Company is preferred to copper or polybutylene because it combines performance, durability, reliability, safety and cost savings.

Unlike copper or other metal pipes, CPVC plumbing will not rust, pit or scale and you don't have to worry about contamination of your drinking water. It also helps the hot water in your pipes stay hot longer so you can save money on heating costs. It costs less to install, too.

For free brochures on FlowGuard Gold CPVC piping, call The BFGoodrich Company at 800-331-1144.

Scholarships Available For Real Estate Professionals, Students

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) Charitable and Educational Foundation announces the availability of a new series of educational grants for individuals pursuing a professional designation or degree program in real estate or another industry-related field.

This year, four $500 educational scholarships are available through the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's 1997 Scholarship Fund. To be eligible to receive a scholarship, students must be a resident of Massachusetts pursuing a college-level educational degree program or professional designation (such as GRI, CRS, CRB, CCIM, CPM, CREA, SIOR, ALC or LTC) in real estate or another industry-related field of study.

Applications are welcome from both MAR members and the public. However, trustees of the foundation, members of their immediate family, and relatives of the association president are ineligible to receive scholarship funds.

Qualified applications must complete a one-page application form and submit it to the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation by Aug. 1. Selected applicants also will be required to appear before the foundation's Scholarship Committee to complete a personal interview.

Real estate licensees and others interested in learning more about the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's 1997 Scholarship Fund may contact their local Board of Realtors or the MAR Customer Service Department at (800) 725-6272.

SPRING CAR CARE

Have Your Car Serviced Before Taking A Vacation

Everything points to another summer of record breaking highway travel. Most of us will have our cars checked and serviced before we hit the road, confident that we have taken every safety precaution. However, being safe means more than having good tires, a spare and a flare in the trunk. Highway safety begins with a driver who can see and be seen.

Fully 18 percent of vehicles inspected during National Car Care Month 1995 (October) failed because of lighting discrepancies.

From worn out windshield wipers to a sudden sneeze, there are many ways a driver's vision can be impaired. It's tough to anticipate a sneeze, but you certainly have plenty of warning when windshield wipers begin smearing and chattering across the glass. Your vision/visibility check list should include:

1. WIPERS--Wiper blades should be checked periodically. If they're worn or brittle, better late than too late to replace them. Depending upon your climate, the rubber "squeegee" part of your blades may be effective for only six months. Clean them periodically with glass cleaner or windshield wiper solvent to remove accumulated oily road film.

If the wiper arm springs are weak or broken, replace the arm. This ensures the pressure will be evenly distributed along the length of the blade.

Be sure the windshield washers are working properly, too, and that you keep the reservoir filled with solvent.

2. SIGNALS--Get in the habit of checking your turn signals, brake lights and emergency flashers. They are essential for communication. When they're not working properly, other drivers can't get your message and the results can be disastrous.

3. HEADLIGHTS--When the sun goes down, your chance of being involved in a fatal accident may increase by as much as 300 percent. That's a good reason to check your headlights periodically. Make sure they work on both high and low beam and are properly aimed. It's also a good idea to keep your headlights on while driving in the daylight. They help define your car's position on the road, and its distance from other drivers.

4. REAR WINDOW--If you have luggage, camping gear or other travel items loaded in the rear window, you may be an accident waiting to happen. Although side mirrors help, they are a poor substitute for a clear view out the back window. Likewise, an unobstructed view when backing up is essential.

5. WINDSHIELD--The combined effect of chipped or cracked glass, bugs and road film obscure vision. Repair a damaged windshield as soon as possible and clean it regularly with windshield wiper solvent and a clean paper towel or cloth.

6. SUNGLASSES--There are times when the sun visors above your windshield will not be enough to shield your eyes from glare, so have a good pair of sunglasses handy. Beware of substandard eye wear. It can distort your vision and fail to provide necessary ultraviolet protection.

Be certain you can see and be seen, reminds the Council.

How Much Air?

Here's a multiple choice question from the Car Care Council that has fooled more than one expert. Keeping tires properly inflated extends their life and saves fuel.

Correct inflation is (a) written on the sidewall of the tire; (b) 32 p.s.i.; (c) listed in the owner's manual; (d) posted on a sticker on the door jamb.

The answer is (c) or (d). The maximum load and maximum inflation pressure stamped on the tire's sidewall are exactly that: MAXIMUM recommended for that particular tire. Excessive inflation and/or load not only can damage the tire, it also can accelerate wear.

Car Care Council has published a book loaded with multiple choice questions and answers. For your copy send $5.95 to Car Care Council, Dept. SPE7-QB, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

North Quincy Girls' Track Looks To Improve In '97

Under the guidance of coach Geoff Hennessy, the North Quincy High School girls spring track team will attempt to improve on last season's 4-4 record in the perennially tough Old Colony League.

In his ninth year as coach, Hennessy will again be assisted by Maureen Fallon, who works with the weight events. Fallon is in her eighth season assisting Hennessy.

In the sprints, senior captain Casey Ngo leads a group which includes sophomore Kellie Johnston, juniors Jasmine Gonzalez and Sharon Lee and freshmen Ha Le, Liz Leuchte, Maureen Holleran and Lauren Pizzi. Another talented freshman, Megan Ginty, is recovering from mononucleosis but Hennessy is optimistic that by season's end Ginty will be able to contribute.

The middle distance group includes three freshmen: Genevieve O'Brien, Heather Meighan and Lisa Chow. Distance events will be paced by freshmen Lynda Wilson and Sarah Houghton with senior captains Carrie Jarvie and Lauren Molloy giving strong contributions. Sophomore Ashley Crawford, injured most of last year, could be a surprise, as could freshman Amy Cheung.

The hurdles is an area of deep concern as the 1-2 punch of Phyllis Poon and Suk Ng graduated last year, along with 300 hurdler Aja Jackson. To fill those holes, Hennessy will count on sophomores Kim Huerth and Kelly Lockhead and freshmen Sarah Price and Kristin Coughlin.

In jumping events, Sarah Boston leads the charge. The talented junior garnered OCL All-Star honors as well as a spot on The Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic team after winning the OCL Conference Meet and the State Class B Meet in the high jump. Boston will also triple jump and possibly run some relay legs. Other jumpers include Johnston, Leuchte, Ngo and Huerth.

The throwing events have always been a strong suit for North. Leading throwers include juniors Claire Quilty and Nicole Bertone, seniors Kerry Ginty, Wingsze Yuen (captain) and Erica Crawford (captain), sophomores Chrissy Duncan, Alice Chan and Melissa Griffin and freshmen Ellen Tang, Holleran, Amy Fagerlund, Lisa DellaCroce and Lena Yuen. Wingsze Yuen received OCL All-Star honors and The Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic status after winning the shotput at the OCL Championships and placing fifth in the Class B States.

North was to have opened at Plymouth April 3, but the April Fool's Day blizzard postponed the meet. The next meet was to have been Monday at 4 p.m. at home against Falmouth, but that meet was switched to the Cape Cod school's campus. Falmouth won the meet, 95-41. Today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., North is scheduled to compete at Barnstable.

Hennessy predicted a battle between Falmouth and Silver Lake for the dual meet title. "It's a tough league, but look, we tied for most points in the Championship Meet with Silver Lake and were 4-4 in duals last spring," he said. "That's what we're pointing towards--doing well in the 'Big Meets.'"

You Auto Know

COOL!

Conclusive evidence that chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) significantly contribute to the depletion of the earth's ozone layer (which blocks most of the sun's harmful ultraviolet radiation) has led to cessation of production of the refrigerant known as CFC-12. This is the refrigerant found in the air conditioning systems of all but the more recent model cars. While existing supplies of CFC-12 may be added to older model-cars in the event of loss due to leaks in the system, conversion to a newer, safer refrigerant may make better long term financial sense than a repair. The EPA-accepted alternative to CFC-12, known as R134a, is used in all new cars and may be installed in older cars as part of a modification of the existing system. HINT: As the remaining supply of CFC-12 dwindles, the cost of the product can be expected to climb.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Did you ever put something in the wrong place and wonder later where it was? Of course you have. We all have. Sometimes when the thing shows up, we ask the silly question, "How did it get there?"

We know the answer. It got there because we put it there.

Similar reasoning can apply, in a way, to religion. People put God in the wrong place. It may sound peculiar, but we can put God in the right place. It can even be said we can put God in His place, if we want to. And this is said without "smart alecky" semantics.

We know God is in Heaven. But He is elsewhere too. Instead of placing Him in that uncharted area "way up there", why don't we put Him where we can find Him all the time? We go to His house of worship on Sunday and then return to OUR home. Why not bring Him along home with us? When we put Him in our home, where most of us need Him most, we always know where He is...

Your Social Security

Protecting Social Security Records

By CAROL BOYLE

Because Social Security is automatically deducted from your paycheck, you may not realize that there are other steps you should take to assure that the money will be there for you when you retire, or if you become disabled, and to your family if should die.

When you work, your employer deducts the Social Security taxes from your paycheck, adds a matching amount, and sends the taxes to Internal Revenue Service and a report to the Social Security Administration. By the end of January, you should receive a W-2 form stating the amount of wages the employer paid you during the year that you can use to file your own income tax return. If you do not receive the statement, you should contact the employer.

When you receive your W-2 form, check it for the correct name and Social Security number. Compare the number and name shown on the W-2 with the information on your Social Security card. Report any discrepancies to your employer and local Social Security office right away. Uncredited earnings could adversely affect your future eligibility for benefits, as well as your benefit amount.

You should protect your Social Security number, the key to your Social Security account. The nine digit number identifies your account and permits Social Security to credit your account correctly. If you lose the card, you can generally get a duplicate with a phone call. You should show your Social Security card to your employer when you start a job.

You should be sure to keep your Social Security record up to date. If, because of marriage, divorce, adoption, etc., you change the name you use for work or other official business, be sure to apply for a corrected Social Security card. And once you make the change, be sure to use the name consistently for work, banking, and filing income tax returns.

Finally, Social Security suggests that you check the earnings credited to your account at least once every three years. You can keep track of your account easily by calling and requesting a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement (PEBES). If there is an error in your earnings, you should contact Social Security as soon as possible. If you have the necessary documents showing your earnings, the correction can actually be made online. If you wait longer than three years, it may be difficult to correct the earnings record using the employer's records. (Carol Boyle is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

$70,500 To Be Used For Yacht Clubs Dredging

The City Council voted Monday night to appropriate $70,500 from the Quincy's free cash (cash reserve) account for dredging along the channel near the Squantum and Wollaston yacht clubs.

Councillor Paul Harold said the muck must be removed from the channel periodically or else it prohibits the use of the waters there for sailing.

Councillor Michael Cheney expressed disappointment upon learning that the Quincy Yacht Club in Houghs Neck, which councillors originally believed would be covered by the appropriation, will not be part of the dredging.

Harold explained that the Coast Guard has designated the Squantum Yacht Club an emergency relay station for vessels in times of crisis and that the Wollaston Yacht Club is part of the same channel. The funding appropriated is emergency declaration money, he said.

Because the Quincy Yacht Club does not share the same distinction, matching money from the state cannot be obtained for dredging there, according to Harold, who said the $70,500 only will cover about 25 to 30 percent of the work while the rest will be paid by the state.

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

HOW HEAVY A BURDEN?

Those who are familiar with the dramatic criminal cases portrayed in the movies and on television know that a conviction is dependent upon the prosecutor being able to prove his or her case "beyond a reasonable doubt." In most civil cases, however, the burden of proof does not have to be so convincing. Plaintiffs in civil cases need only convince a judge or jury that each element of their cases is true "by a preponderance of evidence," meaning only marginally better than fifty percent. A stronger burden of proof is required in a few types of civil cases to the point where "clear and convincing evidence," is needed.

Even so, victims of negligence and other torts should not be dissuaded from pursuing their cases in the belief that they need to be overwhelmingly convincing.

Hint: Ask your lawyer to explain the legal elements of your case.

If you are injured, you may be able to recover damages for personal injuries caused by another person's negligence. These damages are meant to compensate you for your economic and non-economic losses. For a free consultation, call 773-2880 today. Our office is conveniently located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

$500,000 Grant To Help Curb Family Violence

prosecution of their abusers is completed.

•Creation of the state's first integrated victim support/services groups by certified batterer intervention providers. Emergence and Common Purpose. The action will ensure that abuse victims receive the same level of support and services currently offered abusers. Once created, the programs will be completely supported through offender program fees.

•Establishment of the state's first Abuser Accountability Community Work Service Program which will put convicted batterers to work in unpaid community service as a sanction to reinforce that though domestic violence takes place in the home, it is a crime that harms all of society.

The program will be overseen by a Domestic Violence Intervention Coordinating Council to be chaired by Sheets and Chief Probation Officer Andrew Klein of the Quincy Probation Department.

The $357,000 grant was obtained through a national competitive process that Meade termed "very competitive." In addition to receiving funding, Quincy was designated one of five national project sites.

Senior Tax Abatement Work Program Approved

will help city departments as much as the seniors.

"A number of department heads have said they can absolutely use people," she said. "And these are not 'make work' positions. The seniors' specific skills will be utilized."

Mader said income and need, as well as geographical balance, will be considered during the senior selection process. Seniors will be rotated when possible, she said.

Applications will be available through the Quincy Council on Aging. Brian Buckley, director of the Council on Aging and the SWAP coordinator, said he will work with a screening committee to set up interviews and help assign positions to seniors. Individual department heads will have the final decision on who is hired.

The SWAP will become a regular item in the city's annual municipal budget. Sheets said Tuesday he anticipates this year's figure will total about $20,000.

Beginning July 1, 1998, previous program participants will be encouraged to reapply, but their applications will be considered after the "new" talent pool has been exhausted.

Residents Still Worry About 700-Foot Tower

the dishes and antennae on the tower was recently found by SAE Engineering of Quincy to be 409.2 watts, less than half of the 1,000-watt limit allowed by law.

Mulvey said the tower poses no health risks to the neighborhood, noting that microwave transmitters require very low wattage and that the average electric hair dryer uses more wattage than the tower.

Dave Fenton, the tower owner, said Industrial Communications is more than willing to pay for a city-hired consultant to pay for a health study. He added that such studies have been done every year as part of the firm's zoning approval.

In 1991, when a permit for the project was first granted, the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals did not notify neighbors because none of the residents live within 300 feet of the site. Despite considerable anger over the project in both Milton and West Quincy, where the tower is considered an eyesore, lawsuits from residents from both communities were dismissed by a Superior Court judge last year.

STAFF SERGEANT Thomas Zuffante of Quincy makes slight adjustments on his M-16 Rifle during the zeroing phase of the recent Weapons Qualification Drill at Camp Edwards. He is the TOW Section Chief for Charlie Company 1-182nd Infantry (Mech) which is located on Union St. in Braintree.

'More Positives Than Negatives' Says Quincy College President Ryan Sees First Year 'A Real Roller-Coaster'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Looking back at his first year as president of Quincy College, Dr. Jeremiah Ryan is able to sum it up in a few simple words.

"It's been a real roller coaster," he says with a smile. "That's probably going to be your headline."

In an interview with The Quincy Sun, Ryan reflected on the events of the past year at the two-year, city-owned college, which has campuses in Quincy and Plymouth. While he acknowledges the year has had its share of ups and downs, he is quick to add, "There's been more positives than negatives, clearly."

Ryan, who served as vice president of marketing, planning and development at Harford Community College in Bel Air, Md. before being appointed to his current position by the Quincy College Board of Governors in March 1996, listed what he thinks are the most important "positives" that have occurred since his arrival:

- Reorganized student services that provide "one-stop shopping" for students at the college's Coddington Hall.

- A strategic business plan, which, if soon approved by the Board of Governors--as Ryan anticipates--will focus on areas where the college should spend its efforts, including new technology, a more modern library, increased space, and programs related to the community.

- Reaccreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. Ryan added, however, that the NEASC wants to see further improvement in the areas of governance,

DR. JEREMIAH RYAN, seen here in his office, recently completed the end of his first year as president of Quincy College. He describes the experience as "a real roller coaster" but adds, "I really love my job....I'm eager to stay here as long as I can."

financial stability and program review within the next 18 months.

- New academic programs, including five computing programs, a fire science program and a human services program. "That's what we need to do every year, is add more programs," said Ryan.

- Transfer agreements with the University of Massachusetts at Boston and the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, which allow students to complete two years at Quincy College and then transfer, without loss of credit, in order to obtain bachelor's degrees at the other schools.

- A home-rule petition passed by the City Council and state Legislature that resulted in the creation of a foundation designed to raise revenue for the college from private sources.

- A $1 million bond issue passed by the City Council, the funds from which will be divided between computer acquisition and needed renovations at the college's Quincy buildings.

- A $175,000 donation from College Courses Inc., the organization that runs the Quincy College Bookstore, for automation of the library. The amount was the largest private gift ever given to the college.

- Development of a site on the World Wide Web.

200 Support Condo Trash Pickup Plan

By MICHAEL WHALEN

More than 200 residents overfilled the City Council Chambers at City Hall Monday night for a public hearing on a proposal to have the city provide trash pickup for residential condominium owners in Quincy.

Twenty-nine people spoke in support of Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond's proposal and an additional 88 signed in favor. There was no opposition at the hearing, which was held by the council's Public Works Committee.

Raymond said he proposed the change in February to address "the lack of uniformity" in Quincy's trash pickup policy. He noted that the "vast majority" of the approximately 4,000 condo units in the city do not receive trash pickup.

Currently, he said, most condo associations that hire private firms for the pickup charge tenants extra for that service.

Raymond said as taxpayers, all residential condo owners have the right to the same service as citizens who own residential homes in Quincy. Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) currently is contracted by the city to pick up trash and recyclables for non-condo Quincy residents.

He added that the Department of Public Works is looking into the matter and working on a plan to address the issue. Raymond wants the plan to be presented by the council by May 19 and hopes to have the pickup policy change incorporated into the city's municipal budget for Fiscal Year 1998, which begins July 1.

Raymond noted that in order to be passed, his proposal may require an ordinance change. Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, chairman of the council's Ordinance Committee, joined members of the Public Works Committee at Monday night's hearing.

In addition, Mayor James Sheets would need to include the change in the FY98 city budget. It is also possible the mayor could implement the change by executive order, according to Raymond, although City Solicitor Stephen McGrath would have to issue a legal opinion on how it would be done.

Residents of a number of Quincy condominiums packed the Council Chambers Monday night. Collectively, they voiced frustration at being treated like second-class citizens who have to pay for trash pickup while the service is provided to residential home owners. Some also noted that they receive no recycling service, which also is provided to owners of residential homes.

All voiced support of Raymond's proposal, praising the councillor in the process.

"I think that it's about time the city moved in this direction," said Paul Reynolds, chairman of the board at Marina Point Condominiums.

"It's about time for a change," agreed Chuck Beheena, a Quincy firefighter who lives at Ocean Cove Condominiums.

Richard Brooks, an attorney based in Braintree, said he has some expertise on the subject through his work for a national condominium association. He noted that in general, most

A New Look At Dining Out

New Restaurant Will Feature Low-Fat Specials

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A new restaurant in Quincy Center will be an innovative-one of a kind which will serve low fat-low cholesterol chicken and ribs.

The Quincy License Board granted a common victualer license to Pacini's, 1506 Hancock St. (formerly a mattress and bedding store), next to Hancock Tobacco.

Tony Pakanos, an interpreter for owner Haralambos Karamolengos, said the restaurant will have two parts, on one side, the chicken and ribs, and the other side a menu featuring Italian entrees.

The 60 seat establishment will be open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m., and also feature imported cheeses, prosciutto, oil and other foods from Italy.

Pakanos said the chicken and ribs are going to be unique because they are coated with fruit juices and spices and broiled making it low fat. He said he thinks this is a "first" for Quincy.

The restaurant is scheduled for opening in mid July, about the same time as the annual sidewalk sale.

Country Style Store Approved At Marina Bay

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Ed Kane, owner of Waterworks and Eating Up the Coast at Marina Bay, had a lot to smile about at Tuesday's license board meeting.

His request for The Center Store, 333 Victory Rd., received approval by the board and for a change no one opposed.

The Quincy License Board voted unanimously in favor of the country style store which will be located at the former Yacht Stop on the first floor of the main administration building.

Sitting in the City Hall chambers was Richard Stuart, chairman of the board of trustees at Marina Bay, who approved of Kane's proposal.

The board granted a request from Kane for a retail wine and malt package goods store license and a common victualer license.

Atty. Edward Fleming, representing Kane told the board the store will be 1240 square feet with about 300 square feet for the wine room and space for about a dozen patrons.

It will feature salads, soups, sandwiches and fresh bread and rolls from Kane's Hingham bakery, Fire King, newspapers, canned goods and snacks. Hours of operation will be from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. seven days a week.

After the approval of Kane's request, Police Chief Francis Mullen declared a recent letter which circulated at Marina Bay, supposedly signed by Kane as "fraudulent".

Included in the letter were the names of artists and bands that were supposedly appearing at Waterworks.

Mullen said the investigation is still ongoing, and although several persons were interviewed, the origin of the letter is "still unknown. He declared Kane's signature on the letter to be a "fake".

Shea said he was 90 percent complete with a noise committee and promised to meet very soon to monitor the noise at Waterworks.

Kane said a company is testing old and new equipment and monitoring it for a day. Kane said he will notify Building Inspector Matt Mulvey's office when the equipment will be monitored.

Kane said he plans to open Waterworks May 12 with private parties, and May 22 for the general public.

O'Connell Would Be Willing To Sell Bird Sanctuary Site To MDC

The owner of the land that includes a "bird sanctuary" on Lot 23 at Seaport Drive and Victory Road in Marina Bay has offered to sell at least part of the parcel to the Metropolitan District Commission.

Local citizens and environmental groups have lobbied for the 66-acre lot to remain open space and have spoken out against plans to use it for other purposes, including O'Connell's proposal for a luxury apartment building with parking and amenities on the upland portion of the site.

In a recent letter to MDC

Director of Planning Julia O'Brien, O'Connell wrote:

"Currently, we are in the permitting process with the City of Quincy and have been asked by various concerned citizens and environmental groups to consider selling the marshland habitat area to the proper agency within the Commonwealth. I believe the proper agency would be the Metropolitan District Commission because of the property's close proximity to Moswetuset Hummock and the Wollaston Beach Reservation.

"I would appreciate the opportunity to discuss the MDC's interest in Lot 23's marshland with you because, quite honestly, I am not opposed to selling the property, or a portion of the property, to an agency that will maintain it for the public good."

Several groups, including the Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations and the Massachusetts Audubon Society have sought to leave the space intact because of its aesthetic qualities and use as a habitat for a variety of birds and other wildlife.

Junk Yard Gets Ultimatum From Board

The Quincy License Board gave Sugarman's junkyard an ultimatum at Tuesday's meeting.

The board took action after hearing complaints from abutters John Hart and June Dullnig about early morning noise, cars piled up about 20 feet high, oil and gas seepage from crushed cars, and trucks illegally parked near their homes. When they finished speaking to the board even Steve Sugarman agreed.

Both Hart and Dullnig who appeared before the board about four months ago with the same complaints, told the board that Sugarman is now using some of Monti Granite Co. land next door to the company.

Dullnig said to Sugarman, "your yard is disgusting-outrageous".

Sugarman admitted the company took on "too much material" and is awaiting new equipment to "push some of it out". He said the company has hired another driver and are looking to hire a fifth one.

The board gave Sugarman the following stipulations:

- By May 27, Sugarman has to downsize its materials.
- Remove everything from Monti's property.
- Stop working on Sundays.
- Return to the board meeting on May 27 with a detailed plan of action.

Chairman Joseph Shea said "if things don't change by May 27, the board will have to be prepared to move forward and take definitive action."

Sugarman promised to meet all requirements by May 27.

All Quiet On The Political Front

Nomination papers for this year's city election will be available May 1--just two weeks away--but don't look for any big rush to get them.

Nobody's even calling City Hall to ask when they will be ready. Not much interest--so far.

In fact, any resemblance between this year and election years of the past is, as they say in the movie credits, purely coincidental.

As noted here a month ago, this could be a year without a preliminary (primary) election. Last time that happened was 1940--57 years ago.

The preliminary election is scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 16. Whether it will be held remains to be seen.

For a full preliminary election 35 candidates are needed: three for mayor, seven for city council at-large, seven for school committee and three for each of the six council wards.

The final election is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 4. And there might not be much doing that day either.

Mayor James Sheets is seeking his fifth term and no one is going to keep him from it. Prospective major mayoral candidates know that trying to take him on this year would be political suicide. They're willing to wait.

Of course, some political featherweight or nobody might jump in to see his name in print or to be able to tell his grandchildren, "I ran against Jim Sheets for mayor."

But it looks like Sheets will be unopposed--for the third time. Only two other mayors in the city's history have been given a free ride: Tom Burgin in 1940 and Frank McCauley in 1983.

For awhile there, it looked like a pretty good council at-large race this year.

McCauley announced his candidacy for council at-large, thinking there would be an open seat. But Tim Cahill, who had indicated he would not seek re-election changed his mind.

That set the stage, temporarily at least, for a good four-candidate horse race for three seats: Michael Cheney, Paul Harold, Cahill and McCauley. But then Cheney decided not to seek re-election, leaving Cahill, Harold and McCauley looking like sure winners.

That's the way it stands. Right now.

Unless, another major candidate like former City Clerk John Gillis or Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles McIntyre gets in, the council at-large race will be over before anyone picks up a ballot.

In fact, unless someone turns up the interest knob just about the whole final election could be decided before the first ballot is marked.

IRISH TENOR John McDermott via Canada has quickly developed a large local following. And it's easy to see why.

McDermott, is not only one of the better singers around today, but he knows how to treat an audience. He was a sell-out smash hit in a concert Friday night at Quincy High School that raised over $10,000 for the First Parish Church Visitation Program.

His voice is pleasing to the ear. He is backed by a nice combo. And he gets close to his audience on stage and off. He was down in the audience handing out flowers to women.

He spent the entire intermission out in the lobby talking with fans and autographing programs, photos and CDs. They say some 300 of his "Danny Boy" and "Love Is A Voyage" CDs were sold right there on the spot.

And after the show was over, he was back out there in the lobby saying good night and thanking people for coming to the concert.

A real personable talent.

Quincy's Connie Murphy who put this concert together, hopes to bring McDermott back soon for a veterans benefit.

Meanwhile, he will be singing the national anthem at the Red Sox game Friday night and has the following appearances scheduled:

June 14-15, Stonehill College Irish Festival in Easton. July 5, the South Shore Music Circus. Aug. 27, North Shore Music Circus and Aug. 28, Cape Cod Melody Tent.

COUNCILLOR BRUCE AYERS will be wearing a cast on his right hand for the next six weeks.

Ayers became a casualty while parasailing in Aruba where he and his bride, the former Maureen McCarthy, went on their recent wedding trip.

Ayers fractured two fingers on his right hand when he fell while parasailing.

Other than that, he smiles, the "honeymoon was great."

JACKIE ROBINSON, as any baseball fan knows, broke the color line in the major leagues 50 years ago with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Baseball is paying special tribute to him this year.

Quincy Atty. George Burke remembers when Robinson hit a "homerun" in the fight against drug abuse.

Burke, as Norfolk County district attorney was conducting a drug education program in 1969-70.

Burke happened to see a newspaper story about Robinson losing a son to a drug overdose a few years before. He contacted him to see if he would be willing to speak at a drug education seminar at Archbishop Williams High School.

Robinson said he would and flew up from New York with his wife. Burke and his wife, Sandra, invited them out to dinner first.

"I was very impressed with him," Burke says. "He was very down to earth and a gentle person. You could still see the pain in him over his son's death."

Robinson later spoke at the seminar.

"It was what I call a grand slam talk," says Burke. "And he covered all the bases. It was great."

LOUIS CARUSO is convalescing at his Newton Ave., Braintree home after undergoing triple by-pass surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Caruso, retired employee of the Quincy Cemetery Department, was honored a few months ago on "Louis Caruso Day" proclaimed by Mayor Sheets and hosted by City Councillor Paul Harold.

Louis says he will never forget that day and is most appreciative of those who arranged it and dropped by to say hello.

Upset By News About Alternative School

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a member of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association's Board of Directors and as the board's elected secretary, I was quite upset with the surprise news concerning an alternative school taking over the Atlantic Neighborhood Center. The proposal was approved by the School Committee on April 9.

I agree with Supt. Eugene Creedon that such an alternative school for some 20 students banned but not expelled from school is sound educational policy. Currently, the city now sends 12 students daily to an alternative learning program in Norwell run by the South Shore Collaborative, costing Quincy $23,600 a student for tuition and travel. Rather than shifting the problem elsewhere, Creedon wants the City of Quincy to do it itself. Makes sense!

However, my biggest issue with this announcement which was lost in the fallout of the Blizzard of '97 is the unprofessional manner in which it seemed to go public. As a member of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, I was well aware that the center was a school department building and that school officials had been by the building recently checking it out. The board was aware that something seemed to be up but it was all conjecture and assumptions.

Yes, the center was given over to use rent-free. The center was also recently equipped with new heating, air conditioning, lights and alarm systems. Non-school department funds financed those improvements not at the school department. We always knew the building was on loan and could be recalled by Supt. Creedon, but I was not ready for the news the way it came out.

Should Pat Thorley, the executive director who runs the center, find out the news concerning the alternative school proposal from Patriot Ledger reporter Ray McEachern? Should both board members and residents of the Atlantic Neighborhood hear the news first by reading McEachern's front page Patriot Ledger story on March 31?

Why didn't the School Department and Supt. Creedon or Mayor Sheets and the City Council come to the Atlantic Neighborhood Center and explain the need to use the building for the alternative school this year? Didn't it show great disrespect to the citizens of North Quincy by going public prior to meeting with the community?

Trust is important in government. Without it, you have nothing. Building consensus and working together is a two-way street. Government works best when elected and appointed officials keep the channels open to citizen groups such as the Atlantic Neighborhood Association. Over the years, I have gained much knowledge and insight into community power and its connection to elected and appointed officials.

Mayor Sheets says he wants to work with us at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center to find a new site so that the services now provided to more than 1,000 mostly low-income residents can continue. I will work with him because the Atlantic Neighborhood Center is needed now more than ever.

I want to emphasize this letter represents my personal views only.

Raisin-Apple Spice Cake

Last week when I started to make my eggless, milkless spice raisin cake, I only had a half cup of raisins. Since the recipe calls for one cup, I decided to experiment and add some apples to make up the difference. It worked out so well that I probably will be using that recipe in the future.

Raisin-Apple Spice Cake

- 1/2 cup raisins
- 2 cups apples (cut in small pieces)
- 2 cups water
- 1 stick butter or margarine
- 1 3/4 cups flour

1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon each of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a baking pan. Boil the raisins and the apples together with the 2 cups of water for 10 minutes. Add the margarine and let cool for a few minutes.

Add all other ingredients and mix until well blended. Bake for 30 minutes or until done. Let cool before slicing. This cake can be made ahead of time and lasts for days in the refrigerator.

DIABETES ON THE RISE

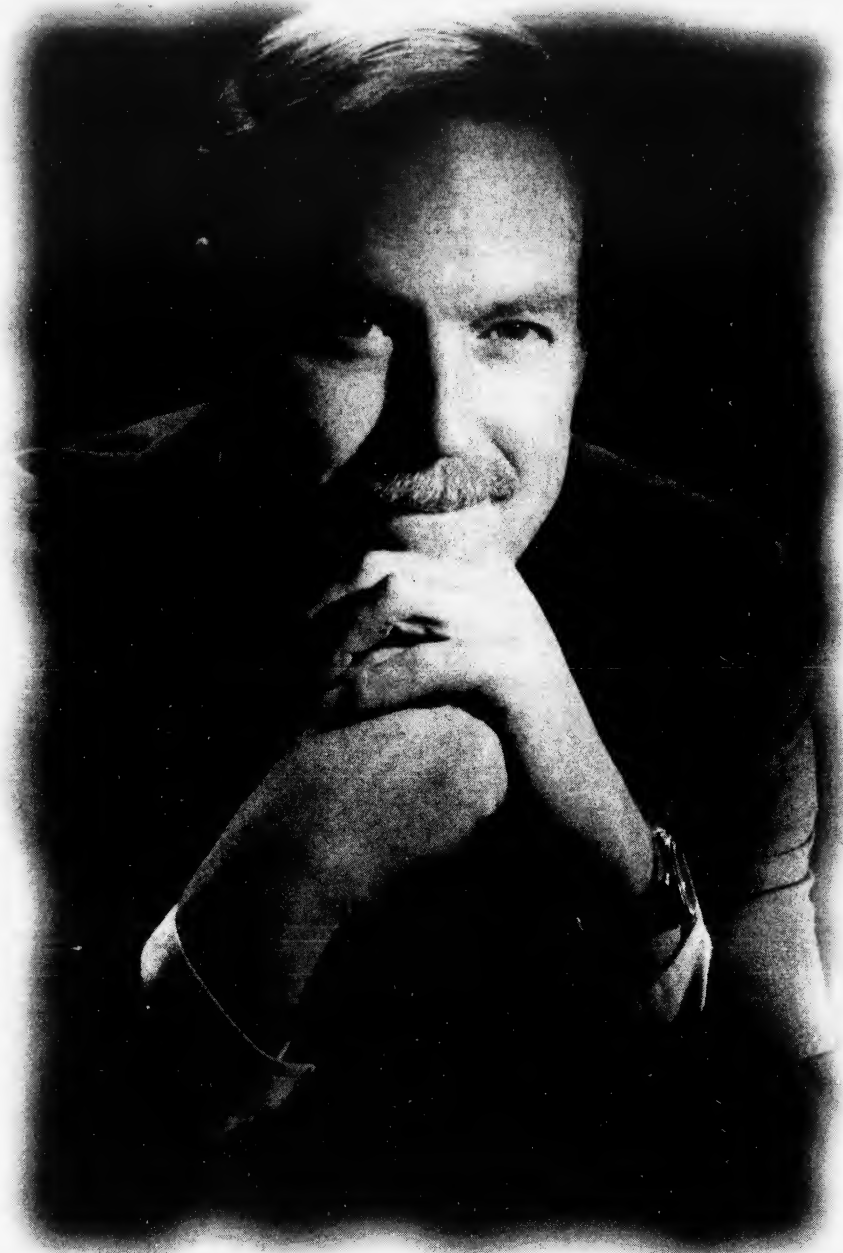

Diabetes is one of the fastest growing serious medical disorders in the United States. While about 11 million Americans were known to have diabetes in the early 1960s, that number has increased to some 16 million today. One of the reasons for the exploding numbers is obesity, a major risk factor in developing diabetes.

Despite all the talk about health and fitness, more Americans are becoming fatter than ever. This is alarming for many reasons, but particularly as it relates to diabetes. While the symptoms of diabetes can usually be controlled with insulin, diet, and exercise, people with the disorder are more than twice as likely to have strokes as people without it. Diabetes is also as much as four times more likely to suffer from cardiovascular disease than non-diabetics. Among the elderly, diabetes is a leading cause of blindness and end-stage kidney disease.

P.S. It is estimated that almost half of the people who have diabetes don't even know it.

If you are suffering from diabetes, you know how important routine medical care can be. Don't mess around with your health by delaying getting the attention you require. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are dedicated to patient care. We are at 700 Congress St., Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE.

OF ALL THE GOOD REASONS TO HAVE SURGERY AT QUINCY HOSPITAL, THIS ONE'S THE CHIEF.

When you or a member of your family needs an operation, you want the most skilled doctors in attendance. At Quincy Hospital, you can be confident that they are. For example, there's our new Chief of Surgery, Dr. Craig Donaldson, who comes to us from our new surgical affiliate, Brigham and Women's Hospital, where he is Vice Chairman of Surgery. Board Certified in General and Vascular Surgery, he is an Associate Professor of Surgery at his alma mater, Harvard Medical School. Just as important, however, is Dr. Donaldson's dedication to providing quality medical care to everyone in our community.

There's a new commitment to excellence in all areas of Quincy Hospital. Dr. Donaldson is one chief example.

Former state Rep. James Brett, currently the president and CEO of The New England Council, will be the emcee.

Quincy Cultural Council Awarded $44,279 Grant

The Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency, has awarded $44,279 in grants to the Quincy Cultural Council, announces the city's legislative delegation.

The grants will help fund local cultural and education programs for children and adults.

"Without this funding it would be difficult for many of these programs to exist," said Rep. Ron Mariano.

"Approximately 52 different programs will be funded either partially or fully by this grant," said Rep. Steve Tobin.

"These local grants support cultural activities for everyone in the community and contribute to Quincy's quality of life and economic vitality," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

Local cultural councils accept applications in the fall and are reviewed for compliance with state guidelines and local priorities.

"The grant money is used for a wide range of cultural activities in Quincy, ranging from public and private schools students going to plays to city-wide events, such as First Night Quincy," said Rep. Michael Bellotti.

Broad Meadows Sixth Graders Participate in Camping Classroom

By JIM SPILLANE

For three days and two nights, 90 sixth grade students from Broad Meadows Middle School in Quincy had the opportunity to experience classrooms lined with trees rather than walls, skies instead of ceilings, and floors covered with leaves and pine needles rather than carpets.

Located in Sharon, Horizons for Youth Outdoor Education Center provided the backdrop for students to learn about nature and the environment by participating in outdoor activities.

Working with over a dozen staff members holding degrees in science, environmental studies, and education, students participated in a variety of educational activities such as examination of pond life, the forest community, and environmental debates.

One favorite activity of the students involved group cooperation challenges. Students in groups of nine were presented with a series of challenges and had to work cooperatively to achieve a common goal.

One challenge students faced was to cross a wide imaginary river using five pieces of different sized wood. The group had to work together to plan, and execute, the best method possible for crossing the river. If one student stepped off the wood, the entire group had to begin again.

Environmental learning also entered the cafeteria where students worked collectively to reduce the amount of total waste after meals.

At the conclusion of each meal, the "Waste Master" would measure the total amount of waste in centimeters. Students learned valuable steps in reducing waste and recycling materials.

Students began preparing for the field trip weeks in

Accent On Quincy Center

By BRUCE ARONS
Quincy Center Development Coordinator

Downtown In Step With The Trend

Urban economic development experts are predicting that urban and downtown revival will be one of the top 10 trends of 1997 and beyond.

The major forces behind this trend are:

- A large wave of new immigrants arriving in cities seeking employment, housing and entertainment.

- Young adults moving back to downtowns where their parents or grandparents once resided.

- An increasing number of empty-nesters moving into downtowns to experience a cosmopolitan lifestyle.

- A strong desire to build new activism and a sense of community spirit.

This activity is creating a real estate boom for low and moderate-income wage earners looking for apartments, multi-family dwellings and shared housing, as well as mobile professionals and empty nesters seeking upscale condos.

The new inflow of culture and residents into the city is attracting investors and new businesses that in the past would locate only in the suburbs.

Quincy Center is currently experiencing this trend and is positioning itself well for the new millennium.

Purchase of existing buildings and large capital investment is presently occurring in the downtown. Commercial property values are increasing and additional jobs are being created.

The Quincy Center Action Plan, developed by the Quincy 2000 Corp. and endorsed by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and the Quincy City Council, is providing the strategy and guidance for this wave of economic development within Quincy Center.

Economic development efforts are working effectively because elected officials and the Quincy 2000 Corp. have not lost focus on their main objective: a healthy business environment within Quincy Center. As we approach the new millennium, efforts to expand and strengthen the economic base of Quincy Center will increase even more so.

Until next time, be sure to check out what's "happening" in downtown Quincy Center and feel free to write me with your comments and suggestions at The Quincy 2000 Corp., 1250 Hancock St., Suite 802N, Quincy, MA 02169.

Friendly's Told To Soften Lights For Neighbors

Because of complaints regarding the exterior lighting, flashing into abutter's windows, Friendly's on Independence Avenue was told to soften the lights under their awning, and shield the lights in such a way as to prevent any illumination of the abutting property.

Eva E'Ullisse again appeared before the board complaining of not being able to sleep, lights on at 3 a.m. shining directly in her windows, and customers going into Friendly's after 11 p.m.

The board told

Friendly's that all lights have to be off by 11 p.m. And to have the lights on the awning on a separate timer.

Representatives from Friendly's told the board that lights on the parking lot have been disconnected since December by order of the building department.

Although sympathizing with D'Ullisse, Police chief Francis Mullen said he believes in "safety first" and that because of pedestrians, the area has to be lighted for safety reasons. He added that "a lighted street is a safer street".

Chairman Joseph Shea said he would contact Massachusetts Electric regarding putting shields over the street lights.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond said he had confidence that the board would act accordingly and added that public safety "requires adequate lighting."

The complaints were placed in file and the board said they would continue monitoring the lighting until the abutters were satisfied.

McCauley Urges Caution On Proposed MBTA Bus Privatization

School Committeeman Francis McCauley has asked State Auditor Joseph DeNucci to use caution before approving a plan by the MBTA Board of Directors to start negotiating with a private bus company to run its 27 Quincy-based routes.

In a letter to DeNucci dated April 7, McCauley wrote:

"I am writing you concerning the issue of the MBTA's privatization of its 27 Quincy-based routes. The MBTA management recently announced that it was awarding, subject to your approval, a contract for the Quincy-based routes to ATE Ryder, a private firm.

"For almost six years I commuted from Quincy to Boston using the MBTA Red Line. During that time I found the service provided by MBTA employees to be excellent. ATE Ryder has proposed savings of $8.2 million over a five-year period, and while this is a substantial amount of money, quality of service is also important.

"Since Quincy is a city with a large senior citizen population who depend on public transportation, I urge you to give careful consideration to ATE Ryder's ability to provide dependable service before approving this proposal."

MBTA officials have said the Boston Carmen's Union bailed out of the competition for the job, a claim disputed by union leaders. The union said it is being squeezed out by the T.

DeNucci has the final say on privatization contracts. MBTA General Manager Patrick Moynihan has said if DeNucci approves the proposal and there are no other challenges, the bus routes could switch over to the private operators by late summer.

Ryan Sees First Year 'A Real Roller-Coaster'

Implementation of academic development, technology acquisition, and marketing plans. "It's been a big planning year," he said.

A new higher education and employee training consortium at the Plymouth campus.

Still, the year would not have been a "roller coaster" without at least a few negatives. Among the occurrences in the past 12 months that Ryan termed "disappointing" are:

A financial aid judgment by the federal government that the previous college administration incorrectly used the formula for providing aid to students. As a result of the ruling, the college is paying back the government $500,000 over a six-year period.

A 5 percent decline in enrollment—from about 5,100 to 4,800 students—which forced the college's budget to be scaled back from $10.4 million to $9.6 million. Ryan noted that the college seems to get more and more new students every term but added, "Our problem is retention." He said students report favorably on the instructors at the college and he thinks increased space and improved library and computer facilities will help rectify the situation.

The failure to acquire the nearby building at 1212 Hancock St., which he had envisioned as the college's new "front door" and a way to provide needed space. "We weren't able to work the financial deal," said Ryan, who added the college is exploring other options.

Contract negotiations with the faculty that have been going on for a number of months. Ryan said he is hopeful the situation can be resolved by July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The decision in February to eliminate 22 jobs, resulting in 12 layoffs and 10 unfilled positions. Ryan said the college's financial status demands that money be spent on "programmatic initiatives."

Looking ahead, Ryan said he sees the college becoming more community-oriented and creating partnerships with other schools, businesses and organizations. He does not expect another decline in enrollment and expects that the college's marketing program, along with increased technology, more space and an improved library, will bring the numbers up. And the institution's financial picture should shape up, he said, particularly because of the institution created by the home-rule petition.

However, when faced with the much-asked question about whether Quincy College will eventually become a four-year institution, Ryan said he does not see it happening. The resources required for the change "would be extraordinary," he said, and since Boston already has numerous four-year colleges and universities, he does not think it would do anything to boost enrollment.

"Besides," he added, "I think we can accomplish the same thing through partnerships with other schools."

As for Ryan himself, he noted that he is happy living in Quincy with his wife Gail, saying, "We really love the area. We've found it to be very, very welcoming, and warm and friendly."

More importantly for Quincy College, he is enjoying his work. Ryan recently returned to the classroom for the first time in almost a year to teach a state and local government class, something he finds particularly invigorating. And the college is moving forward, he said, not only because of his own efforts, but because of the hard work of his vice presidents, faculty and staff and the support of the Board of Governors and city and state officials.

"I really love my job," he said. "It's a difficult job sometimes, but I think it's the greatest job in the world. I'm eager to stay here as long as I can."

Appraisers Look at Your Home's Hidden Faces

News USA

they are appraising.

Appraisers look for things like stains on the ceiling that suggest a possible roof leak. Doors that swing open or close by themselves suggest other structural problems. Rotting wood around windows indicates waterproofing materials have broken down and need replacement.

A real estate appraiser knows that an exterior inspection is just as important as the interior inspection. In areas where soil is known to contain deposits of clay, experienced appraisers look for tell-tale signs of settlement that often surfaces in cracks along the foundation or cracks between bricks.

If interior doors close by themselves, an appraiser will usually detect a foundation problem by examining the exterior walls. This inspection may reveal signs of significant stress that could ultimately lead to more serious problems.

While appraisers are not building and construction experts, they are experienced in searching for defects that might affect the property's market value.

When choosing an appraiser, ask about the many other important variables involved in real estate appraising and be sure the appraiser possesses credible credentials and a track record that includes strict adherence to the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice.

Look for the designation "ASA" or "AM" following the appraiser's name. ASA means the appraiser has been awarded the designation of accredited senior appraiser. AM means the appraiser is an accredited member of the society. Both are members in good standing of the American Society of Appraisers.

A primary objective of the American Society of Appraisers is to build and maintain appraiser qualifications and require strict adherence to the Principles of Appraisal Practice and Code of Ethics to protect the client.

For more information on hiring a professional, independent real estate appraiser near you, call the ASA toll-free at 1-800-ASA-VALU and ask for Dept. NU. Or write to the American Society of Appraisers, International Headquarters, Dept. NU, P.O. Box 17265, Washington, DC 20041.

SPRING CAR CARE

A Blown Hose Can 'Blow' Your Trip

Andy K's family and travel gear were in the car. Everyone was anxious to leave on their extended vacation when Andy had a last minute thought. He ran back into the house to shut off the water supply line to the washer, only to discover a huge bulge in the hose. It almost certainly would have burst while they were away, allowing a prolonged flood of hot water.

Andy's preventive measure reminded him of another rubber hose that might have hampered their vacation had he not found it in time: a radiator hose that was in marginal condition. He had taken the car to the shop for a complete "physical" and discovered several things that might put him and his family at risk.

Whether on the road or driving around home, you want to know your vehicle's cooling system parts are not running on borrowed time. Coolant loss due to a leaking house or connection can lead to some very expensive trouble, including major engine damage. To help prevent such a crisis, the Car Care Council suggests a thorough visual inspection plus a pressure check (which can be done by most service dealers). Then flush the system and install new antifreeze.

The Council offers this cooling system check list:

HOSES: Soft? Brittle? Bulging?

CONNECTIONS: Hose clamps secure? Drain valve dry? Freeze plugs secure?

DRIVE BELT(S): Glazed? Cracked? Frayed? Correct tension?

RADIATOR: Internal rust or corrosion? Seeping? Mountings secure? Pressure test O.K.?

PRESSURE CAP: Valve and spring O.K.? Seal condition? Tight fit? Pressure test O.K.?

WATER PUMP: Bearing condition? Leakage at gasket or shaft?

OTHER: Thermostat functioning normally? Fan clutch engaging and disengaging properly? Electric fan (on systems so equipped) functioning properly?

For more information on the care of your vehicle's cooling system, send a self addressed stamped envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. C, One Grande Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Oxygen Sensors A Key Part Of A Vehicle's Performance

With the sophistication of today's increasingly computerized automobile engines, it's become difficult for the do-it-yourselfer to service or tune up the engine on his or her own vehicle.

And along with this computerization come new parts that are crucial, both for optimal engine performance and also to stay within the bounds of environmental laws regarding engine emissions.

The oxygen sensor is one of those crucial components. They're roughly the size of clothes pins, yet many people don't even know they exist. But they play a pivotal role in monitoring engine exhaust, one of the most common causes of air pollution.

The first oxygen sensor was introduced into automotive engines in 1976 (on a Volvo 240) by The Robert Bosch Corporation.

The oxygen sensor is a measuring probe for determining the amount of oxygen in the exhaust. It continually monitors exhaust gases and signals the engine computer to adjust the air/fuel ratio to ensure that gasoline combustion is as complete as possible, thus reducing harmful emissions while also improving engine performances and fuel efficiency.

In fact, replacing a degraded oxygen sensor with a new one will increase fuel efficiency by 10 to 15 percent.

Oxygen sensors also play a key role in ensuring that vehicles pass the new emissions inspection programs that will be required in many states due to the Federal Clean Air Act.

"Studies show that two-thirds of all vehicle emissions test failures are a result of worn out oxygen sensors," explained Chuck Ruth, Bosch general product manager. "Those numbers are staggering when you consider that oxygen sensors are easy enough to replace and that the vast majority of them are also inexpensive, costing roughly $20 to $50."

"Even if you're not a do-it-yourselfer, it's a good idea to have a professional service technician check your oxygen sensor on a regular basis: every 30,000 to 50,000 miles for an "unheated" 1 or 2 wire sensor or every 60 to 100,000 miles for a "heated" 3 or 4 wire sensor. When the oxygen sensor is degraded, you can very quickly recoup its low replacement cost from the fuel savings of up to $100 a year resulting from complete combustion and a smoother running engine."

How can you tell if you need a new oxygen sensor? Common symptoms of a worn out sensor include excessive fuel consumption, high emissions, engine surging or hesitation, or premature failure of the catalytic converter. When examining the sensor, a shiny deposit on the sensor's heat shield or any gummy deposits indicate it's time to check and/or replace the sensor.

Used Car Book Could Save Buyers A Bundle

Here's a book that could be the right first step in the used car shopping process. It's called "The Used Car Buyer's Manual," 175 pages of information from avoiding lemons to test driving and locating bargains.

Author David J. Buechel takes his reader, step-by-step, through the used car shopping process, including a section on disposing of your old car for top dollar. Not only is Buechel's text lively and laced with humor, it also includes a directory of reliable used cars plus a vehicle inspection check list.

"The Used Car Buyer's Manual" is available from the Car Care Council for $12.45. Send your check or money order to Car Care Council, Dept. SPET-UC, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Sylvia, Presidents Seek Consistency, Second Win

By LIAM FITZGERALD

In search of its second victory of the season, the Quincy High School baseball team battled Plymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. at Adams Field. The result was unavailable as of press time.

Next Monday, the Quincy High School baseball team travels to face the only team it has beaten this year: Boston Latin. Next Wednesday, the Presidents visit Taunton in a game originally scheduled for April 7 but washed out by the blizzard.

The Presidents lost a tough one to Bridgewater-Raynham last Friday, leading by two runs before allowing three runs in the bottom of the seventh in a 7-6 defeat.

"We were right there against B-R, and we could've stolen one from them, but we let them come back and win," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "That one was disappointing because we had one of the better teams in the league on the ropes and gave it away."

A bright spot in the loss to the Trojans was pitcher Tom Daley, who impressed Sylvia with his poise and performance: "Tom Daley did a heck of a job pitching against B-R, which is nice to see because we need some pitchers to step up and perform for us."

Junior Ryan Ploof got the big hit to give Quincy a two-run lead, before he took the mound and gave up three runs in the bottom of the seventh.

Earlier in the week, Quincy lost to a strong hitting Weymouth squad, 7-3.

"That was just an offensive assault Weymouth brought on us," said Sylvia. "Dennis Palardi settled down after a four-run first and pitched well. We think he'll be a good one the second half of the season."

In the season opener, junior pitcher Mark Kelly allowed six hits and struck out nine in Quincy's 7-4 triumph over Boston Latin. Mike Clark came through with the big hit, a two-run single with the bases loaded in the sixth. Senior captain Mike Russo chipped in with two hits.

"Kelly pitched a hell of a game in the opener," said Sylvia. "He's the ace of our staff, one of the pitchers we'll look for big things from all season."

Inconsistent hitting, said Sylvia, has been one of the main reasons the Presidents had only one win as of Tuesday.

"One day, it's one guy, the next day, it's someone else," he said. "I do think they'll come around once the weather improves. It's tough to hit when it's cold, especially for kids not used to varsity pitching."

BAD ABBOTTS in Quincy Center recently received a visit from runner Eamon Coghlan (far right) of Dublin, Ireland, who holds the world record in the mile. The event was sponsored by Guinness Beer. Others in attendance included, from left, Connie Doolan, Guinness Trade Relations Director for North America; Bad Abbotts owner Peter Kerr and his daughter Lisa.

Miscues, Lack Of Hitting Result In Four NQ Losses

It was a frustrating first week to say the least for coach Dave Perdios and the North Quincy High School baseball team.

In all five of their games, the Red Raiders (1-4) had the lead heading into the fourth inning, only to see their opponent come back and win four of those games.

NQ looks to break its four-game losing streak Friday at 4 p.m. against visiting Taunton. Saturday at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., NQ takes on visiting New Bedford. All games are slated to be at Adams Field.

In Monday's 4-2 loss to Silver Lake, North jumped out to a 2-0 lead before an outfielder's misjudgment on a line drive led to three Silver Lake runs.

Senior pitcher Ryan Herlihy performed admirably in his second start, allowing five hits and three walks while striking out 11 in seven innings of work.

"He pitched a great game, but we just didn't hit, which has been the major problem so far for us," said Perdios. "We only got three hits against Silver Lake and it's tough to win that way. We could be undefeated if we hit better in each game."

Michelle Lydon Elected Park, Recreation Board Chairman

Michelle Lydon was recently elected chairman of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

The nine-member board unanimously elected her at its March meeting.

Lydon has been a member of the Park of Recreation Board since 1993 and has served as vice chairman for two years. She will replace Peter Kenney, who served two one-year terms as chairman.

Lydon currently works as a funeral director at the Lydon Funeral Home in Quincy. A lifelong resident Quincy, she is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree. She earned an associate's degree from the New England Institute and a bachelor's degree from Fitchburg State College.

She is married to former Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan and has two children, Roberta and Charles III.

"It will be an honor to serve as chairman," she said. "I hope I can help continue the reputation Quincy has of providing top quality recreational programs and facilities to all its residents."

Also elected were Stephen Hawko as vice chairman and Kenney as secretary. Other members include Bryant Carter Jr., Howard Crowley, Ted DeCristofaro, Ronald Mariano, Kathleen Mitchell and Frank Santoro.

The Park and Recreation Board is responsible for overseeing the Quincy Park and Recreation departments. The board is comprised of one member from each of the city's six wards, appointed by the mayor, and three at-large members appointed by the City Council, including a School Committee member.

The board's duties include establishing policy, approving permits, and setting rules and regulations. Barry Welch is director of the Quincy Recreation Department and Thomas Koch is executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments.

"We're as good as the teams we've played—we just don't have much to show for it. If the hitting comes around, we'll do well. If not, we're going to be in trouble."

The Red Raiders dropped a doubleheader Sunday at Barnstable, losing the first game, 3-2, in 12 innings and the second game, 8-2.

In the first game, North held a 2-0 lead into the seventh inning, but Barnstable tied it up to force extra innings and eventually won it in the 12th. Junior pitcher John Sullivan gave up four hits and two walks while striking out seven and "deserved to win," said Perdios.

North took a 2-0 lead into the fifth inning of the second game before a throwing error led to five unearned runs which decided the outcome of the contest.

"All of a sudden, on one play we go from up two to down 5-2," said Perdios. "Sean Manning, in his first start, got out of a lot of early jams and should've gotten out of the fifth, too."

Perdios commended senior center fielder Brian Beaton for his defensive heroics in the doubleheader: "He must have made five great catches, including three diving catches to keep us in the games."

In a 9-3 loss to Falmouth last Wednesday, the Red Raiders led 3-0 into the fifth when walks, hit batsmen and errors came back to haunt North. Falmouth scored five in the fifth and one in the sixth to build a 6-3 lead. Sophomore shortstop Chris Bregoli had three hits for the Raiders.

The Red Raiders opened the season on a high note, claiming a 6-2 win over Plymouth South. Herlihy picked up the victory, tossing five innings of four-hit ball with six strikeouts. Manning came on in relief and closed the door, allowing one hit and striking out two.

Beaton, who led the offense with three hits (single, double, triple) and three RBI, also excelled defensively with a couple of nice catches in center field.

North Freshmen Win Two Of Three To Start Season

The freshman baseball team at North Quincy High School finished the first week of the season at 2-1 with victories over Barnstable and Silver Lake.

North split its doubleheader with Barnstable, taking the opener, 9-7, before dropping the second, 17-5.

Sean Adams picked up the win in the first game. Fireballing Stephen Reddy picked up the save with three innings of one-hit ball while fanning five.

NQ broke open a tight game in the third, sending 10 men to the plate and scoring six runs. Paul Skarzenski ripped a bases-loaded double for two runs and John Gavin lined an RBI single. Chris Walsh led the NQ attack with two hits while Bill O'Toole added a double and two RBI.

Two big innings for Barnstable ended NQ's hopes for a sweep. North took a 2-1 lead in the second after Kevin Shea's single scored Paul Wise and Adams.

NQ then saw Barnstable score six runs and add nine more in the fourth to salt the game away. North's hitting attack was led by Lou Bell (two hits including a double) O'Toole (double), Mike McCarthy and Walsh.

Walsh and O'Toole finished the doubleheader with three hits apiece.

In an 8-4 win over Silver Lake, Andy Carrie hurled three scoreless innings of hitless ball to pick up the win. NQ had only one hit through three innings, a Jody Bravo double.

The Raiders woke up to score five times in the fourth, with a McCarthy groundout and a bases-loaded single for two RBI by Steve Minukas keying the rally. Matt Millerick and Bell collected the other North hits. Bravo finished up on the mound, fanning four in two innings of hitless relief.

Outdoor Track

North Girls Bow Twice

The girls outdoor track team at North Quincy High School found out that Cape Cod is a nice place to visit, but don't plan on winning any track meets there.

North's girls took a double loss last week, dropping a 95-41 decision to Falmouth and an 82-54 loss to Barnstable.

North was not without its bright lights, though, as the javelin crew of Kerry Ginty, Nicole Bertone and Maureen Holleran swept versus Falmouth. Kelly Lockhead won the hurdles and Wingsze Yuen and Sarah Beston both took double seconds in their events.

Other scorers against Falmouth were Kellie Johnston (second in 200 and long jump), Heather Meighan (third in mile), Lynda Wilson (second in two mile) and Claire Quilty (third in discus).

In the Barnstable meet run in swirling winds and freezing cold, North appeared to be in good shape until a disqualification in the 4x100 relay seemed to derail any thoughts of victory. Ginty again won the javelin with Bertone third. Wingsze Yuen tossed one discus 104'1", her best ever, and won the shot with a 32'11", her best ever outdoors.

Claire Quilty took second in disc and third in shot. Beston won both the high jump and triple jump, Jasmine Gonzalez won the 400, but the Raiders couldn't crack the win column in any other events.

Taking seconds were Wilson (800 and mile), Johnston (200), Kristin Coughlin (300 hurdles), Sarah Houghton (two mile) and Maureen Holleran (100). Lockhead took third in the 100 hurdles.

North took on league power Silver Lake Tuesday at Veterans Stadium.

"We have sure points in a number of field events, but we have freshmen and sophomores in many events who are untested," said North coach Geoff Hennessy. "They're taking their lumps early. Teams like the Capes and Silver Lake and B-R have a strong nucleus of upperclass people. Our youngsters will get their chance to rule the roost later."

Girls' Softball

Schedule, Luck Not On Winless Presidents' Side

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The young softball team at Quincy High School had the unenviable task of kicking off its season against Old Colony League titans Taunton, Bridgewater-Raynham and New Bedford, along with an improved Weymouth squad.

The result? Four losses, though the Presidents were in each game before a bad break or miscue opened the floodgates for the opposition.

The Presidents looked to pick up their first victory yesterday (Wednesday) when they traveled to Plymouth South for an OCL contest. The result was unavailable as of press time. Quincy's next game is Friday at 4 p.m. when it hosts OCL foe Falmouth.

In Monday's 11-1 loss to New Bedford, Quincy trailed 2-1 heading into the bottom of the fifth when disaster struck. Senior ace pitcher Angela Hogrell injured her arm and had to leave the game.

New Bedford took advantage of Hogrell's absence to score nine unanswered runs to put the game out of reach. Quincy coach Bob Keuther said that Hogrell's injury, a muscle strain, was not serious.

"She (Hogrell) has been outstanding, real solid on the mound," said Keuther. "When the weather gets warmer, we're expecting even bigger things from her, because she's always pitched well in the warm weather."

Keuther cited the hustle of freshman center fielder Jennifer Grogan, who raced after a ball in the gap and nearly came up with a diving catch to rob a New Bedford hitter.

"She came within about six inches of it, and I give her a lot of credit for that effort," he said. "She definitely went after it, which is what you love to see."

In a loss to Bridgewater-Raynham last Friday, the Presidents trailed 4-0 in the fifth before Keuther said "the wheels came off" and B-R blew the game open.

Last Wednesday, one bad inning resulted in a 15-9 defeat at the hands of Weymouth.

"A couple of errors cost us," said Keuther. "We also had the bases loaded one inning with one out and Collen Nichol up. She ripped a line drive, which the third baseman caught and turned it into a double play to kill the rally. Those things will happen, so you just have to roll with it and move on."

Senior Kim Garthwait, who had two hits against Weymouth, has impressed her coach with her consistent effort and solid work ethic.

"Kim's been a pleasant surprise, moving up to varsity and playing first and right field for us," said Keuther. "She's second on the team with a .350 average and has done a great job all-around to this point. She came in prepared to play and has helped us a lot."

Senior Alisha Ford, the team's leading hitter with a .457 average, has made the transition from center field to shortstop smoothly, said Keuther.

Quincy's opener against Taunton last Monday was also a close game (5-2 in the fifth) before Taunton pulled away for the victory.

A Thought For The Week

SCOTT DEWARE

We are, by nature, I think, creatures of habit. I have heard it said that most of us will not change until the pain of remaining the same is greater than the pain of changing. We are like the dog the preacher encountered when he went to visit an elderly church member. As the two men tried to visit, the dog continually moaned and growled. The old man explained why—"The old dog is trying to sleep, but he's lying on a nail. He hurts enough that he can't sleep, but he doesn't hurt enough to make him get up and move."

Often we hurt enough to moan and growl about the way things are and never consider trying an attitude of thanksgiving to improve our lives. The Apostle Paul said in 1 Thessalonians 5:18 we are to "give thanks in all circumstances." He believed it would make a positive difference in our lives.

Attitude is a choice. Victor Frankl wrote: "The last of the human freedoms is to choose one's attitude in any given set of circumstances." You don't just evolve into a thankful person, you choose to become one. One preacher wrote, "If your abilities are equal to those of other people and you are not sharing in equal success, then your attitudes are probably the difference. Since God created you with the freedom to choose your attitude, the choice determines much of what happens to you."

Invest In Home Security -- Now

CHECK THE OUTSIDE OF YOUR HOME

Look at your house from the outside. Make sure you know the following tips:

- Thieves hate bright lights. Install outside lights and keep them on at night.
- Keep your yard clean. Prune back shrubbery so that it doesn't hide doors or windows. Cut back tree limbs that a thief could use to climb to an upper-level window.
- Clearly display your house number so police and other emergency vehicles can find your home quickly.
- If you travel, create the illusion that you're at home by getting some timers that will turn lights on and off in different areas of your house throughout the evening. Lights burning 24 hours a day signal an empty house.
- Leave shades, blinds, and curtains in normal positions. And don't let your mail pile up! Call the post office to stop delivery or have a neighbor pick it up.
- Make a list of your valuables - VCR, stereo, computers, jewelry. Take photos of the items, list their serial numbers and descriptions. Check with law enforcement about engraving your valuables through Operation Identification.
- Ask local law enforcement for a free home security check.

CONSIDER AN ALARM

Alarms can be a good investment, especially if you have many valuables in your home, or live in an isolated area or one with a history of break-ins.

- Check with several different companies before you buy so you can decide what level of security fits your needs. Do business with an established company and check references before signing a contract.
- Learn how to use your system properly. Don't "cry-wolf" by setting off false alarms. People will stop paying attention and you'll probably be fined.
- Some less expensive options: a sound-detecting socket that plugs into a light fixture and makes the light flash when it detects certain noises, motion sensing outdoor lights that turn on when someone approaches, or lights with photo cells that turn on when it's dark and off when it's light.

BURGLARS DO MORE THAN STEAL

Burglars can commit rapes, robberies, and assaults if they are surprised by someone coming home or pick a home that is occupied.

- If something looks questionable - a slit screen, a broken window or an open door - don't go in. Call the police from a neighbor's house or use a public phone.
- At night, if you think you hear someone breaking in, leave safely if you can, then call police. If you can't leave, lock yourself in a room with a phone and call the police. If an intruder is in your room, pretend you are asleep.
- Guns are responsible for many accidental deaths in the home every year. Think carefully before buying a gun. If you do own one, learn how to store it and use it safely.

THERE'S MORE YOU CAN DO

- Join a Neighborhood Watch Group. If one doesn't exist, you can start one with help from local law enforcement.
- Never leave a message on your answering machine that indicates you may be away from home. Rather than saying, "I'm not at home right now," say "I'm not available right now."
- Work with neighbors and local government to organize community clean-up. The cleaner your neighborhood, the less attractive it is to crime.

A. The bidder and all subcontractors under the bidder must maintain or participate in a bona fide apprentice training program as defined by M.G.L. c. 23, sections 11H and 11I for each apprenticeable trade or occupation represented in their work that is approved by the Division of Apprentice Training of the Department of Labor and Industries and must abide by the apprentice to journeymen ratio for each trade prescribed therein in the performance of the contract.

C. Any bidder or subcontractor under the bidder who fails to comply with this obligation as set forth in paragraphs above for any period of time shall be subject to one or more of the following sanctions which shall be ordered by the Mayor or his designee:

(1) cessation of work on the project until compliance is obtained; (2) withholding of payment due under any contract or subcontract until compliance is obtained; (3) permanent removal from any further work on the project; (4) liquidated damages payable to the City in the amount of 5% of the dollar value of the contract.

D. 200 Support Condo Trash Pickup Plan

condo owners face the same situation as those in Quincy.

Throughout the hearing, Raymondi obtained information from residents on how many units are at each condominium, how much is paid annually for trash pickup and how much is paid in taxes.

He said the main purpose of the hearing was to gather data for the planned DPW report. DPW Program Manager Michael Wheelwright, sitting in for Commissioner David Colton, also took notes at the hearing.

A couple of other issues were raised. When Wheelwright said the city recently sent a questionnaire regarding the trash pickup issue to all of the city's condo owners, a number of residents said they never received it. Copies of the questionnaire immediately were made and distributed to those in attendance.

Councillors were also told by residents that Harborside Condominiums in Marina Bay, receives city-mandated trash pickup by BFI. Wheelwright said he was unfamiliar with that situation.

Colton, however, said Tuesday that the city's trash program allows for curbside pickup at all resident dwellings, including Harborside and another condominium complex on Quarry Street. The program does not allow BFI to go onto condo property and empty the dumpsters which are used at all other Quincy condominiums, he said.

Asked about Raymondi's proposal Tuesday, Sheets said he will await the DPW report on the plan's cost and feasibility before deciding whether to support it. Like Raymondi, the mayor said McGrath would make the determination on how the plan would be implemented if it were to receive the support of the mayor and the council.

THE MATTER OF TIMING

"Pinging" is an abnormal form of combustion that causes shock waves in the engine's cylinders which cause the characteristic "pinging" sound. If left uncorrected pinging can lead to the destruction of the engine or, at least, a reduction in its useful life. However, it is a mistake to rush into retarding the factory-specified ignition timing to solve the problem of pinging (on those cars in which it is still possible to do so). While this strategy could work, it could also reduce power and fuel economy, as well as increase the emission of engine pollutants. Instead, the exhaust gas recirculation (EGR) system should be checked for correct operation, and the catalytic converter should be checked with a back-pressure test for restrictions. A check should also be made for the issue of new "proms" containing ignition timing information in the form of a computer code.

HINT: A prom (programmable read only memory) is a microchip installed in the car's computer which contains information about fuel mixture, ignition timing and other data.
At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, our friendly and highly qualified staff will gladly answer all your questions about your ignition system or just about anything else related to cars. Final $500,000 Seawall Project Now Underway

The fifth and final phase of the restoration of the city's seawalls is underway and should be completed by June, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor said Tuesday the $500,000 project is part of a five-pronged, $2,080,000 effort that is being financed by money from the last major public works bond floated by the city.

"That completes my commitment to keep the seawalls secure," said Sheets.

The seawall restoration project's fifth phase, which is being done by D & C Construction Co. of Avon, is focusing on the city's Houghs Neck neighborhood. Among the affected streets, Sheets noted, will be Sea Street, Manet Avenue, Shoreside Road and Post Island Road.

The other four phases of seawall repairs have included: Merrymount, particularly the Narragansett Road-Shore Avenue area; Squantum, including the Heath Street-Deerfield Street section; and the Edgewater Drive and Bayswater Road areas in Houghs Neck. Sheets said each of the five phases has been done by different private companies because of a competitive bidding process.

The seawall at Wollaston Beach along Quincy Shore Drive, one of the most visible in the city, has not been part of the work because it is under the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), the mayor said.

Sheets said the seawall work previously completed already has reaped benefits, as the impact of the rainy nor'easter that blew through the city over the weekend was lessened considerably due to the improved seawalls.

"According to what (Department of Public Works Commissioner) David Colton has told me, there are a number of areas in the city that received no flooding because of the repaired seawalls," he said.

"With the type of storm we had over the weekend, we normally would have had flooding before the work was done.

"Those people who live along the water in those areas are experiencing a better quality of life because of the seawall work. And as mayor, it makes you happy to see that because that's what it really is: a quality of life issue."

Sheets also noted that has received what he termed "good news" about two projects that caused some residents to become frustrated following a particularly powerful rainstorm last October: the Furnace Brook drainage project and the Town Brook flood relief project.

'At 65, Time To Move On'

Comer Retires As Housing Authority Executive Director

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

John (Jake) Comer retired Wednesday as the executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority after serving the state's 11th largest housing authority for 15 years.

Comer submitted his retirement papers to the Quincy Retirement Board Tuesday morning. They were approved Tuesday afternoon and his retirement took effect Wednesday.

Comer, who celebrated his 65th birthday Sunday, said it was time to move on.

"I had been planning this for some time. My family and close friends had always known that my time to move on would be when I turned 65. I did so on Sunday.

"I feel at age 65, it's time to change careers and to do something else," said Comer.

Appointed QHA executive director in March,

JOHN COMER

1982, Comer said he would offer his services as a consultant to the Quincy Housing Authority's Board of Commissioners at its meeting tonight (Thursday). As a consultant, Comer would assist the transition to a new director similar to his appointment 15 years ago.

"I promised the Board of Commissioners that I would be willing to serve as a consultant for an orderly transition and I will stay on as long as they want me. That was done for me. I am willing to do that for them," Comer told The Sun Tuesday.

Comer succeeded Clement A. O'Brien who served as QHA executive director from December, 1967 to March, 1982. O'Brien stayed on for about 10 weeks before Comer officially took over.

Before becoming the authority's executive director, Comer served as a Murder Victim's Mother:

'Dawn Is At Peace'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The mother of murder victim Dawn Brown says she and her family have finally received what they have wanted for nearly four years: justice.

A jury in Dedham Superior Court last week convicted her killer, former Cape Cod resident John Anthony "Tony" Diaz, 28, of first-degree murder, which means a sentence of life in prison without parole.

"I'm just glad it's over, and that Dawn is at peace," her mother, Virginia Brown, said in a telephone interview after the conclusion of the trial.

Dawn, 25, was shot in the forehead by Diaz in front of her family home on Royal Street in North Quincy on the night of July 10, 1993. She died the following day at Boston City Hospital.

A 1985 graduate of North Quincy High School, she had taken classes at Quincy College and planned

Final $500,000 Seawall Project Now Underway

The mayor said both projects are on schedule. A bid for work on the Town Brook project, which is under the jurisdiction of the Army Corps of Engineers and the MDC, is due in June and construction could take place over the next year and the Furnace Brook project, which is being planned by the state highway department, is scheduled to begin by 1999.

Residents in Wards 2 and 4 voiced frustration to the City Council last fall, saying those projects could have helped alleviate storm-related flooding had they already been completed.

Mayor James Sheets wants a new Quincy tourism director and a new CEO at the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River shipyard hired within the next six months.

The mayor made his comments Tuesday while discussing the city's tourism situation. Sheets said the two positions are crucial to Quincy's efforts to attract more tourists.

Former Tourism Director Jo-An Thomas, who was hired by Quincy 2000—the city's private-planning corporation—left Quincy earlier this year because of lack of funding for her position. Thomas came to the city last year when Quincy 2000 used mitigation money from a special permit obtained by Roche Bros. Supermarkets and Wal-Mart to fund her position.

Sheets said the new tourism director will command a similar annual salary of between $45,000 and $50,000 but likely will not be hired by Quincy 2000 since a new source of revenue for the position must be located.

News of the resignation of William MacMullen, executive director of the shipbuilding museum, came in early February, shortly after Thomas' departure. MacMullen left for personal reasons.

Sheets said the 11-member Board of Directors at the museum, which he chairs, is the body that will select MacMullen's replacement. The museum head's salary is about $50,000 and is funded by the proceeds from the museum, which has the Quincy-built heavy cruiser U.S.S. Salem as its centerpiece.

The mayor stressed that while he would like to see both positions filled by the fall, the city's tourism efforts can continue without them.

Sheets acknowledged that attendance numbers have dropped at some of the city's historic sites in recent years but said there is reason for optimism in the future, including a new 28-page marketing guide about the city and plans for increased solicitation of the Salem to various groups.

More Than 800 Members So Far

Retiree Group To Hold First Meeting April 29

A new group that will act on behalf of retired Quincy city workers will hold its first general meeting Tuesday, April 29 at 3 p.m. at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus.

The Quincy Retiree Association Inc., which has sent mailings to a number of retirees or their surviving spouses throughout the city, now has more than 800 members, according to Steve Moynihan, who is serving as interim president of the new organization. They joined by sending replies to the mailings along with $10 membership checks to the group.

All members and potential members are invited to attend the general meeting.

Moynihan, who served as director of business affairs for the Quincy Public Schools for 23 years before his retirement, said the members are 95 percent city retirees and the rest are still active employees thinking of retiring. Active Quincy employees eventually will be allowed to join the association as non-voting associate members, he said.

Later in the year, the group will hold a meeting to elect board members, he added.

Moynihan told The Quincy Sun in February the Quincy Retiree Association Inc. will give city retirees a greater voice in the community by promoting, protecting and enhancing the general welfare of the retirees themselves as well as their spouses and surviving spouses.

Specifically, he said, the association "will monitor legislation pertaining to employee benefits as they relate to retired Quincy employees" and will appear before the City Council, School Committee and other officials when necessary to discuss that legislation.

In addition, the association plans to hold a couple of annual socials in addition to its other general meetings and will publish a newsletter containing obituaries, listings of new retirees, legal columns and other articles.

QCBPA Asks Council To Take Business Area From Historic District

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association wants the downtown business district between Granite and School Sts. removed from the historic district.

City Council President Peter Kolson has been informed by letter that the QCBPA Board of Directors unanimously voted for the change at its meeting April 8.

Kolson, reached for comment prior to the council's Tuesday night meeting, said he planned to have the matter discussed briefly before placing it into the council's Ordinance Committee. He noted that he likely will support the QCBPA's position, particularly if it helps more business develop in Quincy Center.

"I don't see any great benefit to having that area in a historic district," he said.

The board said it feels that new signage ordinance pending before the City Council with enforcement by the Building Inspector is strict enough and that additional enforcement by the Quincy Historical Commission "makes an unnecessary second layer of bureaucracy."

The board said that the area between Granite and School Sts. is not a true historic district but a business district and should have the same rights as other business districts in the city.

The board also requested that the role of the Historic Commission pertaining to signage in a historic district be limited to signs on historic buildings.

QCBPA President Daniel Flynn said he hopes the City Council backs the QCBPA and their position on the issue.

"To include the downtown in the historic district would stifle development and redevelopment," said Flynn. "For property owners and business owners alike, this would be too much. Under the current zoning ordinances and building codes, there is a great deal of control which provides quality construction without sacrificing aesthetically-pleasing properties."

The Quincy Center Historic District was created by a city ordinance in 1974 and included Adams St. to Dimmock St. down Hancock St. to Granite St. where it ended.

In 1989-15 years later—the district was extended to include Hancock St. from Granite to School Sts. by other ordinance.

There is another historic district—the Adams Birthplaces District on Independence Ave. and surrounding area.

The letter sent to Kolson for the QCBPA Board of Directors by Maralin Manning, executive director, asks that the ordinance be amended to restore Hancock St. between Granite and Schools Sts. to a non-historic district status.

The letter reads:

"Dear President Kolson, "At its April 8, 1997 meeting the QCBPA Executive Board voted unanimously that the following proposal be drafted and presented to the Quincy City Council:

"The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Board of Directors, representing 150 members, respectfully requests that the City Council amend Ordinance 440, passed on Dec. 18, 1989, that extended the Quincy Historic District.

"The Board of Directors requests that Hancock Street between Granite and School Streets be returned to a non-historic district status, as it was when the Quincy Center Historic District was created and ended at Granite Street under the Ordinance 137 of 1974.

"It is the feeling of the QCBPA Board that Hancock Street between Granite and School Streets is not a true historic district but a business district and as such should have the same rights as other business districts in the city.

"The board also feels that the new signage ordinance, pending before the City Council, is strict enough and appropriately calls for enforcement by the city's Building Inspector.

"The board feels enforcement of signage regulations by the Quincy Historical Commission on top of enforcement by the city Building Inspector makes an unnecessary second layer of bureaucracy.

"The Board of Directors further requests that the role of the Quincy Historical Commission, pertaining to signage, be limited to signage on buildings of true historic value when located in an established Historic District."

Council To Receive City Budget May 5

The City Council will receive its first look at Mayor James Sheets' proposed municipal budget for Fiscal Year 1998 on May 5.

Sheets said this week he plans to submit the FY98 budget to the council at its first meeting next month. The council has the power to make cuts to the budget but cannot add to it and must approve it in some form before July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

At press time, the mayor could not provide what he foresees as his proposed budget increase.

"We're getting pretty close to finishing it up," said Sheets, who noted that various expenditures including wage, pension and other costs make an annual increase in the budget necessary. "We always try to keep it at no more than 4 or 5 percent."

He added that "six or seven decisions on major amounts of money" pertaining to the police, public works and other city departments must be made before he can determine the amount of the increase.

Last year, the council approved an FY97 budget totaling just over $143.1 million, a figure nearly 3 percent or about $4 million higher than the FY96 budget.

Obscene Bumper Stickers

Bumper stickers are eye-catching. They come in many varieties: amusing slogans, political candidates, schools and sports teams, fun and serious messages, etc.

But now, are some of them going too far? Obscene? Vulgar? Poor taste?

Rev. John Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston, thinks some of them are. Swanson, who is also a Naval Reserve chaplain, hasn't lived a sheltered life. He's no fuddy-duddy prude.

But he is concerned over some of the four-letter worded messages traveling around town on the rear bumpers and back windows of cars.

He raised his concerns in this month's issue of the church newsletter of which excerpts follows:

"What struck me about the bumper stickers was their aggressiveness, not their obscenity.

"I worked my way through college in a shipyard. My ears and eyes, regrettably, are not so tender as to be shocked by seeing or hearing four letter words. But never had I seen them used in such an aggressive 'in your face' manner.

"The bumper stickers were on a mini-van parked in front of my daughter's elementary school. There were five of them, all of them prominent, and each one more obscene than the last.

"They were so obscene that I cannot even describe their content in this newsletter except to say that they were sexually predatory and violent. One of them promoted homosexuality and suicide.

"The van was driven by a young woman picking up a child from school. When I approached her and asked about the bumper stickers, she looked straight ahead, turned up the radio, and mumbled an obscenity.

"This encounter happened here in front of the elementary school. This person was picking up a child. Imagine the childhood that child has! Imagine what she will be like as an adult.

"Our children, even my little seven year old, can't walk to school without seeing an obscenity and being told 'do the world a favor and kill yourself,' a direct quote from the only bumper sticker that didn't have a four-letter word."

Swanson's concerns no doubt are shared by many. Others won't even be fazed.

And, of course, there are those who will counter. "Hey, what about freedom of speech and expression? What about my rights?"

But isn't there some responsibility that goes along with those freedoms and rights?

Should people really have the right to ride around town with miniature billboards proclaiming obscenities in four letter words, thrusting them on anyone--child or adult-- who happens to be in the car behind, on the sidewalk or in a parking lot?

Freedom of speech and expression are cherished foundations of this country. But surely the founding fathers didn't have obscenity or pornography in mind when they guaranteed those freedoms in the Constitution.

The smut peddlers duck behind these freedoms to grind out their filth as their right.

But what about the rights of those who don't want this stuff shoved in their faces and in the faces of young children?

You can keep kids away from objectionable movies and TV programs--if you work at it. But bumper stickers which have been somewhat harmless for years, may have crossed the line into a real problem area.

How can you not see an obscene bumper sticker if suddenly it's in front of you?

How can anyone--especially children-- be shielded from obscene ones that are allowed to go anywhere on the bumper of a car?

It seems, sometimes, that our freedoms and rights get twisted in the wrong direction.

Why should people who don't want to see such junk have to put up with it?

What about their rights!

OLD FRIEND, Bill Spencer dropped by the other day to say hello and we couldn't believe it when he said he was 82. He sure doesn't look it.

Bill, a former Quincy police officer, retired as Supervisor of Attendance for the Quincy public schools in 1977 and now lives in Winter Haven, Fla.

He stays active down there as a mediator in a small claims court in Pope County.

He used to check on the Red Sox when they trained there but now the Cleveland Indians are there. "The right field fence is just 60 feet from my back porch," says Bill. "No broken windows but the roof has been dented a few times."

Bills son, Bill (nicknamed Ted for Ted Williams) is curator of the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown. There are plans there, says Bill, to have a Hall of Fame for the old Negro League whose players were good enough to make the major leagues but weren't allowed to because of the color line that was eventually broken by Jackie Robinson 50 years ago.

Bill was very active at Archbishop Williams High School serving as president of the Fathers Club and as Director of Development for the school.

He was recently honored by being inducted into the school's new Sports Hall of Fame.

A FUNDRAISER RECEPTION for Mayor James Sheets is set for Thursday, May 15 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Amelia's, at Marina Bay. Tickets are $100 per.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD is a view of the Titus farm in Squantum about 1910. Lilian (Huckins) Titus had inherited a large tract of land in Squantum from her grandfather and later added other properties to her holdings. In 1899 she sold most of the land for development into hundreds of house lots. She kept fifteen acres that at the time of this picture was the area of the farm. Later this too was divided into house lots. The road to Moon Island is in the left distance.

Quincy Cultural Facility Is Years Away At Best

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A recent meeting by cultural enthusiasts in the city revealed that construction of a cultural facility in Quincy will be a difficult task and at best is many years away. I have to extol them on their honesty; anything less would be fantasy.

During my tenure as mayor in 1976-77, we established The Quincy-South Shore Cultural Commission to promote the arts in the city. We gave it a regional title to attract federal and private support to a regional district then just one community out of many throughout the country. It was an era that had stirred interest in promoting the arts throughout the country.

When we designed a new City Hall complex in 1977, it included a cultural center in Quincy Center on city-owned land presently occupied by the Stop & Shop building. Federal monies became limited under the Economic Development Program and our project was limited to a City Hall annex at its present location with a $2.4 million grant.

The closest we came to building a cultural center was to build an outdoor theatre with federal CETA funds of over $500,000. We know this structure as the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre. This theatre is not duplicated in this region and has attracted much interest from performers and audiences in the Greater Boston area.

We learned through this experience that cultural centers are focused in the large metropolitan areas because of the corporate support and the concentration of political influence. Smaller communities are numerous and are no match for accomplishing its objectives.

The more realistic approach is to support a private venture with government support. The local interest from cultural groups should continue to keep the interest alive.

Four Generations In N.C. Enjoy The Sun

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I subscribe to The Sun for my parents, but actually four generations, including my two children and 16-year-old granddaughter, get to enjoy the paper, with its great old photos and stories about places and people we knew and remember well.

My mother was a "Taylor" born and brought up down the "Neck," and for many years we lived in Germantown. During those years I attended N.S. Hunting, the "Point" and QHS. My dad, both grandfathers, and many of my uncles worked at Fore River, so my dad has a great interest in the stories of its comeback.

It's wonderful to note that so many "kids" I went to school with have kept Quincy their home, and are helping to keep it the great place I remember it to be growing up.

"Ah, nostalgia"--but the warm southern breezes called, and there are no "April Fool" snowstorms down here!

Whitwell Street School Site Opposed

By PAUL HAROLD

At a public hearing this week, the Quincy Taxpayers Association (QTA) clashed with representatives of the "school bloc" who advocated the construction of two schools to relieve the overcrowding at the Willard and Cranch schools.

The "school bloc" wanted to build new schools on Whitwell St. on land owned by the Faxon family, and on MDC land on Furnace Brook Pkwy.

George Yarrington, spokesperson for the QTA, advocated the construction of one school on Furnace Brook Parkway, large enough to handle the overflow from both Willard and Cranch.

$400,000 PLANNED FOR ROAD CONSTRUCTION

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert announced that the city was planning to spend $400,000 in new street construction and repair. A similar amount was spent last year on city streets.

Major intersections would be reconstructed with work on recently accepted new streets: Ames St., Huntley Rd., Joan Dr., Puritan Dr., Keyes St., Linden St., Miles Dr., Penn's Hill Rd., Priscilla Ln., Sheldon St., Station St., Weston Ave., Winthrop St. and part of Ratchford St.

Some 200 students from Quincy junior high schools and Woodward School would see first hand how municipal government works, filling in for department heads throughout the city.

The program was organized last year by Gordon Dillon, administrative assistant to city manager William Deegan.

Sweet Potato Crust

One of my favorite vegetables is sweet potatoes. Recently, there were a couple left over and although I usually like them cold the next day, I looked in an old cookbook and found a great recipe for a crust. I used it for a chicken pie and loved the results.

Sweet Potato Crust

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup cold mashed sweet potatoes
1/2 cup melted margarine (or butter)
1 egg well beaten

Place mashed potatoes in the dry ingredients. Add the margarine and the eggs and beat well. Roll onto a floured board into a 1/4 inch and cover the chicken pie. (or beef pie).

Chicken Pie

3 cups chicken cut up
1 small onion
1 cup cooked carrots (sliced)
2 stalks celery (diced)
1 cup peas
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup string beans (optional)
1/2 cup corn kernels
Melt margarine, and saute onion and celery. Add the flour and milk whisking it smoothly. Add all of rest of the vegetables. Mixture should look somewhat like pancake mixture.

In a slightly greased pie dish, place the chicken pie mixture and then cover with the sweet potato crust. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 40 minutes or until top is brown.

Tobin Participates In Elder Services Program

State Rep. Stephen Tobin visited Quincy elders recently as part of South Shore Elder Services' Legislative Home Visits program.

The program allows local legislators to meet older voters and learn about home care services.

Ed Flynn, executive director of South Shore Elder Services, said Massachusetts was one of the first states in the nation to initiate a home care program, but that over the past six years, state funding for home care has been frozen.

"This funding freeze is taking place at a time when the number of frail elders and the demand for services is growing dramatically," said Flynn.

Flynn, who is also president of the Mass Home Care Association, proposed an increase in state funding for the home care program for Fiscal Year 1998.

"This would allow elders to live where they want to live—in their homes and communities—and result in substantial savings for taxpayers," he said.

"These programs not only save taxpayers' money, they're better for our elders too," said Tobin. "It's a privilege for me to meet Quincy elders and listen to their concerns, and learn more about South Shore Elder Services and the fine programs for our older citizens."

South Shore Elder Services is a private, non-profit corporation, a home care agency and area agency on aging serving older citizens in 11 South Shore communities. It provides case management, meals on wheels, a senior nutrition program, homemaking, personal care, and other services to elders in Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

Soundproofing Funding In Transportation Bond Bill

State Sen. Michael Morrissey announces the Joint Committee on Transportation has reported out legislation that includes $10 million for the erection of soundproofing barriers and other noise abatement programs along MBTA subway lines.

Morrissey, a member of the Joint Committee on Transportation, worked with the committee and its chairmen, Sen. Robert Haven (D-Arlington) and Rep.

Joseph Sullivan (D-Braintree) to have their language included in the 1997 Transportation Bond Bill.

"This legislation will provide the funds to continue that construction and provide further noise relief to Quincy neighborhoods," said Morrissey.

The 1994 Transportation Bond Bill funded the MBTA's Red Line Noise Abatement Program, which included a study that created a prior list which the MBTA will use to address sound related concerns.

Headstart-Christian Day School Students In Safety Program

Students in the Quincy Headstart and Christian Day School recently participated in Danger-Safe Patrol, a children's safety program sponsored by American Medical Response of Massachusetts.

The program, which teaches bike safety, walking safety and first aid to children in schools and community centers, was created four years ago by EMT Kathy Sacchetti. She was inspired to begin the effort after responding to a call for an 18-month-old baby named Meghan who died after falling down a flight of stairs while in the arms of her grandmother.

Sacchetti, a Brockton resident, has been an EMT with American Medical Response of Massachusetts for covering 45 New England communities with 911 emergency ambulance service. Its Quincy facility is located at 55 Broad St.

Michael Oliva Wins Award For Device For Disabled

Michael Oliva Jr. of Quincy was among four recent Worcester Polytechnic Institute graduates honored for their Major Qualifying Project "Design and Fabrication of a Backpack Access Device."

The device, which makes backpacks accessible to wheelchair-bound individuals, has garnered an award from the Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation.

The project won the Bronze Award in Undergraduate Division of the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation's 1996 Pre-Professional Awards Program. The national program recognizes excellence in college-level engineering research and design.

The motorized device, designed for a specific client with cerebral palsy, solves the problem some people in wheelchairs have with backpacks, which are traditionally hung on the back of the chairs--making their contents inaccessible without the help of an assistant.

Oliva currently is enrolled in a graduate program at Stanford University.

'Dawn Is At Peace'

to further her education in preparation for a nursing career.

Dawn had come home with her sister Kimberlee for the latter's bridal shower, which was held the night of the shooting. She had been spending the summer at Kimberlee's apartment in New Jersey.

Diaz thought he was shooting Kimberlee, his ex-girlfriend, in revenge for her breakup with him. The two sisters looked enough alike that he mistook his victim for Kimberlee in the dark.

Now that he has been brought to justice, Mrs. Brown said she feels more satisfied than she originally anticipated.

"I'm on a high," she said. "Dawn's death was such a tragedy that I never thought, through all this, that anything that happened to him would make any difference, even after he was caught. But when that verdict was read, I felt like the weight of the world had been lifted off my shoulders."

She also said she believes her daughter's soul is at rest because of the guilty verdict.

"It's made me feel that Dawn is finally at peace," she said. "I don't mean to get into religion, but we have a lot of faith, and I know Dawn is with us. I truly believe that Dawn is with us and always will be. We can't see her, and we can't touch her, but we can feel her."

Mrs. Brown added that despite the vindication her family feels now that the trial is over, she and her relatives feel some sympathy for the killer's mother as well as for the situation he has created for his own life.

But Dawn's death will haunt them forever, she said.

"We'll never get over it," said Mrs. Brown.

Following the murder, Diaz fled to Guyana where he lived under the alias Gregory Scott Grayson, the name of a Cape Cod toddler who died in 1971. He got married, began a new life, and remained there until his capture in August 1996.

Authorities were led to Diaz by a man who worked out with him at a gym in Guyana. The man recognized Diaz after seeing him on a segment of the television show "Unsolved Mysteries."

The murder trial began April 7 and lasted for eight days.

During the trial, defense attorney Henry Owens had Diaz admit to the crime, which was witnessed by a friend of Dawn's and her 12-year-old nephew—in an attempt to have the charge reduced to second-degree murder. This action, known in layman's terms as the "clouded-mind defense," allowed Diaz to maintain his not-guilty plea throughout the trial while claiming his state of mind was the reason he committed the murder.

Owens argued that Diaz, who is black, was depressed and psychotic because of a hard childhood and his belief that racism in the Brown family caused his breakup with Kimberlee.

But the jury, which included two black women, believed the evidence presented by prosecutor Gerald Pudolsky that showed how Diaz bought a handgun and established a new identity by obtaining a falsified passport and other identification months before the murder. The jury deliberated for only six hours before announcing its verdict April 15.

Mrs. Brown said the verdict was announced at 7:11 p.m., a time she found "very ironic" because the date of her daughter's death was July 11.

"We knew then Dawn was with us," she said.

Mrs. Brown also said she was offended by Owens' defense that painted her as someone who did not want her daughter dating a black man, but added that she understands it is a defense attorney's job to protect his client.

"That, to me, was so far out," she said. "A racist is something I've never been in my life, and I hope to God I never will be. That attorney did the best he could with what he had to work with, which was nothing."

Kimberlee Brown Goldstein, who has married since the murder and still lives in New Jersey, could not be reached for comment but has said in the past she and Diaz broke up because they had grown apart romantically.

ROTTEN TO THE CORE

When a cooling system failure is traced to the radiator, it may seem that a total replacement is necessary. Closer inspection of the problem, however, may reveal that only the core of the radiator is beyond repair. If so, a radiator technician can clean and recondition existing tanks, coolers, and side brackets, and then install them with a new core. Today's repair techniques have kept pace with the introduction of new materials in late-model passenger cars. While lead solder still works as well as ever on conventional brass/copper radiators, epoxies and special brazing materials, among other products, can be called upon to repair aluminum and plastic components. The options, therefore, include recoring, repairing and replacing radiators.

When internal or external debris inhibit radiator performance, any of a variety of cleaning techniques may be used to return two component of the car's cooling system to perfect working order.

Maintaining your car is important so that it will give you better service and last longer. At today's prices it is not wise to do anything else. To help you properly care for your car, come into LEO & WALT'S SUNCOCO, where you will be offered the best service available by ASE Certified technicians who are very knowledgeable about today's cars. EDWARD FITZGERALD, director of Quincy Historical Society, discussed "The City of Quincy, A Historical Perspective" during a recent Quincy Leadership program seminar.

Quincy Leadership Program A Learning Opportunity

Quincy Leadership, a program designed to assist existing and emerging leaders and to create a committed, involved and diverse network of leaders in the city began earlier this month and will continue every Thursday until June 19.

The program gives participants the opportunity to learn from today's leaders. Quincy Leadership participants gain the skills to lead their organizations and the city into the 21st century.

In a small group, Quincy Leadership provides the opportunity to create a communications network between present and future community leaders. The purpose is to develop individual leadership skills and abilities while promoting leadership on an ongoing basis. As the group becomes aware of the challenges in the community and the opportunities for growth, they will be better able to develop creative solutions.

The early morning time slot, 7:30 to 9 a.m., allows participants to start each Thursday with an opportunity for dialogue with community leaders and each other. Upon completion of the program, public recognition of the graduates and a certificate of achievement will be awarded.

The program is a cooperative effort between Quincy College and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. The initial group taking advantage of the opportunity are: Fred Costello, A.I.G.; Edward Crocker, Crocker Electric; Betty Diener, Environmental Business Council of New England; Craig Gibson, Quincy Hospital Health and Education Foundation; Sean Kenealy, Key Realty; Eleanor Kopp, Clifford's Flowers; Kathleen Linehan, Jewish Vocational Service; Francis McCauley, Quincy School Committee; Mary Ann Stilgoe, Center for Educational Enhancement and Development; Josephine Vidal, Dennis & Associates, PC; Tiffanie Williams, The Law Office of Thomas F. Williams.

Featured speakers include: Dr. Kent Hill, president of Eastern Nazarene College; Edward Fitzgerald, director of the Quincy Historical Society; Mayor James Sheets; George Humann, executive director of South Coastal Regional Employment Board; Mark Bertman, Cyber Realm; Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000; Betty Yao, Yao Marketing; Ann Marie Simone, executive director of DOVE; Jay Asher, president of WJDA Radio; Ron Suga, Massachusetts Teacher's Association; Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, president and William Fay, faculty, both of Quincy College.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Seven Simple Tips On Securing Your Home

With more than 8,600 break-ins every day, the key to securing your home is to put strong obstacles in a burglar's path so he'll look for another target. It's easier to do than you think. Here are seven simple security steps from Kwikset, the largest manufacturer of residential locks in the U.S.:

1. Make sure all porches, entrance areas and yards are well-lit. Turn on exterior lights when you're home at night, plus interior lights when you are away for the evening.

2. Prune any shrubbery that hides doors or windows. Remove tree limbs that a thief could climb to reach second story windows.

In more than 40 percent of the burglaries, thieves simply enter a home through an unlocked door or window.

3. Don't hide house keys in mailboxes, planters or under doormats.

4. If you are going to be away for two days or more, suspend deliveries of newspapers, bottled water and other items.

5. If you have just moved into a house or apartment, have the locks rekeyed.

6. Check your door and window locks. If they appear to be more than five years old, they may be outmoded and should be replaced.

7. Don't leave any messages on a phone answering machine saying you will be away for awhile and will return calls when you arrive home.

Remember, it's easy and inexpensive to help protect your home against break-ins with the many burglar-resistant locks now available. You can reduce your risk of becoming a burglary victim by at least 66 percent simply by adding secure locks to your doors and windows and using them constantly.

For a free booklet on securing your home, write: Kwikset, The Key To A More Secure Home booklet, 4020 Birch Street, Suite 203, Newport Beach, CA 92660; or call: (714) 851-6313.

It's Easier To Sell A 'Lived-In' Home

[The following is from ERA Central Real Estate, 128 M. Heath Highway, Quincy.]

Q: Is it easier to sell a vacant home or a "lived-in" home to prospective buyers?

A: Even though a vacant home is a sure sign that you're serious about selling, many buyers find it more difficult to decide on a home if the inside is empty as opposed to one with all the features still intact.

If your house lacks any furniture, pictures or other features that help it look like the ultimate home, a buyer might have a difficult time trying to picture how their belongings would look inside. In other words, the proportions are tougher to determine for a buyer to mentally arrange their furniture in a vacant home.

If you have already moved out and want to help make your home more saleable, consider these suggestions:

• Because dust seems to accumulate more noticeably in vacant homes, you should clean, dust and vacuum regularly, even if you have to hire a cleaning service.

• On the outside, be sure to mow the lawn, trim the hedges, and keep your yard free of debris in efforts to send buyers a warm greeting before entering the inside of the home.

• Leave the electricity, heat and water on so buyers can test the appliances and get a better "light" on the subject, your home.

• You can "stage" your home, or rent furniture to display in the home, to help it acquire a "lived-in" look as opposed to a vacant look.

N.E. Commercial Real Estate Growing, First Quarter Survey Shows

Commercial real estate markets in Greater Boston, Southern New Hampshire and Central Connecticut continued to perform well in the first quarter of 1997, according to research released by Cushman & Wakefield's Research Services Group in New England.

"Just about every indicator shows that the New England commercial real estate market continues to be robust," said Thomas Collins, managing director for Cushman & Wakefield's New England area. "New construction is underway in every Massachusetts submarket, except for downtown Boston and Route 495 South and existing properties are being redeveloped."

"In addition, undeveloped land is in demand, as buyers view it as a smart investment and a prelude to future development. Rents are generally increasing, and although some vacancy rates have crept up, this is due to subleases coming on the market, rather than a cooling of the market."

Although the Greater Boston office market (which includes Boston and its suburbs through I-495) saw its overall vacancy rate rise slightly to 7.3 percent from 6.8 percent in the fourth quarter of 1996, pressure in the already tight Central Business District (CBD) intensified. The overall CBD vacancy rate dropped to 6.0 percent, from 6.4 percent in the fourth quarter of 1996. In the Financial District, the vacancy rate fell to 5.4 percent, from 5.6 percent last quarter.

Class A space in Boston's CBD continued to be at a premium. The average direct asking rent for Class A property in the CBD rose to $33.70, from $32.82 at the end of 1996. The vacancy rate for Class A space in the CBD continued to drop, reaching 4.1 percent overall and 3.9 percent in the Financial District. The average direct asking rate for Class A space in the Financial District rose to $36.44 per square foot, compared with $35.27 in the last quarter of 1996.

Every submarket in suburban Boston experienced new development in the first quarter of 1997, with the exception of 495 South. Notable was the completion of One Care Matrix Way-The Corporate Center at Dedham. Originally planned as a medical building, the property was completed as a general office building because of the growing demand for suburban office space. Work continued on 66 Brooks Drive, Braintree, and Two Granite Avenue, Milton, which represent more than 241,000 square feet of office space.

In addition to new construction, the suburbs are seeing redevelopment of existing properties. For example, Cabot, Cabot & Forbes plans to renovate the former Jordan Marsh warehouse on Grove Street in Newton into 500,000 square feet of Class A office space.

Auction Raises Over $3,500 For Quincy VNA

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association Turn of the Century Auction raised over $3,500 to support the home health services that the organization has provided since 1905.

The auction planning committee wore bathing suits from that time period during the evening to highlight the turn of the century theme.

The event, held recently at President's Place Galleria, featured a silent auction as well as a live auction. A flute quartet from South Shore Conservatory of Music entertained during the first part of the evening while those who attended tasted food prepared by Craig's Cafe, G.J. Codding's and O'Brien's Bakery.

Dan Flynn served as auctioneer. Some of the items that brought in high bids included a painting donated by Elizabeth Boynton, a work bench donated by Curry Ace Hardware, a Patriots football donated by the New England Patriots Charitable Foundation, and tickets to a private suite at Fenway Park for a Red Sox game donated anonymously.

A book of antique Quincy postcards donated by Tom Galvin also went to a high bidder. In addition to his donation to the auction, Galvin provided a display for the evening of 1905 postcards from his collection that has appeared in The Quincy Sun.

"This was our first try at a Turn of the Century auction and it was a great success," said Stephen Robbins, Quincy VNA executive director. "We are grateful to the generous organizations and individuals who donated items and supported us through advertisements, as well as those who bid on the items. With their help we can continue to provide quality care to everyone who is in need."

Quincy VNA is a private, non-profit home health care organization that serves residents of 19 South Shore communities, including Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Milton. Services include nursing, therapy, home health aides, IV therapy, nutrition, maternal child health, social workers and many other specialized services.

chairman of the Quincy Board of Assessors from 1978 to 1982. He was an assistant assessor from 1979 to 1970 and assessor from 1970 to 1976 before serving as administrative assistant to the Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee from 1976 to 1978.

Until a successor is named, Comer's assistant, Jackie Loud, will serve as acting director.

"There's no doubt that Jackie Loud is the most competent individual in the city to continue the day-to-day carrying out of policies by the Board of Commissioners. She has the ability—nobody has more qualifications than her," Comer said.

Loud is reportedly not interested in the executive director's position.

One well-known person considered to be interested in the job is State Rep. Ron Mariano. He is out of town and could not be reached for comment.

A past national commander of The American Legion, Comer said he will remain active with the Legion. He said will also stay busy traveling throughout the country for speaking engagements, especially on veterans' issues.

The search for a new director will officially begin Thursday at the QHA Board of Commissioners meeting. The commissioners will conduct a search for potential job candidates and then interview applicants.

After the search and interview process is completed, the Board will recommend a new director. A majority vote, or three of five commissioners, is needed to be hired. The new director must be confirmed by the Department of Housing and Community Development, a state agency.

Members of the QHA Board of Commissioners are: Rev. James Kimmel, chairman; Christine Cedrone, vice chairman; Frank Kearns, treasurer; Mary Kay Bamford, assistant treasurer; and James MacDonald, past chairman. None of the commissioners are eligible for the executive director's job.

The starting salary of the new housing director is expected to be about $60,000. The exact figure is tied to a formula based on the number of housing units among other factors.

The new director's appointment would be for one year. After that, the Commissioners could vote to extend the appointment or search for another director.

Quincy's housing authority is the 11th largest in Massachusetts, with a $15 million operating budget and grants and modernization funding totaling another $15 million.

The QHA consists of 2600 public housing units, including 11 elderly complexes, three family developments, four handicapped homes, and 1000 section 8 and state certificates.

Comer said the construction of three handicapped homes housing 40 needy tenants is among the highlights of his tenure. He also pointed out the Authority has served the needs of the community, helping to establish day care facilities, satellite health facilities and food pantries as well as other services like community policing, transitional housing and first-time homebuyer's assistance under his leadership.

"My shining star would be the support services which we have brought into the authority during the last 15 years," Comer said, adding he has "mixed feelings" about stepping down as the Authority's fourth director.

"I feel good. I'm still young at heart. But once you file those retirement papers, it's like removing a weight off your shoulders. You realize you have fewer days ahead of you than in front of you and it's time to move on."

ON THE CUTTING EDGE

For ages, it seems, traditional wisdom has had it that a cut or wound should be kept as dry as possible to prevent infection. The appearance of a hardened scab has usually brought a sigh of relief and satisfaction—healing is going along as it should. That "wisdom" could be changing. Doctors working with premature babies discovered that applying a petroleum-based ointment to cuts and burns helped the injuries heal quicker than similar wounds left to dry, plus were almost eight times less likely to become infected. The reason the ointment has this effect, say the researchers, is that the body's tissue-building cells work best in a moist environment. Care must be taken to keep the wound clean, but children and adults alike may benefit from applying a dab of ointment to minor abrasions after bathing.

P.S. Keeping a wound moist may also help reduce the scarring that can result from a thick scab.

When it comes to medicine, there is an information explosion, which is why it is important that you have confidence that your physician is keeping up with the latest treatments so you can receive the best care possible. Hitting Woes Plague Struggling Raiders

By LIAM FITZGERALD

A prime example of how the North Quincy High School baseball team's offense is struggling came in Monday's 7-0 defeat at home to Stoughton.

The Red Raiders (1-5) managed just three hits against Stoughton as their collective batting average fell to a woeful .167.

North Quincy coach Dave Perdios is surprised at the team's lack of offensive punch, despite having a number of young starters.

"We only have three starters who have more than two hits," he said. "A couple of the others have one or two hits and the rest have none. I know we have some new guys in the lineup who haven't played varsity before, but we should be hitting a lot better than we are."

"We should be 4-2 at the very least, but if you don't score, you can't win. It's that simple. We hit a lot in practice, but when the game starts, we can't seem to carry it over."

NORTH QUINCY THIRD baseman Bryan Linskey looks for an out call after tagging a Stoughton runner during the Red Raiders' 7-0 loss Monday. North's struggling offense managed just three hits and is hitting a collective .167.

Father And Son Golfers Share Memorable Day

Friday, April 11 was a memorable day in the golfing lives of Paul Kelly Jr. and his father, Paul Kelly Sr., both of Quincy.

On that day, Paul Jr. scored a double-eagle 2 on the 512-yard 10th hole on the Myrtle Beach (S.C.) National West Course, connecting on a 198-yard 6-iron shot after a tremendous drive.

That same day, Paul Sr. aced the 155-yard 14th hole with a 5-iron at The Golf Club of Plantation in Plantation, Fla.

It was the seventh hole-in-one of Paul Sr.'s career, while Paul Jr. scored his first double eagle.

It may have been the first time that a father and son produced such a feat on the same day--in two different states.

Paul Jr., 37, and his father, 68, are both former club champions at Wollaston Country Club. Paul Jr. is also a former New England CYO Junior Amateur champion (1982), while his father is a two-time CYO Junior Amateur champion (1943-44). Paul Jr. is now a member of The Country Club of Halifax.

Paralyzed Man Raises $10,000 For YMCA Partnership Program

By LIAM FITZGERALD

While thousands of runners and wheelchair participants raced to the finish line of Monday's Boston Marathon, Joe Monahan of Houghton Neck was finishing his own special version of the marathon at the South Shore YMCA in Quincy.

Monahan, who broke his neck in a swimming accident four months after running the 1989 Boston Marathon, Monday pedaled a special stationary bicycle with his arms and finished the 26.2-mile race in just 1 hour, 16 minutes.

"It was the next best thing to running the race, and it went extremely well," said Monahan, 30. "It was a great day; everyone at the Y was a big help. They were real supportive and were all there to congratulate me when it was over."

After the accident, which left him paralyzed from the chest down and in a wheelchair, he watched the marathon every year, but admitted it was tough not being able to compete.

"The day has been kind of empty the last six or seven years, and this made me get back in touch with the day," said Monahan. "It brought me back to '89, watching the start on TV, seeing the 10K and 20K signs. This was pretty close to the same satisfaction I got from running it back then, so I'm pleased I did it."

Monahan also enjoyed the fact that his family and friends were on hand to cheer him on, just like the crowd did when he ran the marathon eight years ago.

"A lot of my family and friends were here and were very supportive," he said. "When I ran in '89, the crowd pulled me through the last six miles, and today,

66 Runners Compete In Houghs Neck 'Marathon'

Sixty-six runners lined up Monday for the 42nd annual Patriots Day Marathon of the Houghs Neck American Legion Post 380.

Contestants included those from age 2 to "over 50," some in baby strollers and in wagons and on bicycles. The course was run from the Post at 1119 Sea St. to the Quincy Yacht Club and back.

Trophies were awarded to the winners. In boys ages 1 to 8, the winner was Danny Myers, followed by Jeffrey Mitchell and Jim Stone. In girls ages 1 to 8, Brianna Bergstrom was the winner, followed by Lisa Mullen and Myranda Dunlea.

In boys ages 9 to 14, Mike Quilty won the race, followed by Andy Lee and Pat Malone. In girls ages 9-14, Pam Jacobs was the winner, followed by Justine Mitchell and Jillian Barreau.

In the mens over 40 division, Kevin Ryan finished first, followed by Bob Vecchione and Dennis Murphy. In the womens 25 and older division, Mary Laing took first place, followed by Renee Stone and Nancy Jacobs.

George McCarron was the oldest runner, while Ashley Guthro, 2, was youngest girl. Adam O'Leary and John Jones, both 3, tied for youngest boy.

John Duffy, marathon chairman, was assisted by PC John Christensen, Auxiliary President Carol Gardiner, and Commander Mary Timcoe, who presented awards. Norfolk District Commander James Fratolillo also assisted.

KEVIN RYAN crosses the finish line to win the mens over 40 division of the 42nd annual Houghs Neck Marathon.

pledges for the Partnership Program at the YMCA. Founded in 1992, the Partnership Program pairs disabled with volunteer training partners to work out in the YMCA's weight room on specially designed equipment.

"It's a good cause and something that is gratifying to me, so I'm glad I could help out the program," said Monahan, who added that close to $10,000 had been raised as of Monday, with more pledges yet to be counted.

The money raised will be used to purchase more fitness equipment, so that many more can get involved in the program, he said. He also expressed a desire to make his version of the marathon an annual event.

"I hope this will get others with disabilities motivated to join us and know that there is someplace to work out," he said. "I know a lot want to, but they don't think the opportunity is out there."

"I want to tell them that they can come here and work out, just like I do. I also hope this will get some more volunteers, because the more volunteers we have, the more people can participate in the program."

Despite losing his mother, Patricia, to cancer two months ago after a six-month battle, Monahan never once thought about quitting his training.

"When I started coming to the Y in 1992, she drove me here and picked me up; she was a part of the program, too," he said. "I think she'd be happy that I'm still active, still working out. I probably work a little harder now, because that's what she would've wanted me to do."

Bob Concannon, who volunteered last June and is Monahan's trainer, is amazed at the determination and desire Monahan shows on a daily basis.

"It's been great working with him, because he is an example of courage and someone I admire," said Concannon. "He really enjoys the training, especially the social aspect, which I think is the most important part. He literally has 100 friends here who stop by and shoot the breeze with him and work out alongside him."

It would be so easy for him to get depressed, with losing his mother and suffering the injury, but he does not get down on himself and look for pity from people. He works hard every time he's here, and he lifts me up. He's an example to follow, a role model for others to look up to."

Richardson 5K Run-Walk To Benefit Library Sunday

The second annual Thomas Crane Public Library Richardson 5K Run-Walk and 1K Walk for Children will be held Sunday.

The 5K Run-Walk begins at noon from the intersection of Washington and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center. The 1K Walk begins at 11:30 a.m. Proceeds will benefit the library's building fund.

The race is being presented by Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, which was also last year's sponsor.

Contributing sponsors include Burgin Platner, Hurley Insurance Agency, Colonial Federal Savings Bank, Larry's Electrical Service and The Hibernia Savings Bank. Food sponsors are Monadnock Mountain Spring Water, H.P. Hood, Ocean Spray, Roche Brothers and Wanna Bagel.

Race applications are available at the main library and all branch libraries. Entry fee for the 5K is $12 in advance, $15 on race day. The 1K fee is $5.

Pre-race number and t-shirt pickup will be at Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center, Friday from noon to 5 p.m. and at the main library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center, Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The first 400 registrants will receive a t-shirt.

This year, children in the elementary and middle grades in the Quincy Public Schools, will have the opportunity to support the library building project by seeking pledges.

There are several award categories for individual and team achievement. Individual female awards are for male and female first place in young adult, open division, master division, senior division, wheelchair, police and firefighter. Team awards include corporate, police and fire.

Race day events include face painting for children, an appearance by Harvey the Dinosaur, live music and bagpiper Paul Kisman.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Ralph Waldo Emerson once said: "A man is relieved and happy when he has put his heart into his work and done his best; what he has said or done otherwise will give him no peace." In speaking of some rivers that he had discovered, David Livingstone wrote: "I find I wrote when the emotions caused by the magnificent prospect of the new country might subject me to a charge of enthusiasm, a charge which I deserved, as nothing good or great had ever been accomplished in the world without it."

Without enthusiasm no battles have been won, no Cathedrals built, no Empires founded, no Religions propagated. The secret of success is enthusiasm. The men of victory have been the men who kept the fires burning on the altars of enthusiasm when other flames had sunk into the cold, gray ashes of despair. The life of David Livingstone is one more monument to the power of enthusiasm... It has been said, often and truthfully: "A man without judgment is like a car without brakes; but a man without enthusiasm is like a car without a motor."

Correction

Marie D'Olimpio, who wrote the recipe wants to thank the reader who called about the mistake.

In a recipe for raisin-apple spice cake in the April 17 edition of The Quincy Sun, an ingredient was inadvertently left out.

There should be an added 1/2 to 3/4 cup of sugar depending on how sweet you prefer the cake, especially with the natural sweetness of the raisins and apples.

Your Social Security

Caregivers And Social Security Rules

By CAROL BOYLE

This year's Older Americans Month celebration focuses on the role of caregivers in the lives of our older citizens under the theme: "Caregiving: Compassion in Action." An estimated 12 million Americans are involved in helping five million older family members, friends, and neighbors live full and independent lives.

If you are involved in the care of older persons, you should be familiar with Social Security and how it works to provide service to older Americans.

For example, if the beneficiary becomes too ill or unable to handle his or her funds adequately, you can become the "representative payee" and receive the benefits on his or her behalf. The representative payee is responsible for assuring that the benefits are spent for the beneficiary's basic needs and to account for the funds periodically. While most representative payees are relatives, it may also be a friend, neighbor, church or other concerned organization.

Another service that may be helpful the beneficiary is direct deposit of benefits to the beneficiary's bank. Direct deposit saves the beneficiary time and reduces the risk of loss and theft. The money is there whether the beneficiary is home or vacationing away from home. More than half of current beneficiaries already use direct deposit and it is a requirement for beneficiaries who filed for benefits since August 1, 1996. To change over, all you have to do is have your bank call us.

Ourtoll-free number—1-800-772-1213—provides 24-hour-service seven days a week. To talk to a representative, you need to call from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. The telephone may be busy around the first of the month, and early during the week, so if your business is not urgent, it's best to call at other times.

If you are calling for the beneficiary, he or she must be at the phone with you so that we can speak to him or her and verify that you have permission to receive the information.

For more information on Social Security rules you should know, call our toll-free number and ask for the leaflet, "Social Security: Understanding the Benefits."

(Carol Boyle is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Household Items Needed By Former Homeless

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) and the Quincy Commission on the Family are sponsoring a dropoff site for their "Making A House A Home" campaign Saturday, May 10.

The site will be located at the Bryan VFW Post, 24 Broad St., Quincy, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Both agencies are seeking donations of household items that will help former homeless veterans, families and individuals set up their own household.

"We need donations of ironing boards and irons, measuring cups, kitchen tables and chairs, toasters, shower curtains, wastebaskets and everything you can think of to make a home," said Linda Stice, executive director of the Family Commission. "The items should be new or in excellent condition."

The commission plans to completely equip nine apartments for homeless Quincy families to live in temporarily until they obtain permanent homes.

"Sometimes families that become homeless have lived in barely habitable situations for months," said Stice. "This winter we know of two Quincy families with children that were living in their cars. Going to our schools is best part of the child's day, but what they go home to in the afternoon is pretty bad. What we want to do is give homeless families that have children a safe, clean home to live in while we help them get on their feet financially and find a permanent place to live."

The QISC helps over 700 guests each year at Father Bill's Place, many of whom leave to start life over in their own rooms or apartments.

"Many of our residents do very well when they leave and that is due in part to the tremendous support we receive from the community," said QISC Executive Director Joseph Finn. "Residents here benefit from the fact that Quincy is such a caring community."

This summer, a new Veterans' Home for homeless veterans will open on Burgin Parkway in Quincy. It will provide a home for 10 veterans.

Finn, Stice, and Family Council volunteer Jacqueline Roncarati planned the "Making A House" event for the Saturday before Mother's Day for a reason.

"Everyone who brings a donation to the VFW Post will have a chance to make a small gift at no charge for their mother or grandmother," said Roncarati. "We will have staff from Michael's Arts and Crafts as well as Ginger Betty's on hand to help children and adults make a handmade gift for someone they love. We also hope to have refreshments, a caricature artist, and face-painting, so everyone should have a good time and leave with a gift for the next day."

Clothing is not needed but most household items are welcome. For more information or to learn what items are most needed, call Stice at 376-1421.

4.3 Percent Increase Proposed To Council Sheets Asks $6M FY98 Budget Hike

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has proposed a Fiscal Year 1998 municipal budget of $149,642,395, a figure that amounts to a 4.3 percent or $6,131,080 increase over the budget for the current fiscal year.

The increase includes an additional $3,136,797 for the city's public schools and $2,994,283 for various city departments. The largest part of the latter figure is a sum of $1,104,578 for 10 new community patrol officers, as well as all negotiated raises, for the Quincy Police Department.

Sheets' proposed budget will be sent to the City Council for its May 5 meeting. The council, which has the power to make cuts to the budget but cannot add to it, must pass it in some form before July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The budget the council passed last June for FY97 totaled $143,511,315.

The mayor said his proposed FY98 budget is a frugal, no-frills spending plan.

"It's a very, very, tight budget," said Sheets. "Everything has pretty much been level-funded. We didn't increase anything we didn't have to."

The $3.1 million school department increase will be used to pay for employee raises, utility costs, and special education expenditures, according to the mayor.

More than one-third of the nearly $3 million increase on the city side is earmarked for the police department. The rest will go toward various operational costs in several city departments, including the park and data processing departments, Sheets said.

Although Sheets did not have a copy of his proposed municipal budget at press time, he said there are no new positions called for in the budget outside of the police department. In addition, he noted, no layoffs are planned.

While there will be no new non-police positions, however, the proposed

'Now We Can Get Back To Business' Adams Site Staff 'Elated' Over Recovery Of Historic Books

The staff at the Adams National Historic Site in Quincy is happy and relieved that all four of the historic books stolen from the site have been recovered, according to Caroline Keinath, deputy superintendent.

Keinath described the staff reaction to the announcement by the Federal Bureau of Investigation last week that the two remaining missing books had been recovered at a gym in Salisbury as "elation."

"When this (crime) first happened in the fall, nobody knew what would happen," she said. "But now we can get back to business."

"We were always confident, though, because of the skill the FBI and the Quincy Police Department displayed," she added.

Keinath said the four books are still being held as evidence and the Adams Site staff still has no idea when they will be returned.

"We don't know," she said. "We don't even have an estimated date yet."

The four books were stolen Nov. 11 from the library at the Adams Site, which includes the home of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, the father and son who were the second and sixth presidents of the United States. The books were the property of the Adams family, and the thief or thieves sawed through the library's main oak door and snatched the volumes from a table.

No one has been officially charged with the crime and the case remains unsolved.

In January, two of the books were recovered at a Gold's Gym in Portsmouth, N.H. They include an 1838 Bible given to John Quincy Adams by members of the West African Mendi tribe for winning their case to return

Point Pub Suspension Overturned

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A 30-day license suspension imposed on the Quincy Point Pub, 536 Washington St. by the Quincy License Board has been overturned by the Alcohol Beverages Control Commission (ABCC).

The suspension was given because of the Point Pub's failure to call the police about an alleged disturbance involving a woman who was drinking and dancing at the pub.

The victim later said she found herself alone in a car with injuries on her face and bruised shoulder.

She first said she remembered a fist coming toward her, and accused her boyfriend of hitting her.

According to the pub's attorney Louis Cassis, she later changed her testimony and accused Detective Kevin Murphy of telling her to make false statements. She claims Murphy told her to lie about her boyfriend hitting her and to say she was accosted inside the club.

Matt Mulvey, chairing the meeting for chairman Joseph Shea, said he in "no way believe Murphy would tell her to lie" and said the board backed Murphy.

Police Chief Francis Mullen concurred with Mulvey and commended

Murphy for "always being a truthful person."

At a previous meeting of the license board, William Cappola, owner of the pub said he recalled the victim at the pub on June 5, 1996. He stated that she was acting in a very unlady like manner and dancing. Cappola said that he asked the victim's boyfriend to get her out of the establishment. He said

Cleaner, Greener Cleanup Saturday

The eighth annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy will be held Saturday, announces Mayor James Sheets.

The citywide cleanup effort encourages volunteers from Quincy to participate in cleaning up parks and open space areas in their neighborhoods. Volunteers are asked to report to a designated site in their ward at 9 a.m. for tools and instructions.

Last year, more than 1,300 volunteers made Cleaner, Greener Quincy a tremendous success, according to Sheets. More than 3,000 tons of debris were removed from the city's streets, parks, playgrounds and open space/conservation areas, he said.

Volunteers are asked to report to the following sites at 9 a.m.: Ward 1, Labrecque Playground; Ward 2, Fore River Clubhouse; Ward 3, Forbes Hill Playground; Ward 4, Lincoln-Hancock School; Ward 5, Beechwood Knoll School; Ward 6, Quantum School.

New Restaurant At House Of Pancakes Site

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A landmark in Quincy for more than 20 years is about to change.

The lease on the International House of Pancakes on Washington Street has expired. The location has been taken over by Bickford's Family Restaurant.

Requesting a common victualer license at the Quincy License Board meeting Tuesday, James P. Shine, a representative from Bickford's presented plans for the renovation of the building.

Shine told the board that other than a new paint job, the exterior of the building will remain the same. However, the interior will be completely renovated.

Included in the renovations will be a new kitchen, all new equipment, a complete new seating layout and rest rooms that will now be fully handicapped accessible. The hours for the 90 seat restaurant will be from 6:30 a.m. to midnight Monday through Friday, and from 6:30 a.m. to 3 a.m. on weekends.

Shine had requested that the restaurant be open 24 hours on weekends, but Police Chief Francis Mullen said he wasn't quite "ready to make that decision". Citing public safety especially for employees, who Mullen said are "vulnerable in the wee hours", he reminded the board about a recent crime which took place in Boston early in the morning.

Shine said "it's a privilege to do business in Quincy", and added it was "up to the community to decide the hours of operation."

Maralin Manning, director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association said she was "sorry to see the pancake house go, but said she was "delighted to see a new operation coming in Quincy".

Shine said he hoped the restaurant will be open by the middle of June.

Nearly 1,000 Residents Receive Plants From Evergreen Program

Nearly 1,000 live 10-inch evergreen plants were distributed to Quincy residents over the weekend for their participation in the Quincy Evergreen Program.

The plants were given out at the Quincy Department of Public Works building, 55 Sea St. Residents who brought Christmas trees to be mulched to the site in December received coupons which they exchanged for the plants on Saturday and Sunday.

Program Chairman Leo Kelly said the nearly 1,000 trees that were mulched this winter as part of the program, which celebrated its ninth year in December, brings the total number since it started to almost 13,000.

Kelly said residents' participation in the program is important because it helps prevent clutter in landfills through the recycling of the Christmas trees and contributes to the environment by way of the evergreen plants participants receive.

Nearly 1,000 Quincy residents received one of the plants over the weekend in exchange for bringing in their Christmas trees to the Quincy Department of Public Works for mulching in December.

The program is sponsored by Jay Cashman Inc. of Boston, formerly of 77

Resistance To Raymondi Community Police Proposal

A proposal by Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi for a community policing advisory commission and a special division within the Quincy Police Department received some resistance during a meeting Monday night at City Hall.

Police Chief Francis Mullen and other councillors raised a number of questions and criticisms during the meeting of the council's Public Safety Committee, which is chaired by Raymondi.

Mullen and the Quincy Superior Police Officers Association said they agree with the concept of community policing--which has been successful in Germantown--but added they do not believe it is a good idea to designate a certain number of officers for a community policing division or form a board that might be used to air complaints against individual officers.

Raymondi said his proposed 19-member commission would not be designed to get involved in police review cases. Still, Councillor Paul Harold echoed the chief's concerns about such a scenario.

Mullen said after the meeting he thinks forming the advisory commission is unnecessary.

"Basically, from where we stand, we certainly believe in community policing," he said. "We just believe the police department should run it. But I'll listen to any city official and his proposals. We all agree we need community policing, it's just a matter of how we're going to do it. I don't think an ordinance is necessary."

Councillor Michael Cheney said it is not a good idea to form a commission before learning the police department's exact community policing needs. And Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said he does not want any plans for a new commission to delay the promised assignment of two community police officers to the Brewer's Corner neighborhood located in his ward.

The patrol officers union, like Mullen and the superior officers, also said the commission would change the conditions of work assignments and their union contract.

Councillors opted to place the matter back into the Public Safety Committee. Mullen said he would return to the council with a police department report on Raymondi's proposal within 45 days.

Raymondi, who has made a number of amendments since introducing his plan in March, said after the meeting he hopes the plan can be reworded to satisfy all affected parties.

Community policing is a concept that harkens back to the old idea of the "cop on the beat" who is assigned to a specific neighborhood and gets to know personally the people who work and live there and helps them deal with their problems.

Although Germantown is currently the only Quincy neighborhood to have a pair of community police officers, Mullen wants other areas including Brewer's Corner also to utilize them. Mayor James Sheets' proposed Fiscal Year 1998 budget calls for hiring 10 of the community officers with the assistance of a federal policing program that will partially fund the positions.

Houghs Neck Post Pays Tribute To Bombing Victims

A memento from the Houghs Neck American Legion Post now hangs outside the site of the infamous Oklahoma City bombing.

Rick Wold, a lifelong resident of Houghs Neck and a Post member who serves as its sergeant-at-arms, recently hung a vanity plate bearing the Post's name and number on a fence at the site, which now serves as a memorial to those killed in the 1995 bombing.

Wold, 41, took the action while visiting Norman, Okla. where he attended electrical/industrial service school classes for three weeks as a member of the Navy Sea Bees.

Wold explained that Post members take the plates with them whenever they travel and trade them for plates belonging to other Posts. However, since the one American Legion Post he could find in the area while in Oklahoma had no

$1.2M Grant For 17 New Police Officers

Sen. Edward Kennedy has announced the Quincy Police Department is a recipient of a COPS Universal Hiring Program Grant from the U.S. Department of Justice.

The city will receive $1,275,000 to put an additional 17 police officers on the streets of Quincy.

Kennedy said, "I congratulate Mayor Jim Sheets,

Chief Francis Mullen and the City of Quincy on being selected for this grant. The COPS Universal Hiring Program makes it possible for the federal government to be a real partner with state and local governments, like Quincy, in the fight against crime. This commitment of federal resources to a balanced strategy of

John Q. Adams: Movie Hero

John Quincy Adams, a standout figure in American history, is now getting some attention from Hollywood.

He will be portrayed by Anthony Hopkins as a hero in a new Steven Spielberg movie now being filmed.

The movie, "Amistad," is the story behind one of those four historic books stolen from the Adams Presidential Library last November and since recovered.

The book is the Bible given to Adams by African slaves as a token of appreciation for winning their freedom after their arrest for rebelling and seizing control of the Cuban slave ship "Amistad" in 1839.

With the aid of make-up magic, Hopkins closely resembles Adams. Because of the powerful story, Spielberg, of "Schindler's List" fame and Hopkins, one of today's top actors, there are early predictions this could be a strong Oscar contender. (Let's hope they don't pronounce it John Quin-see Adams).

It was illegal to kidnap slaves from Africa in 1839 but 53 Mendi tribesmen were in chains aboard the Amistad and bound for Cuba.

They manage to get free, take over, and order the captain and first mate to return the ship to Sierra Leone. But the Africans, who knew little or nothing about sailing, are steered to Long Island, New York instead where the vessel is shipwrecked and the Africans arrested.

Enter John Quin-zee Adams. He takes the Africans case to the Supreme Court, argues in their behalf—and wins their freedom.

They thanked him and as a token of appreciation presented him with the Bible which, after its theft, is back safe at the Adams Presidential Library—the nation's first presidential library.

NOMINATION PAPERS for this year's city election are available beginning today (Thursday) in the Election Department at City Hall.

How many are picked up and for what office will be a true indication of what kind of an election year it will be: interesting or ho-hum.

The papers don't have to be returned until July 29 so no immediate big rush for them is expected.

MEANWHILE, former City Councillor Leo Kelly says he is still giving "serious consideration" to running for councillor-at-large.

KELLY

Kelly was elected to six terms as Ward 1 councillor before leaving to accept a Quincy Housing Authority post from which he is now retired.

TWO FUND-RAISING walkathons and a road race were held in Quincy Sunday and former Mayor Frank McCauley took part in all three.

The March of Dimes 10K walk was in the morning, the 5K Richardson Road Race benefitting the Thomas Crane Public Library Building Fund at noon and the 23rd annual Protestant Social Service Bureau

The first ambulance was designed in 1792 by Baron Dominique Jean Larrey, Napoleon's personal surgeon, as a means of removing wounded men from the field of battle.

Walkathon in the afternoon.

Total distance was 25 kilometers or 15.6 miles. McCauley's average time per mile was 14 minutes, 22 seconds.

Since his retirement as Executive Director of the State Retirement Board in January, McCauley has more time for walking which is his hobby.

McCAULEY

And, he also has more time for running, like in running for a city council at-large seat this year.

He says Sunday gave him a chance "to help three worthy causes and get in shape for the rigors of this year's election campaign."

SAL GIARRATANI, who ran for the School Committee in 1995, has decided to pass up this year's city election.

GIARRATANI

"The last thing I needed to become is one of those perennial candidates who runs for everything under the sun," he says. "This year the only running I wish to do is along Wollaston Beach where I hope to burn off some excess weight gained over the winter."

Giarratani, who will be 49 May 4, says he will remain active through letters to the editor and as a member of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association Board of Directors.

"When the time is right," he adds, "I'm sure I'll run for something again but this ain't that time."

JIM DeCRISTOFARO, long-time active in the Quincy Point community, is making steady recovery progress from serious injuries suffered in a fall accident in California last October.

DeCRISTOFARO

He suffered severe head and back injuries when he fell from a ladder while he and his wife, Laura, were visiting his brother, George and sister-in-law, Anna, in Red Bluffs, Calif.

After many weeks in hospitals, Jim is home now and getting around by wheelchair and a walker.

His progress has been so good he has a message for the gang he walked with mornings at the South Shore Plaza:

"I'll be walking with you again soon."

A FUND-RAISER for Councillor Paul Harold will be held Wednesday, May 7, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd.

HAROLD

Honorary chairmen are Helen Norcott of 1000 Southern Artery and Agnes Hogan of School St. Tickets are $50 and available at the door or by calling Mike Linnane at 770-0166.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): "You don't get ulcers from what you eat. You get them from what's eating you."

The military vehicles known as tanks are so called because during their development in World War I, their British inventors referred to them as water tanks to conceal their real purpose.

Praises Mayor, Park Dept. For Help After Blizzard

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to thank Mayor Sheets and the Park and Forestry Department for helping me through a difficult time after last month's blizzard.

The trees on my property suffered significant damage and I had no way of disposing of the branches. I called a private outfit and found out that can be quite expensive, especially for us seniors.

After calling the Park and Forestry Department, a nice lady told me that, because of the storm, the mayor asked the department to help residents with disposing of private tree damage. Within two days, a crew came by and filled the entire truck with branches.

I can't tell you how grateful I am that the city provided this service during such a difficult time. I would like to thank Mayor Sheets and the Park and Forestry Department from the bottom of my heart for all their help.

Mariano Applauded For MWRA Rate Relief

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The MWRA Advisory Board would like to publicly thank Rep. Ronald Mariano for his efforts on behalf of MWRA ratepayers during this year's House budget debate.

As vice chairman of the MWRA Legislative Caucus, Rep. Mariano sponsored an amendment to include the MetroWest Water Supply Tunnel as an eligible project for debt service and assistance. Due to Rep. Mariano's advocacy, the FY98 House budget includes $1.9 million for the MetroWest Tunnel project, bringing total debt service assistance for the MWRA up to $41.83 million. This will result in significant savings to MWRA water ratepayers.

In addition, the House budget includes $500,000 to partially reimburse the MWRA for operating the Clinton Wastewater Treatment Plant and $3 million to fund 0 percent interest loans from the water pollution abatement trust. Both measures were supported by Rep.

Mariano and will benefit MWRA ratepayers.

The Advisory Board applauds Rep. Mariano's continued commitment to ratepayers. His efforts over the years and his work on this year's budget are very much appreciated.

Finds Harbor Express Service A 'Delight'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to express my extreme delight with the South Shore's newest and best option for commuting to Boston: Harbor Express.

During the past 10 years I have explored every conceivable way of getting to work, even to the point of selling my home in South-eastern Massachusetts and moving closer to the city. Still, there has been no relief from traffic (the congestion on the roadways must be addressed), the "punishment" of taking the T, the continued unavailability of the commuter rail and ride-share programs, the rigidity and inconvenience of other water transport. They all amounted to constant stress and incredible frustration.

In January of this year, I tried the new catamaran service from the Fore River shipyard, and I have found the ultimate answer. The service is efficient, clean, very fast (even other boats are left in the "non-existent" wake!) and very pleasurable. The terminal personnel and entire crew are courteous, caring and helpful. It is great!

Just imagine sailing speedily across the harbor to Logan Airport, completely hassle-free in 25 minutes. And then on to Long Wharf and subway access in another 10 minutes. Aside from being able to enjoy a breakfast, once can leisurely enjoy the harbor views and arrive in town totally refreshed! It is fantastic!

Furthermore, one can go into Boston for a leisurely dinner or event and never have to worry about parking or traffic! The new spring schedule allows passengers to return to Quincy as late as 10:50 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Once people try it (I realize old habits die hard) they usually don't go back to any of the other archaic means of commuting. The company now offers monthly passes and they have extended the free parking for daily commuters (another plus) and charges only $6 for overnight parking in a fenced lot with 24-hour security.

I applaud Harbor Express and wish them continued success! Try "Harbor Expressing" it—you'll love it. I have recently moved from Hull to Cohasset, but will remain a committee commuter.

GRANITE CUTTERS ON STRIKE

The city's 120 granite cutters went on strike, demanding a 30 cents an hour increase and an additional vacation week. The companies had offered a 15-cent increase.

Commissioner John Sullivan of the Federal Mediation Services was in the process of setting up a meeting between the two parties to reach an early resolution of the strike.

RUBBISH CONTRACT MEETING QUESTIONED

City Councillor George Burke was "looking into disturbing" reports that three councillors made a secret visit to a department head to discuss the continuation of the rubbish collection contract.

He heard from a reliable source that there were attempts to change the status of the present contract. Burke said he would continue to oppose the $600,000 plus contract with Marinucci Brothers.

Anne Lovaas of Scituate is the winner of the 1997 Quincy Christmas Parade Theme Contest, announces George White, chairman of the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee.

Her winning theme, "The Sights and Sounds of Christmas," was selected from a record number of entries submitted during the contest, which was held in the Quincy-South Shore area.

White said the contest is held annually in the spring so the public has an opportunity to have input in the selection of an appropriate theme. It also gives organizations planning to enter floats in the parade sufficient time to build floats based on the theme.

As the theme winner, Lovaas will be invited to ride in the parade as a guest of honor along the three-

Point Pub 30-Day License Suspension Overturned

none of the eight customers who were present observed her falling or being punched on the premises.

Cassisi told the board that Cappola is a credible witness having been in the business for 25 years and called the victim committing "blatant perjury".

Cassisi said when the victim (who lives in Hull) filled out a form at the Hull Police Station, she said her boyfriend punched her, but changed her story later and said she fell in between two tables and then fell again.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond told the board he was "disappointed by the ABCC action" citing the evidence as being "extremely credible" by the victim; and requested the board reconduct another hearing and then take appropriate action.

In addressing the board and some disgruntled neighbors sitting in the audience, Raymond recalled the history of the pub and its location, alleged drug sales, and patrons leaving the premises disturbing the neighborhood. He claimed the victim was "grossly" overserved and had "too much to drink."

Finally he said to the board, "you are the local authority with plenty of responsibilities".

Cassisi accused Raymond of trying to "make the board believe the injuries happened inside the bar".

Former Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristafaro said he supported Raymond, was "disappointed" at the ABCC decision. He said "this board knows the city, and exactly what's going on in the neighborhood better than anyone".

In the middle of the dispute, Atty. Robert Fleming asked the board to consider the request from Brick Building Inc., for the transfer of the license from Point Pub to Stephen F. Barrett.

Raymond said if and when new owners take over, he advised the board to eliminate a liquor license.

Board members were reluctant to make any decision for the change of ownership, and will refer the matter to the city solicitor, police chief and chairman of the license board, Joseph Shea. (Shea was out of town).

The next meeting will be May 13.

LIVES DISRUPTED BY INJURY

While the compensation that injury victims hope to receive for their medical injuries are called medical special damages, the compensation for pain and suffering, permanent disability, and emotional damages are together referred to as general damages. Among the losses for which injury victims can seek compensation include any substantial loss of time, opportunities, pleasures, or efforts that result from their injuries. These injury-related losses cannot be easily assigned dollar values, but money is the only way that these losses can be compensated. Thus, they must be figured in with general damages. There is no restriction on the types of non-monetary losses that can increase the general damages sought by injury victims. Anything that is important to them and that they missed because of injury can be included in a claim for compensation.

HINT: If injuries made it impossible for a person to attend a special event (wedding, graduation, etc.), the injured party is entitled to compensation for the loss.

Sometimes selfish interests seek to take advantage of those who have been victims of negligent conduct. Those unfortunate victims need a champion to fight for them in the courts. We pledge our skills and resources to the best interests of our clients always. Call 773-2880 today to schedule a free consultation. Our office is located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

Almost Stuffed Mushrooms

Last week, my husband found a deal at the supermarket on mushrooms-- buy one, get one free. Sound familiar?

I was afraid that if I waited too long to cook them, they would go to waste. I decided to prepare the two packages at once. I enjoy eating stuffed mushrooms, and this recipe makes them taste just as though they were stuffed and takes half the time.

Almost Stuffed Mushrooms

- 1 pound fresh mushrooms
- 2 cloves of garlic (finely cut)
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine

- 1/4 cup cooking sherry
- juice of a lemon
- 1/2 to 3/4 cup seasoned breadcrumbs

Wash and cut the mushrooms in halves. In the hot oil and butter, saute the garlic and mushrooms for a few minutes. Add the sherry and cover and cook for about 10 minutes until mushrooms are tender.

Add the lemon juice and slowly add the breadcrumbs until blended and all mushrooms are coated. Serve with extra lemon slices. Once they're cooked, they'll keep for days in the refrigerator.

ARTHRITIS AND THE FAT CONNECTION

Being overweight has long been linked to such major health threats as heart disease, cancer, and diabetes. Now it appears that there may be a fat-arthritis connection as well.

In a study of more than 1,000 men, Johns Hopkins Medical School researchers have discovered that those subjects who packed on as little as 20 extra pounds in early adulthood nearly doubled their odds of later developing osteoarthritis, the most common form of arthritis.

The heaviest young men, weighing an average of 190 pounds, more than tripled their chances of developing arthritis in their hips and knees compared with the lightest young men, who averaged just 146 pounds. The reason for the "fat trap" seems to be the extra stress and cartilage breakdown that occurs in weight-bearing joints when more pounds are carried around than the body was built to bear.

P.S. Osteoarthritis is a major cause of disability among adults, affecting some 16 million people in the U.S.

There is no doubt about it; caring for one's health on a routine basis is your best medicine and best prevention against problems down the road. When you visit us, you'll find that you are treated with the utmost of respect.

At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Sheets Proposes $6M FY98 Budget Increase

FY98 budget does include funding for a new inspectional services division. Sheets has been planning for some time. The mayor said the budget for the division, which will bring Quincy's building, plumbing and other inspectional departments together under one director of inspectional services, will cost the city about the same as all of those individual department budgets combined.

The city will advertise for the inspectional services director's position in about two weeks, he noted.

On the subject of the police department increase, Sheets said two-thirds of the cost of the salaries for the 10 community police officers will be reimbursed through a federal policing program during the officers' first year on duty. One-third of the cost will be reimbursed during the second year, and the city will resume full responsibility a year later, he said.

Community policing, which has been successful in Germantown, harkens back to the concept of the "cop on the beat" who is directly involved with a specific neighborhood and gets to know personally those who live and work in that area.

The city also plans to hire four patrolmen in addition to the community officers, but that will not impact the municipal budget because they will be brought in to fill vacancies, Sheets said. The four new officers will bring the total number of patrolmen in the police department to 150, the maximum allowed by law, he noted.

The mayor said all 14 new officers will be hired as soon as possible. He also said the city will closely examine the possibility of adding more Asians and more women to the department during the hiring process.

Sheets added that it will be impossible to determine what effect the proposed budget will have on Quincy's property tax rates until the fall, when the city receives its "cherry sheet" that reveals how much revenue Quincy will receive from the state for special needs costs and local aid.

Time Change For JWV Installation Sunday

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post has changed the time of its 58th annual installation of officers to be held Sunday at Beth Israel Synagogue, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point.

The event, originally scheduled for the morning, will be held at 7 p.m. The installation will be followed by a collation. The Post also will hold its annual Memorial Service.

Serving on the event committee are Commander Bertrand Shaffer, PC Irving Isaacson, PC David Minkofsky, PC Harvey Solomon, Herb Fontaine, Sidney Shapiro and other Post members.

Alcohol Awareness Program To Be Conducted In June

Police Chief Francis Mullen announced Tuesday at the Quincy License Board meeting that the Quincy Police Department in conjunction with the Quincy License Board will conduct training, intervention procedures for servers. (T.I.P.S.) program.

The alcohol awareness program will be held Tuesday, June 10 and Monday June 16 at 6 p.m. at the Quincy Police Station.

The program will be conducted by Dram Shoppe Consultants of Natick at a cost of $35 per person. Only 35 persons will be admitted to a class. If there are enough applicants, other classes will be set up sometime in August.

Concourse Committee Meeting At City Hall May 8

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet Thursday, May 8 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson said the purpose of the meeting is to review the recommendations made by the committee regarding the first phase of the proposed $5.6 million roadway con-nectior and bridge that would link Burgin Parkway with the downtown Hancock Street business area.

The first phase pertains specifically to the bridge over the MBTA and Old Colony rail commuter tracks. The committee has recommended several measures to ensure the bridge will be pedestrian-safe and that vehicular traffic speed will be slowed and controlled.

Of particular concern is traffic speed control along Burgin Parkway in the vicinity of the proposed bridge. The overall roadway has been put on a tentative construction schedule with the bridge targeted for groundbreaking later this spring.

The CAC will also discuss the west phase of the project which begins in the vicinity of Granite Street and proceeds over the bridge and through the Paperama parking lot and the Parkway to Hancock Street.

Using energy wisely can reduce consumption and save money on utility bills, according to the American Gas Association. Here are some tips:

- Seal leaks around doors, windows and other openings, such as pipes or ducts—with caulking or weatherstripping.

- Set thermostats between 65 and 70 degrees in the winter, at least 5 degrees lower when sleeping, and at 58 degrees when away from home for more than a few hours. (Warmer temperatures are recommended for homes with ill or elderly persons or infants.)

- Set water heater temperatures at 140 degrees (at 120 degrees in homes with infants or elderly persons to guard against accidental scalding), and install water-flow restrictors in shower heads and faucets.

- Change filters or clean the filters in heating and cooling units twice a year. Close vents and doors in unused rooms. If pipes or ducts run through unheated areas, insulate them.

- Use drapes, shutters, awnings, shade trees, glass with reflective film or solar screens to keep sunlight out in the summer and let it in during the winter.

- Check to see if attic and basement (or crawl space) have the recommended level of insulation.

- If you have a wood-burning fireplace, consider installing a natural gas fireplace insert, which can save on energy costs compared with wood. A gas fireplace also will dramatically reduce the air pollution created from burning wood.

- Consider storm or thermal windows and doors or double-paned glass. A less-expensive alternative is plastic sheeting, which can be temporarily fastened over doors and windows to retain heat or air conditioning.

- Be sure that dishwasher-ers, washing machines and clothes dryers are fully loaded before running.

- When buying new appliances, compare energy efficiency ratings and annual operating costs. A slightly higher initial cost for a high-efficiency appliance could pay itself back in a very short time through energy savings and lower utility bills.

Many natural gas utilities offer assistance and special programs designed to help consumers reduce their energy bills. Contact your local gas utility for more information.

Heating Systems Should Be Serviced Periodically

All heating systems should be serviced periodically by a qualified contractor to ensure top performance, according to the American Gas Association (AGA).

Such maintenance will ensure safe and efficient operation.

Heating contractors should follow the manufacturer's maintenance guidelines for each unit in accordance with local building codes and regulations, the AGA says.

The check-up should include:

- Inspection of the furnace vent system.

- Removal of any leaves, nests or other obstructions from inside the chimney.

- Replacement or cleaning of the air filter.

- Lubrication of the blower motor.

- Replacement of blower belts, if needed.

- Cleaning of pilots and burner chamber.

- Removal of dust and lint from furnace vents, registers and baseboard heaters.

- Cleaning and adjusting of thermostats.

Quincy Named Tree City USA

Mayor James Sheets announces Quincy was recently recognized by the National Arbor Day Foundation as a Tree City USA.

Quincy was presented the award for its efforts in maintaining its urban forest and its commitment to planting new trees.

The Trees City USA program is sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the USDA Forest Service and the National Association of State Foresters. Massachusetts State Forester Phillip Rodbell presented Tree Warden Frank McLaughlin with a flag with the program's logo, a walnut-mounted plaque, and a Tree City USA community sign at a ceremony at Hanscom Air Force Base.

This is the first year Quincy has received the award.

The City of Quincy is in the process of planting 425 new trees along its streets. They will be added to the more than 20,000 trees that already line the streets. In addition, a new tree maintenance program instituted this winter has allowed the Park and Forestry Department to keep up with the hundreds of trimming, pruning and removal requests received each year.

"With the 125th anniversary of Arbor Day upon us, it is nice to be recognized for our commitment to maintaining our city's long tradition of tree-lined streets. I consider our trees an invaluable resource as they significantly increase the quality of life in Quincy. Our trees clean the air, provide shade, increase the aesthetic atmosphere of our neighborhoods, and add value to our homes," said Sheets.

To become a Tree City USA, a city must meet four main standards: an existing tree department, a community tree ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program, and an Arbor Day proclamation or observance. The State Forester will then make a recommendation to the National Arbor Day Foundation.

"The Park and Forestry Department is proud that its efforts have been recognized. Through the co-operation of the mayor and the city council, we have been able to create a sylvan atmosphere in our neighborhoods that is unprecedented for a city the size of Quincy," said Thomas Koch, executive director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments.

RECEIVING QUINCY'S designation as a Tree City USA is Tree Warden Frank McLaughlin (center). Presenting the award are Department of Environmental Management Commissioner Peter Webber (left) and State Forester Phillip Rodbell.

Sailors Pond Re-Opening Celebration May 19

A Sailors Home Pond Re-Opening Celebration will be held Monday, May 19 at 3 p.m. at the entrance to the pond opposite 55 Rice Rd., Wollaston.

The event follows four years of work by local residents and city and state officials to revitalize the pond.

Over a prolonged period of time, the pond had become polluted due to water fowl feces, pestilence, rain-water runoff, herbicides, pesticides, bacterial accumulation, gradual siltation, deterioration of the bank plant material, lack of habitat and the surface growth of blue green algae.

A Citizens Advisory Committee was formed and has worked with city and state officials to address the problem. A $10,000 state grant was obtained and, supplemented by the Quincy Department of Public Works budget, put toward the treatment of the site.

During the restoration of the site, an ordinance that prohibits the feeding of waterfowl at the site was passed by the City Council. In addition, signage has been placed alongside the pond describing its history and the restoration and remediation process.

For more information, call Michael Wheelwright at the Department of Public Works, 376-1901.

Helpful Tips For Do-It-Yourself Movers

(NAPS)—Moving doesn't have to be an overwhelming experience—if you plan ahead. Here are some tips from Hertz Penske Truck Rental that will help to make your self-move successful and hassle-free:

- Size up your moving needs and select the right truck by using the free Hertz Penske Moving Guide to help you calculate, room by room, the truck size, packing materials and moving accessories (mattress bags, furniture pads) you will need.

- You'll be pleasantly surprised at how much you will save by moving yourself, but it is, nevertheless, a good idea to compare rates.

You'll be surprised at how much you will save by moving yourself.

- Make sure the rental company you choose has 24-hour emergency road service along your route. Hertz Penske provides 24-hour service 365 days a year.
- Reserve your truck and moving supplies as soon as possible to assure availability.

- Lighten the load prior to moving day by getting rid of items and furnishings you no longer want or need.

- Speed up the unpacking process and eliminate guesswork by marking the contents and the room where the box belongs on the outside of each carton.

- Be sure you don't overload yourself when you load your truck. Bend your knees and lift with your legs—not your back.

home in a case before the U.S. Supreme Court; and the Bible Concordance, printed in Latin in 1521. The latter is the oldest book in the Adams family library collection.

The other two books were discovered April 23 in a black tote bag found in a Gold's Gym locker in Salisbury on the North Shore. They include a 1772 Bible and Block's Ichthyology, a natural history book on fish written in 1785, both of which belonged to the wife of John Quincy Adams.

The two books found last week were wrapped in a towel and were wet and damaged. However, a National Park Service curator and a preservation specialist from the New England Document Center have said the damage is not permanent.

Investigators have declined to say whether there are new suspects as a result of last week's discovery. The only possible suspect in the case thus far, former South Shore resident Kevin Gildea, 41, is serving five years in a federal prison for violating terms of his probation.

According to a published report, sources have said

Gildea was a member of the Gold's Gym in Portsmouth, N.H. under the alias "Dana Squires."

An artist with a history of art theft, Gildea has been in police custody since 11 days after the Adams theft. Before his arrest, he offered to provide information on the stolen books in exchange for dismissal of charges in a Bourne burglary, the federal probation violation and a state parole violation, according to testimony at his probation revocation hearing. However, authorities refused to strike a deal.

Fundraiser Friday For Burned Out Family

The Adams Heights Men's Club will hold a fundraiser party Friday from 7 p.m. to midnight to aid a Quincy Point family whose home was destroyed by fire during the April 1 blizzard.

Richard Ash, his wife, Abby, their children, Nicole, 8, and Richard, 6, and Ash's sister, Tina, escaped from the home they rented at 20 Nash Ave., when a utility pole knocked down by the storm started a fire.

That fire damaged the kitchen and cellar and firefighters told the occupants for safety reasons not to stay in the house and not to try to carry out belongings until daylight the next morning.

At 3:30 a.m., the unoccupied home suddenly burst into flames and burned to the ground.

The family is staying temporarily with Mrs. Ash's mother, Chickie Abdallah at 48 Silver St.

The hall, entertainment, food and prizes for the evening are all being donated by businesses and individuals.

Tickets are $20 per person or $35 a couple and may be obtained by calling Phil Cocio, a member of the Adams Heights Men's Club at 472-5433.

Law Day Ceremonies At Quincy Court Friday

The annual Quincy District Court Law Day ceremonies will be held Friday at 9 a.m. at the courthouse.

Among those scheduled to be honored are Police Chief Francis Mullen, the City of Quincy, and two other representatives of the Quincy Police Department. Keynote speaker at the event will be Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke.

Mullen and Frank J. Davis will receive the Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award. The award, which honors outstanding citizenship, will be presented by Judge Charles Black, presiding justice.

The City of Quincy will receive the Quincy Court Outstanding Program Award which also will be presented by Judge Black. Mayor James Sheets will accept the award on behalf of the city.

Ten area law enforcement officials will receive the Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award.

They are: Lt. Neil MacDonald and Officer Brian Tobin of the Quincy Police Department, Officer Paul Sandomodo of the Weymouth Police Department, Sgt. George McNeil and Officers John Diauto and David Avery of the Randolph Police Department, Officers Kevin Swan, Victor Evans and Louis Bullard of the Milton Police Department and Sgt. Stephen Pugsley of the Norwell State Police barracks.

The Dana Awards will be presented by Locke.

A host of other awards will be bestowed at Friday's ceremonies.

Atty. George V. Kenneally Jr. will receive the James R. McIntyre Award. The award, which is named after the late Quincy mayor-senator and recognizes outstanding service to the law enforcement profession, will be presented by his widow, Sheila McIntyre.

The Mark S. Charbonnier

Award will be presented to Lt. Kenneth Martin of the State Police by Trooper Kenneth Halloran, Quincy District Court police prosecutor. The award is named in memory of the state trooper slain in Kingston in 1994.

Judge Joseph Welch will receive the Alfred P. Malaney Award as the Quincy Bar Association's man of the year. It will be presented by Atty. Daniel Seigenberg, association president.

The Timothy J. Spillane Award for outstanding district court prosecutor and the Dennis F. Ryan Student Essay Contest Awards also will be presented Friday.

Judge Black will offer remarks and introduce Locke as the event's keynote speaker.

The mayor will bring greetings from the city.

The invocation will be offered by Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John the Baptist Church. The benediction will be said by Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue.

DRIVEN TO DISTRACTION?

At times it seems as if many of the drivers on our roads and highways are doing everything else but driving while they are in their cars. If they are not drinking and eating, they are talking on the phone. And, when drivers allow themselves to become distracted by such activities, it can compromise safety. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) lists "inattentive driving," (including eating, talking, etc.) as number 4 on its list of 11 most common reasons for fatal crashes. The NHTSA's latest data indicates that 3,320 fatal accidents, or 6.1% of all fatal accidents in the U.S., were caused by "inattentive driving." While the proliferation of cell phones and cup holders in our cars in recent years invites us to take advantage of the convenience they offer, a certain amount of care and discretion regarding their use is also in order.

According to a 1991 study by the AAA Foundation on Traffic Safety, using a cellular phone can reduce a driver's attentiveness to the road by 20% or more.

Cars, with airbags, seat and shoulder belts, ABS, etc., are safer than ever. It's the driver that's the problem. To be sure your car is safe and in the best condition have it regularly serviced and repaired by the very best and here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO you'll get it. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You'll find something you like in a mail-order catalog while browsing this week. Avoid petty bickering with a family member later in the week. In romance, it's best to keep your feet on the ground.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You probably won't be in the mood for large get-togethers this week, as socializing isn't in the stars. Intimate tête-à-têtes will suit you fine. A business proposition is not what it appears to be.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A spur-of-the-moment shopping expedition could lead to an exciting purchase for the home. A business proposition may have strings attached, so tread lightly. Exercise good judgment.

CANCER (June 21 to July 21) You'll be receiving some helpful information from a business associate this week. However, you may feel that a child or a romantic interest is not giving you the full story. Get to the bottom of this.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's a good week to shop for yourself. Buy something that will make you feel good and bolster your flagging morale. A friend may seem demanding. Guard against fuzzy thinking this weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You may not be in the mood to handle a work project this week. Interesting news comes from someone who lives at a distance. A weekend concern may have you a bit bewildered.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Impatience could mar work efforts this week. Slow down and do a good, thorough job. Avoid disputes about career concerns. You'll treasure extra time for yourself this week.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Partners make decisions this week involving the use of joint assets. Guard against overspending on pleasure later in the week. You could feel someone is not telling you the truth.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A friend entrusts you with a confidence, but later in the week, you could encounter some misinformation. You'll want to spend some time now on completing an unfinished task.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be willing to ask for help if you need it this week regarding a do-it-yourself project. Not everything is clear this week about a job concern. A relative may get on your nerves.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You may find a work project tedious or difficult this week. A co-worker could extend you a weekend social invitation. It's best to be clear-headed where romance is concerned.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You'll be socializing this week with family members. Extra expenses may arise in connection with travel. A domestic concern seems a bit confusing this weekend.

Quincy Looks To Avenge 10-1 Loss

Presidents, Raiders Renew Rivalry Today

By LIAM FITZGERALD

For the second time in six days, the North Quincy High School and Quincy High School softball teams will face each other today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at McCoy Field.

The Red Raiders, 10-1 winners over the Presidents in the Quincy Tournament consolation game last Friday, seek their second win over their rivals.

"I expect this one to be a closer game and a bigger challenge for us," said North coach Bob Doyle.

"The games are always nip and tuck when we play each other in any sport."

"We were able to hit well, play good defense and get a solid pitching performance from Kristy Deptula. If we do that again, we should be in good shape to win the game."

Quincy, meanwhile, will look to avenge that loss and tie up the season series at 1-1. The teams will meet a third time in the season finale Thursday, May 22 at 7 p.m.

"We're looking forward to it, as I'm sure they are," said Quincy coach Bob Keuther. "It's always exciting when Quincy and North hook up, and hopefully we'll perform better offensively and make it an exciting game."

"They're certainly a team we can play with, but once we got behind and were forced to play catch up, it limited what we could do. The kids are also excited to play them three times this year, so we'll be ready to go."

In last Friday's game,

Deptula was the story on the mound and at the plate as she hurled a one-hitter with eight strikeouts and helped her own cause with three hits and three RBI.

"That was easily her best pitching performance," said Doyle. "She kept the ball over the plate, didn't walk too many batters and got some solid defense behind her. She got into a nice rhythm and was around the target all day."

Leading 2-1 in the third inning, North scored four runs to build a comfortable

6-1 advantage. Kristen Bowes collected an RBI single, Deptula scorched a two-run double and Bridget Shaughnessy (three hits, two RBI) singled in a run.

The Red Raiders added three more in the top of the seventh to close out the scoring. Deptula and Shaughnessy each singled in a run and Shaughnessy scored on a wild pitch.

North shortstop Laurie Flynn also had a solid offensive performance, collecting three hits and two RBI.

Quincy and North both lost their first-round games in the Quincy Tournament last Thursday. Quincy fell to Archbishop Williams, 15-9, while North dropped a 10-1 decision to Braintree.

Bright spots for Quincy in the loss were sophomore Lisa Machonocie, who made her first varsity start on the mound and also collected four RBI, and senior Melissa Ring, who ripped a two-run double.

"I'm very pleased with Lisa's performance," said Keuther. "She was very composed and handled herself very well in her first start. She also hit the ball extremely well, which will keep her in the lineup when she's not pitching."

Quincy's last game before the tournament was a 14-3 loss to host Plymouth South.

North had dropped four straight (New Bedford, Silver Lake, Barnstable, Falmouth) before the tournament loss to Braintree.

Quincy, North Battle Today

Sylvia, Perdios Looking To Get Back On The Winning Track

By LIAM FITZGERALD

What should fans expect tonight (Thursday) when the North Quincy High School and Quincy High School baseball teams battle at 7 at Adams Field?

If the game goes according to form, not a whole lot of offense with solid pitching and good defense from both teams.

Neither team has met with much success so far, with North losing seven of its first nine games and Quincy dropping six of its first eight through last weekend's action.

While the coaches realize the North Quincy-Quincy rivalry is important to the players, they are also looking at the big picture and making sure the players understand it's just one game on the schedule.

"Anytime Quincy and North play each other, it's special for the kids, but as a coach, it's just another game we need to play well and win," said North coach Dave Perdios.

QHS-NQ Match Essential For Both

Today's (Thursday's) match between the talented boys volleyball teams from North Quincy High School and Quincy High School is significant for both teams in their quests for postseason tournament berths.

The match, scheduled for 3:30 p.m. at North Quincy High's gym, is the first of two meetings between the rivals.

"It's always an exciting match, because of the rivalry," said NQ coach John Perkins. "The kids will be sky-high for it and it'll probably go three games. We're looking forward to it; it's a big match in the league and picking up a win would help us get closer to reaching the tournament."

"I think we can give North Quincy a run for its money," said Quincy coach Tom Henderson. "Our kids will be pumped up like they always are when they play North. We just have to play under control."

Not in action last week during school vacation, North Quincy claimed one of three matches the previous week. The Red Raiders lost to Boston Latin, 2-1, despite the solid effort of senior Matt Bromley (14 kills, eight blocks).

In a 2-0 victory over Dighton-Rehoboth, senior captain Mike Johnston led the way with 14 kills and three blocks.

NQ started the season with three wins in four matches.

Quincy, meanwhile, was also not in action during the school vacation week. The Presidents won two of three matches the previous week.

The Presidents began the previous week with a 4-15, 11-15 loss to Greater New Bedford Vocational.

Quincy bounced back with a 2-0 triumph over Duffee, sparked by Geoff King (14 kills, four digs, eight blocks) and Matt Chan (four kills, nine digs and two blocks). Quincy won, 18-16, 15-11.

The Presidents jumped out to a hot start, winning three of its first four matches.

play good ball against anyone, even when we play North. It's special the two hours you play, but both of us are working on turning the programs around and just look at this game as another we can possibly win."

In its last three games, North has scored a total of four runs and lost two of those contests (3-0 to New Bedford, 2-1 to Milton). The lone triumph came against previously unbeaten New Bedford, when North held on to win, 3-2, after taking a 3-0 lead.

"That was a big win for us, because it's the first time we've gotten ahead and held on to the lead," said Perdios. "The pitching and defense, which have been good all season, were the reasons we won that game."

Freshman Rob Celata started for NQ in the win over New Bedford and pitched three shutout innings, giving up two hits and recording four strikeouts. Juniors Sean Manning and John Sullivan each allowed a run, but preserved the victory for NQ.

In the loss to Milton, staff ace Ryan Herlihy allowed just two hits and struck out nine in six innings. He helped himself with a 3-for-3 performance at the plate, but NQ managed just two other base hits.

Meanwhile, Quincy has managed just four in three recent consecutive losses. The Presidents fell to Falmouth, 1-0, to Taunton, 7-0, and to Boston Latin, 5-4 last week.

400 Runners, Walkers Participate Richardson Road Race Raises $8,220 For Crane Library Building Fund

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Sunday's second annual Richardson 5K Road Race attracted nearly 400 runners and walkers, raising $8,220 for the Thomas Crane Public Library Building Fund.

Race proceeds will go toward the library's $10.7 million addition and renovation project. To date, the fund has generated nearly one quarter of its $1 million goal set by Library Trustees, said Library Director Ann McLaughlin.

"We're trying to raise $1 million through fund raising and private donations. To date, we've raised $240,000. It makes me feel like we're really doing to do it," McLaughlin said.

This year's event drew more participants than last year. In 1996, there were 330 officially registered. This year, that number swelled to 400. Three quarters of the participants were runners; the rest walkers. People of all ages, including some 80 children, took part in the event which McLaughlin described as "wonderful."

"It couldn't have been a more perfect day. It was like a festival. People of all ages came out and listened to the music and just enjoyed themselves. It was wonderful."

"So many people came up to me and said the library is important and they want to help out every year until the money is raised."

People love the library and they really want to help out," the director added.

McLaughlin thanked the sponsors for providing financial support as well as food and refreshments. Among them: Harvard Pilgrim; Burgin, Platner, Hurley Insurance; Hibernia Savings Bank, Colonial Federal Savings Bank; Larry's Electrical Services; Wanna Bagel, Roche Brothers, Monadnock Water, Ocean Sprav and H.P. Hood & Sons.

A groundbreaking for the library expansion project is planned for August. The project will go out to bid in December and construction should start next March, McLaughlin said. She said the project will take approximately one and a half years to complete, perhaps by the summer of 1999.

Jamie Gallagher of Hull and Gayle Laing of Braintree were the top winners in their fields. Gallagher, age 17, was the overall finisher, completing the course in 16:16. Laing led the women's division, crossing the line in 20:22.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been said that the youth of today are the Hope of yesterday, the Joy of today and the Guarantee of a better tomorrow...

What about the young people today? Some believe they are a group of lawless, infuriated persons bent on mischief.

We disagree. Those of us who have had the opportunity to observe life through the years are convinced that the young people today are for the most part citizens of which we should be proud. Granted, (as in every generation) there is a small percentage of young people today bent on violence and unhesitating in the way they break the law...

Young people have always been thought of as the hope of the world. That has been true in the past and it is true today. Let us join forces with that overwhelming majority of young people who are set on doing the right thing and seeing that others do it also. Regardless of age... we are always delighted to hear from you concerning the thoughts you read here...

Cleaner, Greener Quincy Cleanup Set For Saturday

The six sites will serve as the central meeting location for each ward where volunteers may pick up supplies and instructions. Volunteers are welcome to clean locations of their interest other than the above-listed sites.

Crews from the Department of Public Works and the Park Department, aided by volunteer contractors, will remove gathered debris from each of the cleanup locations. The Recreation Department also plays a role in the program's success.

Following the cleanup, Sheets will host an appreciation cookout beginning at 1 p.m. at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex off Southern Artery. All volunteers will receive a free Cleaner, Greener Quincy t-shirt.

In the event of inclement weather, the cleanup will be held Saturday, May 10.

The Cleaner, Greener program was founded in 1990 by Sheets in an effort to augment the city's cleanup efforts and to involve the community on the betterment of their neighborhoods. Ward councillors have assisted by organizing volunteer groups in their respective wards. A special focus will be placed this year on encouraging landlords and property owners to clean private properties that have become unsightly.

Among the businesses that have supplied equipment and supplies to the event over the years are Stop & Shop, Home Depot, Curry Hardware, Derbes Brothers, Aronson Brothers, Healy Construction, and South Shore Masonry.

"I hope that Cleaner, Greener Quincy serves as a catalyst to get the community to play an active role in cleaning up areas in their neighborhoods," said Sheets. "The increasing number of volunteers we see every year is a testament to the great deal of civic pride we all share for our city."

There are also many civic organizations that volunteer to assist with the cleanup. They include the Ward 2 Civic Association, Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association, Ward 4 Civic Association, Atlantic Neighborhood Center, South Shore YMCA, and the Girl and Boy Scouts of America.

For more information, call the Park Department at 376-1251 or the DPW at 376-1901.

City Joins New School Coalition

The formation of a new coalition consisting of 15 school systems from across Massachusetts, including the Quincy Public Schools, was announced Tuesday at the Snug Harbor School.

The announcement coincided with the administration of a new statewide elementary school reading test. The group, the Massachusetts Coalition of Communities for Higher Standards, has been formed to look into ways to help boost student achievement while the new high standards testing is being administered under the state Education Reform Act.

The coalition came together with the assistance of Mass Insight, an organization that provides consulting and other services related to public policy issues.

In addition, Snug Harbor was among four Massachusetts schools recognized by the new coalition Tuesday for the dramatically-improved performance of their fourth grade students on the reading section of the 1996 Massachusetts Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon said shortly before Tuesday's ceremony that the McFarland, 42, who has owned Barry's Deli in Wollaston for 18 years, said the reason he is leaving the mayor's office is that he wants to return full-time to his business and the private sector.

"I enjoy immensely working with the mayor," he said at press time. "But it's time for me to go back to my business. I've been an absentee owner for about 2 1/2 years now."

McFarland, who made his plans known to the mayor last Friday, said he will remain active working on Quincy's Christmas and Flag Day parades and on the city's retirement and cable

Grants 100% Abatement

Council Approves 5-Year Tax Break For Shipyard

The City Council voted 8-1 Monday night to approve a five-year, 100 percent tax abatement for the Fore River shipyard to assist Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil, who plans to build double-hulled tankers at the site by the end of the year.

The exemption will also allow Emmanouil's Swampscott-based company, Massachusetts Heavy Industries, to get an additional 12 percent in state tax credits for improvements to the shipyard.

Councillor Paul Harold was the lone dissenter, saying the vote should be delayed. He said Emmanouil is required, under state regulations, to submit detailed information about the site and his business plans before a vote.

Emmanouil, however, as well as some council members, said the council has been given all the information it needs.

The abatement means another step forward for Emmanouil's $322 million

Daffodil Named Official City Flower

The City Council, at the suggestion of an 8-year-old girl working toward her Girl Scout Quincy patch, has voted to designate the daffodil Quincy's official city flower.

Councillor Paul Harold introduced a resolution toward that end that was passed unanimously by the council Monday night.

At the meeting, Harold read a note he recently received from Jennifer McCauley--granddaughter of former Mayor and current Francis Committeeman Francis McCauley--which states:

"Dear Councillor Harold, I am working on my Quincy patch for Girl Scouts. I found out there isn't a city flower. So in honor of Abigail Adams, I think it should be a daffodil, because it was her favorite flower. Could you make a city flower? Thank you! Dawn McCauley, age 8."

Harold said of the designation after the meeting that although the council has other more pressing matters to consider, "I thought it was a nice way to include a young person in the operation of the city government."

Lease Approved For Senior Housing At Squantum Gardens

The City Council unanimously approved Monday night an interim lease between the city and the Navy that will allow senior citizens to begin moving into planned senior facilities at Squantum Gardens this fall.

The lease, which was negotiated between the Navy and Mayor James Sheets, will now be sent back to the Navy for final approval, which Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade said should happen within 30 days.

A final public hearing on the Squantum Gardens proposal, which was devised by the Quincy Council on Aging and Sheets, will be held at 6:30 p.m. before the council's regularly-scheduled meeting on Monday, May 19.

Meade said the first tenants could be moved in as early as September and would occupy the Naval Terrace duplexes at the 26-acre site while the 62 Squantum Gardens apartments undergo renovations. Those units would then be filled over the next year, he added.

If the Navy officially approves the lease, the city will have temporary control over property located on East Squantum Street while the mayor and others work toward a permanent transfer of the property to the city.

The Navy has vacated Squantum Gardens and is giving up the site, along with the Naval Air Station in South Weymouth, as part of the military's base-closure program which is taking place across the country.

The city, under the terms of the interim lease, could operate Squantum Gardens for up to 20 years, including an initial five-year term, while negotiating the property transfer.

Sheets is hoping to acquire the property little or minimal cost with the assistance of the federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and Health and Human Services (HHS) departments. Because senior housing is not on the Defense Department's list of approved uses, one of the two would have to sponsor Quincy's proposal.

If the city cannot get a special conveyance from one of those two agencies, it would have to either get Congressional approval or work out a purchase price with the Navy.

Some officials, including state Sen. Michael Morrissey, have voiced concerns that the Squantum Gardens plan will end up costing the city millions of dollars. Some have said it is very unlikely the Navy would simply give away the property, since the military is working similar deals with numerous communities nationwide.

Although the 20-year lease period would allow the city a prolonged period of time to make any necessary payments to the Navy, the mayor is hoping a deal with the Navy and either HUD or HHS can be worked out.

Navy Cmdr. Glenn Doten said at Monday night's meeting said the Navy is supportive of the senior housing plan because it was similar to the previous military housing setup Squantum Gardens. However, he would not predict whether the deal will end up costing the city money, saying the issue has to be negotiated.

To Benefit Projects For Disabled Handicapped Parking Fine Raise Considered

The city is considering raising its handicapped parking fine from $50 to $100 in an attempt to generate revenue for projects that would make the city more accessible to people with various disabilities.

The City Council Disabilities Committee voted 3-0 to support the increase Monday night. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, the committee chairman, was joined by Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico for the unanimous vote of the three-man committee.

The full council will vote on the proposed ordinance change at a later date.

Ayers, who introduced the proposal, said that if the increase is approved, half of each $100 fine charged to those who illegally use designated handicapped parking spaces would be used for improvements at various city buildings as well as educational tools and anything else that would "make the city more user-friendly for those who are challenged."

Improvements made would not only aid those in wheelchairs but also those who are affected by blindness, deafness and other disabilities, he added.

Cheney said his one concern about the proposal is that history shows that if fines are raised, enforcement tends to decrease. He added, however, that he would support the measure because it is designed to help the disabled.

Members of the Quincy Commission on Disability and the Quincy Council on Aging also spoke in favor of the proposal. Ayers said after the meeting that Quincy Veterans Services Director Hank Bradley also has voiced his support.

QUINCY WALKAMERICA participants set off at the start of the event at Pageant Field recently. Some 200 Quincy participants raised about $19,000 for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation. Statewide, the 27th annual WalkAmerica raised nearly $700,000.

Council Bugged By City Hall Termites

By MICHAEL WHALEN

You could say they're trying to work the bugs out of Old City Hall.

Literally.

The City Council voted unanimously Monday night to appropriate $2,522 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account to eliminate a termite problem in the assistant city clerk's and election offices.

Department of Public Works Operations Manager Lester Gerry said the money will be used to hire a private firm for chemical treatment of the soil on the dirt floor of the basement below the offices, which are located on the building's first floor.

Gerry said the problem is primarily located in the assistant clerk's office. He added that the termites have not caused any major damage and that the city is simply taking quick preventative action.

The council got a couple of laughs out of the appropriation.

Council President Peter Kolson told Gerry that because this is a municipal election year, it should be determined which termites are Democrats and which are Republicans before they are eliminated. All of the city's nine councillors are Democrats.

Councillor Michael Cheney poked good-natured fun at himself and the other councillors when speaking on the appropriation.

"This will debug City Hall and get rid of most of the pests in here," he joked.

Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallen said after the meeting she does not consider the problem to be serious and that her work has not been affected by the presence of the termites.

Nominations Open For Ayers Councillor's Award Program

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers announces his annual Councillor's Award Program which recognizes an exemplary child of middle school age living in Ward 6.

Ayers said that the middle school years are very important in terms of the development of a child, and he feels that providing positive reinforcement is invaluable.

The winner will receive a $100 savings bond along with an award which will be presented July 4 at the Squantum Playground after the parade.

If anyone knows of a student who they believe to be worthy of the award, they should submit a written explanation of why the student is deserving. The award recipient will be judged on his/her academic achievement and contribution to the community.

Nominations must be received by June 20. Nominations should be mailed to Councillor Bruce J. Ayers, Councillor's Award Program, City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

A Musical Treat: A Worthy Cause

If you're in the mood for some real good big band music, circle Tuesday, May 20 on your calendar.

A rare musical doubleheader—two treats for one ticket—will be held from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Lantana in Randolph.

The Mollie Hirshberg Fund Committee of Quincy is presenting a professional jazz combo and a 20-piece big band "Olde Kids on The Block."

Playing in the jazz combo, by the way, will be Dick

Johnson, on clarinet and Lou Columbo on trumpet. Both have large local followings and are long-time friends.

Artie Shaw hand-picked Johnson to take over his band in 1983, he was so impressed with his clarinet work. Johnson still directs the Shaw band and plays locally when it is not on tour.

Johnson, with Shaw leading the band, played Shaw's classic "Begin The Beguine" for Cole Porter's 100th anniversary celebration at Carnegie Hall. Johnson is now 71 but has no intention of hanging up his clarinet.

Columbo, who can make you think of Harry James, has played with a number of big bands including Benny Goodman, Buddy Morrow and Perez Prado. He has also teamed up with Johnson and the Shaw band on jazz cruises aboard the Norway.

Ron Della Chiesa of WGBH-FM and WPLM-FM and nephew of late Quincy Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, will be the emcee.

Well-known singer Donna Byrne will appear with the jazz combo.

Proceeds will go to the Mollie Hirshberg Fund in Quincy which aids children with physical disabilities and abused and neglected children.

Tickets are $25 and may be obtained by contacting Dr. Sumner Hirshberg at 472-2527.

Good music for a good cause.

THERE'S SOME movement on the local political front.

Steve Hawko has decided to challenge incumbent Michael D'Amico for the Ward 4 council seat.

Hawko set the stage for a run the other night by resigning as president of the non-political Ward 4 Neighborhood Association.

"I'll take out my nomination papers in a week or two and am planning a fundraiser for sometime in June," he says.

Hawko, an engineer for the Department of Environment Protection, will be making his first bid for a Quincy elective office.

Former Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio, who was vice president of the association, will move up as interim president. The next election for the association's officers is in October.

There's been speculation that Fabrizio, who was defeated by D'Amico two years ago, might make a comeback bid for the Ward 4 seat or run for the school committee.

If he did, the Ward 4 association would need another interim president.

MEANWHILE, business is a little brisk in the City Election Department with early birds picking up nomination papers.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers was in to get his papers the first day they were available (last Thursday) and filed them the following day.

Ayers apparently has at least one challenger. Daniel Dykens of Shepard St., Squantum, listed as an MBTA union official, also picked up papers for the Ward 6 seat.

Joseph Kasparian of Rhude St., Germantown, who ran against City Council President Peter Kolson two years ago, is going to give it another try. He took out nomination papers for the Ward 1 seat as did Gretchen Grant of Bicknell St.

Former Mayor Frank McCauley and incumbent Paul Harold took out their papers for city council at-large. Incumbent JoAnn Bragg and Dennis Dockham of Elm Ave. have papers for the school committee. Dockham ran for the Ward 5 seat two years ago.

GEORGE McDONALD, former Ward 4 city councillor and Norfolk County Commissioner, is recuperating at his Grove St. home after undergoing heart surgery.

McDonald was released from the VA Hospital in West Roxbury Monday where he had surgery April 28 on his carotid arteries and underwent a triple bypass.

His wife, Sheila, says his doctors are pleased with his progress and that he's doing fine.

MILESTONE: Charlie and Betty Sweeney, two of Quincy's popular residents, are celebrating their 56th wedding anniversary.

Charlie, of course, is a former school committeeman and now a member of the Board of Voter Registrars.

Since his retirement a few years ago as Veterans Administration Regional Contact Officer, he has become a horticulturist and is well known for developing a rare rose: an artificial one that grows on a live bush. Something no one else—not even Luther Burbank—ever came close to accomplishing.

Charlie was asking his South Shore Plaza walking buddies the other day if they had any suggestions as to what he might give Betty for their anniversary.

"After 56 years with you," one said, "why not the Congressional Medal of Honor. She sure has earned it."

He gave her a dozen roses—the real long-stemmed ones. But all kidding aside, congratulations and best wishes to one of the nicest couples who ever got together.

Hang in there, Betty.

LIKE THE LYRICS in Kenny Rogers' hit song, "The Gambler," Vin Moscardelli of ERA Central Real Estate knows when you got "to hold them and when to fold them."

He sure knew when the other night at the Beechwood Life Center fundraiser raffle dinner at the Neighborhood Club. He had one of the last four tickets still in contention for either the $1,000 or $2,500 prize.

Peter Palmer of Petar's Automotive, negotiating for those at his table, offered him $500 for the ticket. Vin gave it a little thought and accepted. When the raffle resumed, the ticket, now the property of those at Peter's table, was the first to be eliminated.

Vin, who couldn't get the smile off his face the rest of the night noted: "All I can say is it's nice to go out to dinner and go home with $500."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 POSTCARD showing the noon hour at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point. During this period, a great many postcards were printed with scenes from the yard. Workers there, who boarded in rooming houses in the Quincy Point area, used the postcards to communicate with their families throughout New England. The cards only cost a penny to mail and they were delivered the same day or the next morning to even the smallest town.

House Had Sentimental Significance

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Today I was doing some errands at the Wollaston Post Office and the bank next door as I usually do. I parked in the bank parking lot as Beale Street is a very busy intersection and it is usually very difficult to find a parking space on the street there.

When I finished my errands, I headed out to my car. As I was driving through the bank parking lot, I experienced a moment of sorrow and surprise as I noticed that Sam and Marilyn Schulz' old home next to the bank parking lot was being bulldozed.

I remember visiting that house many years ago as a child with my parents during holiday time and I have memories of playing in their backyard and in the driveway during the summer with Sam and Marilyn's children. Sam had a beauty shop in Wollaston Square for many years and Marilyn used to love to perform in plays.

That house always had a sentimental significance for me whenever I would drive by after doing my errands and I always wondered what happened to the family that used to live there. Now it is no more as it has been bulldozed to make way for progress. Soon, a new building will be built on the premises to serve the needs of future Quincy citizens and what used to be on that site will be but a dim memory in the minds of those people like myself who actually remember what it used to be like.

Improvements At Bishop Field 'Incredible'

[The following letter to Quincy Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch was submitted for publication by the author.]
Dear Mr. Koch:

We've been residents of Montclair for many years and have seen a few changes.

I have to tell you, though, that the transformation of Bishop Field is truly incredible! It is a job well done, with lots of thought and effort put into it.

The crowning glory came the other day as we drove up Holbrook Road from the new Stop & Shop. The pink flowering trees, along with the edge of the field, were in full bloom in spite of the weather and were truly spectacular—a job well done! Thank you.

If only we could get the dog owners/walkers to use pooper scoopers; then we would have no complaints.

Sincere thanks to you and your crew. Your efficiency and caring are showing.

The 2,000-unit housing development would consist of seven buildings, ranging in height from 10 to 16 stories. Rejected was their original plan for two, 25-story towers.

Kanavos purchased the 74-acre parcel from Herbert Duane in 1973 for $1.9 million.

HEARING CALLED ON UPLAND RD. LAND

City Councillor John Lydon called for a public hearing regarding the future use of the vacant strip of land on Upland Rd., between Adams and Dimmock Streets.

At question was who owned the land, the city or the MBTA, and whether it should be developed or kept as open space.

Recently, a group of residents in the area have asked that the land be designated as open space and be named "Freedom Park."

ACADEMY RENOVATIONS EXPLAINED

Following criticism of the "blocking up" of windows at the Adams Academy, historical society president Hobart Holly explained that work was not completed, and that false windows would be installed on the outside.

Since the building was being renovated for use as a museum, Holly said the windows had to be modified for security reasons.

Rev. John Graham of the United First Parish Church, head of the Historic District Study Commission, questioned if an historic preservationist had been called in for consultation on the project.

RESIDUAL INJURIES

Anyone who suffers permanent injury as the result of another party's negligence has the right to expect to receive a damage award that goes beyond that which causes an injury with temporary consequences. In cases of visible scarring and disfigurement, there may be reason to believe that the injury will have a harmful impact upon the victim's ability to cope with future matters at home, work, and recreation. Injuries are also expected to negatively impact the injured party's physical approach to these aspects of his or her life. As such, injuries that have long-lasting or permanent effect are known as residual injuries and should be accorded special weight when figured into a damages award.

HINT: Even though a back injury may stabilize, it could be the source of future pain, discomfort, and lack of mobility. Have you been injured? We are happy to provide advice, conduct the case and be compensated only when recovery is made on your behalf. Call 773-2880 today to schedule a free consultation. Many ambulance services now look to a national conglomerate for guidance.

We look here.

Fallon Ambulance Service has been run by the Fallon family since James Fallon Sr. founded our company in 1936. The philosophy of compassionate personalized care that was established by James is what guides us today.

So while many local ambulance services have caught the merger bug and become branches of large national companies, Fallon Ambulance remains true to its roots and an unwavering belief in personalized service. James Fallon Sr.'s philosophy of compassion plays a role at every level of the company, from the way we treat our employees to the individualized attention patients receive from our EMTs.

Staying true to our roots also means playing a visible and important role in our community. We do just that with unmatched volunteer work, serving schools with educational programs and providing transportation for charitable events. Special programs like our "Bringing Families Together" and "Extra Miles for Kids in Need" are unique in the industry.

Give us a call and find out how our "family" commitment to unconditional patient care can benefit your facility.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Staff Has Over 100 Years Experience

Frantic Framers Celebrating 25th Year

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Frantic Framers, a family-owned picture framing business at 1592 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, is celebrating its 25th anniversary of providing top-notch quality service to its loyal customers.

"I think people come here because of our service," said Paul Sturman, president of Frantic Framers. "I've been in the business almost 30 years, and our staff has more than 100 years of experience."

"Besides my wife and I, Charles Kellman, who has a master's degree in fine arts, has been framing for 25 years, 22 of which have been with Frantic Framers. David Dreyer has 10 years of experience and Janet's mother has 30 years of selling experience in the picture frame business."

"We're a lot different than other places, where new faces pop up all the time. You come here, you see the same people every time and become familiar customers to us."

Sturman, his wife, Janet, and the experienced staff at Frantic Framers make it their priority to assist people with questions about framing and complete the job promptly and correctly.

"We put the emphasis on family, service and quality," said Paul. "People know it's family-owned and that their problems will be solved immediately. They don't get the run-around here."

"With a family business, you have to work harder. Our prices are competitive, our service is superlative and we offer same-day framing at no extra cost. And we'll have your framing done when you want it."

With all the years of experience in the framing business, Sturman encourages people with items that are important to them to bring them in and have the job done the right way by professionals.

"If you have something valuable, you want to bring it to someone who knows what they're doing," he said. "We don't just frame, we also create designs."

"That's the biggest part of this business: what frame complements this picture? That's why we're so successful: we can visualize a picture finished. All you have to do is trust us to let us put what looks the nicest with your picture."

When the customer sees the finished product and is pleased with its appearance, that's what keeps Sturman and his staff motivated to do the same for the next customer.

"When a customer is elated with how it came out, you feel good about what you've done and want to keep doing it," said Paul.

"Very few people leave here disappointed," said Janet. "If they are, we'll do it over. We'll do whatever it takes to make them happy. We respect and appreciate people's needs and try to accommodate everyone."

A large percentage of the people who stop in for the first time, said Paul, are recommended by word of mouth from Frantic Framers' numerous satisfied customers. Approximately 85 percent of the customers are repeat customers, said Janet.

While it is not a seasonal business, Frantic Framers' busiest time is around the Christmas season, when people bring in last-minute items in hopes they'll be ready for Christmas Eve.

"The week before Christmas is real busy, because some wait until the last minute," said Janet.

"We take orders right up to Christmas Eve," said Paul. "We work 18 hours a day during that time."

"That's when we pick up our lifelong customers, because they're indebted to us for life," Janet laughed.

While Frantic Framers does specialize in picture framing, don't be fooled by the name.

"Besides custom framing, we offer a wide selection and quantity of art supplies," said Paul. "First-time shoppers are amazed at our selection of discount art supplies, which is one of the largest on the South Shore. We also have two instructors to teach art classes for kids and adults."

"We stock art supplies from beginner to professional, and if we don't have it we'll get for you. We have oils, acrylics, water colors, drafting supplies, airbrushes and calligraphy materials."

The Sturmans, who have been married 27 years, have two children in their early 20s who have not yet showed an interest in the framing business.

"Neither has the desire right now to enter the business, but reality make strike three or four years down the road," said Paul. "We'll leave it up to them to decide; whatever they decide to do is fine with us."

The Sturmans, who live in Easton, enjoy each other's company at the workplace.

"We get along real well together," said Paul. "My mother-in-law also helps out, which is nice."

"When the kids got older, I decided to come work with him," said Janet. "It's been good for me; I get to see him more often."

The Sturmans are second-generation framers. Janet's father, Morris Edelstein, started a framing business called Elaine Green Art Studio in the South Shore Plaza in the 1967.

A 1971 graduate of the University of Maine, Paul started working at the framing business in the late 1960s and early 1970s during school vacations and summers.

When he graduated with a degree in business management, Paul did not want to go into the framing business, but soon changed his mind when he went back to work for his wife's father.

"I worked for him full-time while I was looking for work in a different field," said Paul, "but I started liking the business more and more and decided to venture out on my own."

Paul opened a framing business in Needham in 1972 and moved it the following year to McGrath Highway in Quincy. The business remained there until 1979, when the building was sold and the Sturmans had to find another location.

In May 1979, the Sturmans learned that there was a vacancy at 1592 Hancock St. from the building's landlord, Marilyn Reisberg. The owner of Bernie's Formal Shop at 1586 Hancock St., Reisberg asked the Sturmans if they wanted to fill the vacancy, and they've been there ever since.

"We moved from a secluded place to one with a lot more exposure in downtown Quincy," said Paul. "It was great when we first moved here, with Sears across the street and Remick's and Child World nearby. It's changed over the years, but we're doing all right. The business has been good to me."

Frantic Framers is open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The business is closed Sunday. The phone number is 479-4352.

coalition will bring together educators, business representatives, parents and others from the 15 communities who will assess teaching performances, educational tools and other areas to help the students prepare for the new testing.

"The coalition is very interested in making sure there's an alliance of people who understand what high-stakes testing means," said Creedon, who added that the new testing can ultimately determine whether a student receives his or her high school diploma.

Creedon said the new testing will create a higher standard of education and will prompt both students and their parents to make the students' education a high priority. The ultimate goal, he added, is for the students' scores to show improvement over the years.

"If we don't see progress, we're going to have to go back to the drawing board," he said. "We want to be sure that the testing is a good indication that Education Reform is taking root in our society. Instead of measuring yourself against the scores of other school systems, you really should be measuring yourself against your own progress."

The superintendent also praised the Snug Harbor School for being one of the four schools honored Tuesday for improvement shown on the MEAP reading test between 1988 and 1996.

"We're very proud of that," he said.

Mayor James Sheets, speaking at Tuesday's ceremony, also praised the coalition as well as Snug Harbor.

"I applaud the Coalition of Communities for Higher Standards in establishing a partnership for high standards between school leadership and other local leaders who have agreed to make steadily-improving performance on the new state tests a major commitment," said Sheets, who serves as chairman of the Quincy School Committee.

He added, "I am particularly proud to be here at the Snug Harbor School, a Blue Ribbon School, where there is evidence that appropriate resources, dedicated principals and teachers, supportive parents, and community can make a difference in understanding student performance."

The coalition will focus on the new state tests as a means to drive improvement in student achievement. Other communities in the group include Boston, Concord-Carlisle, Gloucester, Greenfield, Marblehead, Needham, Newton, Rockport, Salem, Springfield, Taunton, Uxbridge, Watertown, and Woburn.

Currently, parts of the new Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS) test are being field-tested in 10th grade classes throughout the state. Beginning in the spring of 1998, the MCAS will be administered annually in Grades 4, 8 and 10.

The coalition will work within each participating community to build support among civic leaders, school leaders and parents for an ongoing initiative to raise academic standards, using the new MCAS test as a major focal point.

Each coalition community has adopted an eight-step consensus-building agenda called the Massachusetts Compact, which outlines steps required to develop community-wide understanding about the need to raise standards and improve student performance.

The coalition's formation resulted from research which shows that other states have had great difficulty in raising academic standards because of a lack of public preparedness for high standards testing.

In Massachusetts, Mass Insight public opinion polling shows most parents currently give their own children's schools an A or B grade despite education leaders and politicians calling for higher standards.

McCauley Wants Substitute Teachers' Compensation Examined

School Committee Francis McCauley introduced a resolution at last night's (Wednesday's) meeting asking School Supt. Eugene Creedon to review the per diem compensation paid to substitute teachers in the Quincy Public Schools.

The resolution calls for Creedon to submit a report on the matter to the committee's Budget Subcommittee as soon as possible.

"I've gotten a couple of calls on this, and I think it's time we looked at it," said McCauley. "I think it's appropriate, since we're looking at the (Fiscal Year 1998) school department budget (proposed by Mayor James Sheets) now."

Hard Winter Can Cause Many Roof Problems

News USA

(NU) - With severe winter storms and record cold spells still a fresh memory for most homeowners, now is a good time to get a "roof checkup."

The unusually cold and snowy winter in many parts of the country resulted in damage to the roofs of many homes. Damage also may have been caused to other parts of the house, such as walls and ceilings.

Here is a quick overview of some of the problems reported by the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association (ARMA):

- Damaged roof decks: The weight of snow and icy buildup caused some roofs to buckle or move in a way not contemplated when the roofing was applied. This movement, in turn, could have damaged roof shingles.

- Ice dams: Ice dams, which often enable water to penetrate houses at the eaves, are caused by the cycle of freezing and thawing that occurs when ice builds up in gutters. Water that under normal conditions would run off in the gutters instead pushes its way under the shingles and flashings at valleys and eaves, damaging walls and ceilings and, in some cases, causing electrical shorts.

- Broken shingles: Shingles that have been broken by the movement of ice or by attempts to remove snow from the roof should be replaced.

- Scouring: Glacier-type movement of ice on the roof can cause damage to roofing by removing excessive amounts of protective granules from asphalt shingles. Shingles that exhibit excessive granule loss should be replaced.

The challenge now facing homeowners is to repair the damage caused by the severe winter and also to take precautionary steps to protect against the possibility of another harsh winter in the future.

Spring is a good time of year to check indoors and out to prevent minor repairs from becoming major headaches. Inspecting the roof, for example, is best done by walking around the house with a pair of binoculars for a close-up look. A roof with cracked, curled, broken or missing shingles probably needs to be replaced, according to the experts at the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association.

ladders to clean out gutters. The best way to conduct a preventative maintenance checkup and to repair damage is to call in a professional roofing contractor who not only can perform routine maintenance, but provide repairs and replacements as needed. Also best left to professionals, such as a landscaper or a tree pruning service, is the job of cutting back overhanging tree branches.

Spring is normally the best time to perform preventive maintenance measures in any case. Clean out roof gutters, inspect the bottom of downspouts for excessive granule loss and check the roof for broken, missing or buckled shingles. Also, prune back trees whose branches may damage roofing.

The safest way to inspect the roof is from the ground, using binoculars. Observe safety measures when using

For information on the maintenance of asphalt shingle roofs, contact ARMA, 6000 Executive Blvd., Suite 201, Rockville, MD 20852.

Furniture Care Tips

Guardsman WoodPro, a new furniture repair division of Guardsman Products, Inc., is a mobile, on-site furniture touchup and repair service that was created to bring Guardsman products into the service field via a franchised repair service.

Guardsman WoodPro began offering franchises in January 1994, and according to Tony Ziegler, director of franchise operation, business is booming because consumers trust Guardsman Products, the largest domestic supplier of wood finishes, and because the service is so convenient.

"Some people can't believe their damaged furniture can be repaired to look like new so easily," said Ziegler.

Review the following maintenance tips suggested by Guardsman Products, Inc. to keep your furniture and wood products beautiful for years to come:

1. Dust frequently.
2. Use a quality furniture polish, such as Guardsman's Heritage Furniture Polish brand, recommended by these manufacturers. The reason for a fine polish is that it will lessen the chance of expensive refinishing jobs. Polish approximately once a month.

3. Clean up spills immediately. Use a blotting action rather than a wiping action.

4. For both cleaning and polishing, use a soft, lint-free absorbent cloth.

5. Avoid placing furniture in direct sunlight.

6. Avoid extremes in humidity. Too high or too low humidity can cause wood to warp, or the glue lines to fail.

7. Avoid extreme changes in temperature. Arrange furniture away from radiators, registers, and air conditioners.

8. Rotate accessories on furniture so they do not sit in the same spot all the time.

9. Do not place plastic or rubber objects on a wood finish--their ingredients react with those of the finish.

10. Use pads, cloth or felt to protect the furniture surface from plastic, rubber, hot dishes, beverages, bookends, flower pots and vases.

11. Use a protective pad when writing with a ball point pen.

12. Lift objects--do not drag them across the furniture surface.

13. Make minor repairs while they are still small.

14. Do not attempt to repair badly damaged surfaces without the proper materials or professional help, such as from a Guardsman WoodPro furniture repair specialist.

For more information, contact Guardsman WoodPro at 800 4 WOODPR (800 496-6377). For information, about a franchise contact Tony Ziegler at 800 253-3957.

Cooking Over The Range

Out-of-the-way and in-the-right-place! Whirlpool's new line of over-the-range microwave ovens make the best use of kitchen space with four versatile designs to fit right above the conventional oven.

Whirlpool's goal is to make life a little easier. This objective is accomplished with the convection microwave oven, designed to provide a variety of options to customize cooking capabilities.

Select the microwave mode to get dinner on the table in a matter of minutes or to re-heat leftovers, or defrost the meat. Combine the appliance's microwave and convection capabilities by using both for roasting and broiling. The convection microwave oven model also features an automatic roast cycle, a five-stage pre-programmed cooking menu, and pop-up menu controls.

Take advantage of the full oven capacity and turn off the rotating turntable control. The ability to turn off the rotating turntable is especially helpful when the dish is too large to rotate in the oven. Select a model with a sensor microwave cycle to pick up the moisture of cooking foods and automatically cook to desired doneness. There's no longer any need to determine cooking time or power!

Another feature of these microwaves is the In-Use Reprogramming. Preprogram up to four stages of cooking power and cooking time when the food is put in the oven. There's no need to program cycles during cooking.

Call the Consumer Assistance Center anytime--day or night--for answers to questions about our over-the-range microwave ovens, or any Whirlpool appliance. For more information about our new line of Whirlpool brand appliances, catch Whirlpool on the Internet under <http://www.whirlpoolappliances.com>.

High-Efficiency Air Conditioner Can Pay For Itself

News USA
(NU) - A new high-efficiency air conditioner can pay for itself in electricity cost savings if it replaces an older, less efficient air conditioner.

If your air conditioner is more than 10 years old, it probably has a Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio (SEER) of 8.0 or less. A high-efficiency model, such as the Arcoaire AJ, can be configured to provide a SEER of 12-plus or 13-plus. That's like switching from a car that gets 20 miles per gallon to one that gets 45 or 50 mpg.

Here are some energy-saving tips from Colin Perkins, product marketing manager for Inter-City Products, manufacturer of Arcoaire air conditioners, furnaces and heat pumps.

- Have your air conditioning system checked and serviced by a qualified service technician every spring. Heat pumps should be serviced in the spring and again

- Trim the shrubbery and plants around your air conditioner to allow air to flow freely around, into and out of the air conditioner or heat pump.

- Turn off the bathroom vent fan. When it pulls cooled air out of the house, it also draws warm air inside.

- If you use disposable air filters, change them at least once a month. If you use electrostatic filters or an electronic air cleaner, follow the manufacturer's instructions carefully. Clogged filters rob your air conditioner or heat pump of its efficiency and can shorten its life.

- Clean the return air grille with a vacuum cleaner every time you change or clean the air filter.

For more information about high-efficiency air conditioners, visit the Arcoaire heating and cooling products Web site, www.arcoaire.com/arcoaire.

Hire Only Licensed Pesticide Applicators

Now that spring has arrived, homeowners' thoughts turn to lawn care, landscaping and gardening.

The Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture's Pesticide Bureau is urging homeowners who use lawn care and pest control services to hire only licensed professionals.

"For their own safety, homeowners should demand to see a pesticide applicator's license before they apply any pesticide," said Bureau Chief Brad Mitchell. "If they can't show you a license, don't let them apply. Licensed applicators are trained and tested on how to apply pesticides correctly. If you hire an unlicensed person, you have no assurance that that person knows what they are doing."

"Misapplied pesticides can pose a risk to your family, neighbors, pets and the environment. Licensed applicators also carry liability insurance in case an accident should occur. If pesticides applied by an unlicensed person cause any harm, the person who hires them may be liable."

Lawn care professionals and landscapers are required to be licensed even if they are using "over the counter" pest control or weed control products that are available in retail stores and garden centers.

Homeowners are also urged to contact the Pesticide Bureau at 727-3020, ext. 134 if they encounter anyone applying pesticides commercially without a license.

For a free brochure on hiring lawn care and pest control services and on the safe use of pesticides by homeowners, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, Pesticide Bureau, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, MA 02202.

The information is also available on the World Wide Web at <http://www.massgown.org>.

Combination Ovens Can Enhance A Kitchen

An unparalleled variety of cooking modes is available all in one beautifully-designed package: new combination built-in ovens featuring exclusive KitchenAid Sculptria styling.

The lower oven boasts the leading convection cooking system in the industry: the KitchenAid Third Hidden Element--or T.H.E.--Convection Cooking System, backed by over a decade of KitchenAid convection experience.

The convection power is easy to tap, using the exclusive EasyConvect control system, which eliminates the need for the cook to recalculate standard cooking times and temperatures--the cook simply enters the standard time and temperatures, and the EasyConvect control adjusts them automatically to the proper convection settings.

The smooth Sculptria styling is complemented by monochromatic all-white, all-almond or all-black styling, available in either the 27 or 30-inch width.

For more information about the new combination built-in ovens, or any of the full line of major applicances, call 1-800-422-1230, visit your nearest KitchenAid dealer, or visit KitchenAid on the Internet at <http://www.kitchenaid.com>.

Michael D'Amico Candidate For Re-Election In Ward 4

Ward 4 Councillor Michael J. D'Amico is seeking re-election to a second term.

D'Amico announced his candidacy to an estimated 400 attending a recent fundraiser at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

D'Amico noted "promises had been made two years ago and promises have been kept. The work that we started must continue and with your support, it will."

D'Amico called the Site Plan Review ordinance he helped pass as the city's best safeguard against overdevelopment. He spoke of a resolution he recently sponsored that ensures fair representation of local organized labor in city construction contracts.

D'Amico mentioned his chairmanship of the City Council's Education Committee, a role in which he advocated construction of a new school in Quincy Point to offset overcrowding at Sterling Middle School. He said the West Quincy Flood Control Project is now on track because he worked with residents and fought for state funding to see it through.

Referring to public safety as "priority No. 1," he said that a strong message is being sent to anyone thinking about committing a crime.

"The neighbors are watching, the police are ready, and you'd better stay out of Ward 4."

MICHAEL D'AMICO

He said "families can feel safer knowing that

Ward 4 has the largest and most acclaimed Crime Watch in the city," a Crime Watch he created. He cited his success in bringing police foot patrols to key areas and cutting the crime rate in half in the Brewer's Corner vicinity. He noted his "sincere devotion: to delivering the best constituent services.

In brining city government closer to the people, D'Amico said he has gone beyond answering every phone call and conducting weekly office hours by launching a Neighborhood Advisory Committee, a Senior Outreach Program, a newsletter, and has held hundreds of neighborhood meetings since coming to office.

D'Amico said that several issues top his agenda in a second term. He said he will continue to work with the city's Traffic Engineer to improve signage, install speed radar equipment, and eliminate cut-thru traffic on Ward 4 roadways. He said how important it is that he continue his frequent talks with the mayor and Quarry Hill Associates to bring about a first rate golf course and recreational facility off Ricciuti Drive.

D'Amico said he will oversee the expansion of the Thomas Crane Public Library and work tirelessly to see the Fore River Shipyard employ thousands once again. "These are exciting times for our City and Ward 4 is leading the way," he said. "I can't explain how grateful I am for your phenomenal show of support. Together, we're advancing the potential of this community."

THE OTHER TICKING TIME BOMB

Spring and summer usually bring a blitz of information about the dangers of Lyme disease, a serious tick-borne infection.

Sometimes forgotten in the media shuffle is another, equally dangerous disease spread by ticks that has been around a lot longer than Lyme disease and probably affects more people: Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Don't let the quaint name fool you. Without treatment, Rocky Mountain spotted fever can lead to mental confusion, unconsciousness, damage to kidneys, liver, and lungs, and even death. Early symptoms, which generally appear about two days after the tick bite, include a severe headache, a temperature of at least 103 degrees, and extreme muscle aches and weakness. Seek help immediately if you or someone you know has had a tick bite and any of these signs appear.

P.S. The ticks that carry Rocky Mountain spotted fever are found all over the U.S., but most frequently in the south-east.

If you have unusual symptoms, sometimes it is wise to simply give your physician a call because you just never know what help might be available. Call your physician with questions on this or any other medical topic which concerns you. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, at 700 Congress St., in Quincy or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550, office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Volleyball

Momentum Shift Lifts Raiders Over Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The boys volleyball match between North Quincy High School and Quincy High School last Thursday boiled down to who held the momentum at the end of the match.

North won the match, 13-15, 15-9, 15-7, to improve its record to 6-4, while Quincy's mark dropped to 6-4 with the defeat.

The visiting Presidents had the edge in the first game, reeling off seven straight points to rally from a 10-7 deficit and win, 15-13. Ed Smith, Geoff King and Dom Catrambone each had a kill and Don McCarthy served an ace during Quincy's seven-point spurt.

Quincy also took control of the second game, jumping out to a 3-0 lead. North, however, was not about to cave in and scored the next four points to take a 4-3 lead. Staying true to the back and forth theme of the match, the Presidents ran off three straight points and went ahead, 6-4.

At this point of the match, the Red Raiders gained command with an seven-point spurt that sent the Presidents reeling. North took advantage of a few Quincy miscues and some solid net play by Matt Bromley (11 kills, eight blocks) and the steady setting of Jerik Warrick (75 sets). Quincy finally broke the NQ scoring streak with a point to cut the lead to 12-7, but two long returns by Quincy's Don McCarthy and a kill by North's Nick Shea sealed a 15-7 North triumph.

"We expected a battle and we got one," said North Quincy coach John Perkins. "The first game was no surprise, going back and forth. In the second game, they led 3-0, before we got a point and called a timeout. The blocking of Bromley, who had eight blocks, and Shea, who had four blocks, gave us the momentum and allowed us to control the rest of the match.

"The back row play of James Cheung was invaluable; he made a couple of dives that rallied the team. The hitting of Lewis Man, who had six kills, also helped us a lot."

The Presidents took an early 3-0 lead in the third game, but again North came back, scoring the next seven points and taking complete control of the match. The closest Quincy would get would be 12-8, before North scored three of the next four points to clinch the victory, 15-9.

"When the pressure is on like it was at the end of the second and third games, they don't execute as well as they should," said Quincy coach Tom Henderson. "We made some crucial errors at key times, which you have to eliminate if you want to be successful. We started out well, but we just couldn't sustain the offensive firepower as long as we should have."

NORTH QUINCY'S Lewis Man (left) scores past Quincy's Dom Catrambone (41) and Paul Pitts-Dilley during the Red Raiders' 2-1 victory over the Presidents last Thursday. The two teams meet again May 23 at 3:30 p.m. at Quincy in the regular season finale both squads.

Girls' SoftballHard-Working Raiders Win Three Of Four

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The combination of solid pitching, timely hitting and steady defense have resulted in three wins in four games for the North Quincy High School girls softball team.

"The girls seem to feeding off each other," said NQ coach Bob Doyle. "We're getting big hits, being aggressive on the basepaths and playing smart all-around softball. They've been willing to work hard to improve, and it's a tribute to them how much they've improved."

"Now, they're believing in themselves and are seeing the results of hard work and dedication. I'm proud of their effort—it's nice to see them get rewarded for all their work."

The Raiders' latest triumph came Monday when they beat Plymouth South by an 8-2 count. Kristy Deptula continued her hot pitching, firing a three-hitter with four strikeouts.

Four players (Kerry Skehan, Laurie Flynn, Kristen Keohane, Rachael Powers) collected two hits apiece and Bridget Shaughnessy and Deptula each added one hit. Skehan, Shaughnessy, Keohane and Powers all drove in two runs apiece.

Defensively, Flynn made a diving stop at shortstop to end an inning and along with Keohane at third base played consistent defense throughout the game.

Last Thursday, the Raiders claimed their second victory over rival Quincy in less than a week, this time by a 6-4 score. Deptula allowed four runs on five hits and was relieved by Keohane with one out in the seventh with the bases loaded. Keohane recorded a strikeout and a pop-up to end the game, sealing the win.

Skehan and Shaughnessy both went two for three with two RBI apiece and Powers added a hit and an RBI. Shaughnessy, who has two hits in each of the last three games, ripped a two-run double to get North's offense in gear early.

In a 6-3 loss to Bridgewater-Raynham last Wednesday, Keohane had a three-hit shutout into the fifth inning before the Trojans erupted for six runs on six hits and won the game. Flynn, Powers, Shaughnessy and Alexis Miranda collected two hits apiece for North.

The Raiders host Barnstable Friday at 4 p.m., are at Silver Lake Monday at 4 p.m. and at New Bedford Wednesday at 4 p.m.

Victory Over Harwich The First For Quincy

After losing its first nine games of the season, the softball team at Quincy High School picked up its first victory Sunday, defeating Harwich, 24-8, in the Provincetown High School Tournament.

Quincy's Lia Machonocie earned her first win, tossing five scoreless innings and striking out six in relief of starter Angela Hogrell. Freshman catcher Colleen Nichol went three for five with four RBI and shortstop Alisha Ford and center fielder Kim Garthwait played excellent defensively.

Leading 6-4 in the second inning, Quincy allowed four runs to fall behind, 8-6,

However, the Presidents rallied back with a six-run third and coasted from there, holding Harwich scoreless the rest of the way.

"That was a nice win," said Quincy coach Bob Keuther. "Our team really needed one after a tough loss to North Quincy (6-4). I was pleased with how the girls bounced back for this game. It was good to break the ice; I'm really proud of them. They've been through a lot and it was a good confidence builder."

The following day (Monday), Quincy ran into a powerful Taunton team and suffered a 23-0 defeat.

In the 6-4 loss to North Quincy last Thursday, the Presidents were the victims of poor officiating, said Keuther.

"There were two real bad calls that killed two big rallies for us," he said. "If the calls are made correctly, maybe we come up with some hits and the outcome is different. But we made a baserunning blunder that ran us out of a potential big inning as well."

Trailing 6-4 in the seventh, Quincy's best hitter, Ford, stepped up with the bases loaded and two outs against North reliever Kristen Keohane. Ford lifted a pop-up, which North catcher Bridget Shaughnessy caught for the game's final

A Thought For The Week

TO MOTHERS...
Motherhood has many faces.
Fashioned by the Lord above,
Filling near and distant places
With His handiwork of love.
Some are black, and some are yellow,
Some are stern, and some are mellow,
Granite-hard, or soft as down.
Some are fragile, fair as laces,
Warm and gently mild as May;
Some are lined and worn with traces
Of defeat along life's way.
Some are gay with all the gladness
Of the springtime on the land;
Some are shadowed with a sadness
Only mothers understand.
But like stars above the willow,
Every mother looks the same,
Bending over baby's pillow,
Softly whispering its name....*

NQ, Quincy In Opposite Directions

The baseball teams at North Quincy High School and Quincy High School appear to be headed in opposite directions, with North winning three of four and Quincy mired in a seven-game losing skid.

North (5-8), which has scored 17 runs and allowed just three in its three recent victories, topped Plymouth South Monday by a 7-2 score. Sean Manning tossed a complete game eight-hitter and John Sullivan (two hits, four RBI) and Pat Dolbear (two hits, RBI) sparked North's offense.

The Presidents, meanwhile, fell to Taunton, 4-0, Monday and continue to have problems scoring runs. Quincy (2-11) has scored just eight runs in its last seven games (1.1 average) while allowing their opponents to score 39 runs (5.5 average) in the same span.

Last Thursday, the two teams met with North coming away with a 9-0 triumph behind the outstanding pitching of Ryan Herlihy.

The senior ace of the staff, Herlihy fired a complete game three-hitter, striking out 11 (including Quincy's side in order in the fourth) and walking none.

The Red Raiders jumped out to a 3-0 lead after one inning, taking advantage of two Quincy miscues and added two runs in the second, third and sixth innings. Chris Bregoli (double, two walks, three runs, RBI) and Brian Beaton (two hits, two runs, RBI) were among the catalysts on offense.

Quincy lost, 8-1, to Silver Lake and dropped a 5-3 decision to Barnstable last week.

The Red Raiders played Falmouth yesterday (Wednesday), host South Boston Friday at 4 p.m., Taunton Saturday at 10 a.m. and Silver Lake next Monday at 4 p.m.

The Presidents played at Weymouth yesterday (Wednesday), host Bridgewater-Raynham Friday at 4 p.m. and play at New Bedford next Monday at 4 p.m.

Council Approves 5-Year Tax Break For Shipyard financing plan, which depends on $240 million in loan guarantees that the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) has not yet approved.

The city already has contributed a $1 million federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant and assisted Emmanouil in applying for another $7.8 million in loans from the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program.

City officials have said they cannot estimate the value of the five-year tax abatement, since Quincy has not collected any taxes on the shipyard in nearly 10 years. The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA), the current owner of the shipyard, pays the city $2.9 million annually, officials said.

The goal of the tax abatement is to assist Emmanouil's company in starting up at the shipyard so that it can become profitable and produce tax revenues in years to come.

The tax break will be part of a state "Economic Opportunity Area" grant Quincy will seek from the Economic Office of Economic Development. Emmanouil, with that grant in hand, will be eligible for a larger investment tax credit (5 percent instead of 3 percent) and a 10 percent business deduction for abandoned buildings at the shipyard that will be demolished in the next few weeks.

Emmanouil said he was planning to close his purchase of the property from the MWRA yesterday (Wednesday) and the demolition is slated to begin today (Thursday). He purchased most of the shipyard property with a $10.5 million loan from Fleet Bank—the first commercial financial backing he has obtained.

Meanwhile, as city officials prepare the "Economic Opportunity Area" application, Emmanouil will continue to await MARAD's final decision on the second set of loan guarantees. MARAD already has approved $54.5 million in loans to refurbish and modernize the shipyard, and Emmanouil said the decision on the second set should come within a few weeks.

television boards. McFarland replaced Thomas Koch, his predecessor as executive secretary, in December 1994 when Koch was appointed by Sheets to replace retiring Park-Forestry-Cemetery Department Executive Director Raymond Cattaneo.

Keenan, 33, who currently works for the firm of Smith & Brink, P.C., in notice there, said he looks forward to the challenge of the executive secretary's position, which commands an annual salary of $52,000.

"I think it's going to be exciting," he said. "It's what I've always wanted to do, work in government."

Keenan ran for Ward 5 city councillor in 1987 but lost to Charles Phelan who at the time was another first-time candidate.

Keenan said he also will be stepping down as vice chairman of the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals. He has been a member of the board since 1990 and vice chairman since last year.

Keenan, who also serves on the Quincy Center Course Citizens Advisory Committee, said he is unsure whether he will continue to be a member of that group.

Sheets said he will miss McFarland.

"Obviously, this leaves a gaping hole for me," he said. "Michael's done an excellent job working with the City Council and (City Auditor) Bob Foy on budgetary and other matters and dealing with the public. His greatest strength is his budgetary and financial capabilities."

He was quick to add, however, that he has full confidence in Keenan's abilities.

"John is a people person," said Sheets. "He's expressed interest in the past about taking a position that will allow him to utilize his personal skills and his legal skills. I think he'll do an outstanding job."

Sheets added that Keenan will work with McFarland for a couple of weeks in June to ensure a smooth transition.

8 Additional, 6 Replacements

14 New Police Officers To Be Sworn In Friday

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Fourteen new police officers, including eight who will be assigned to specific community duties, are scheduled to be sworn in during ceremonies Friday at City Hall.

City Clerk Joseph Shea will administer the oath to the eight community officers and the other six patrolmen at 11 a.m. in the City Council Chambers.

The names and addresses of the 14 new officers were not available at press time because not all of them had yet completed required physical examinations. All officers must pass the tests before they are allowed to join the force.

Mayor James Sheets said the officers will go through about six months of training before they hit the streets of Quincy sometime in the fall. All 14 officers will earn the standard starting salary of $29,326, he added.

Sheets said he looks forward to having the new officers on the job.

"It gives you a good feeling to know that you'll have more officers on the streets," he said. "It certainly has an impact on the city's well-being."

The 14 officers are a luxury the city can afford, according to the mayor.

Sheets said the six new patrolmen will replace recent retirees. Because they are filling vacancies instead of newly-created positions, they will not impact the mayor's proposed $149.6 million Fiscal Year 1998 budget that the City Council will begin reviewing next week.

The eight community officers, who will be assigned to specific neighborhoods, also will not have much of an effect on the budget. Two-thirds of their salary for their first year on the job will be reimbursed through the federal COPS Program, Sheets noted.

The COPS Program will reimburse one-third of the total salary figure for the community officers during their second year, and the city will assume full financial responsibility when they begin their third year on the job. Sheets said, however, he expects the city to be able to afford that because anticipated retirements will allow the city to replace higher-paid members of the force with those making entry-level salaries, which will help offset the cost.

Sheets said the 14 new officers will bring the total number on the force to 150, the number required by law if the city is to take advantage of the COPS Program.

The mayor said he is not sure where the eight community officers will be assigned, although he has a couple of neighborhoods in

Contract Disputed

Hazardous Waste Pickup Postponed To October

The city's Household Hazardous Waste Collection scheduled for Saturday has been postponed until Oct. 18 because of concerns raised over a request for proposals (R.F.P.) and a subsequent contract connected with the event.

Department of Public Works Program Manager Michael Wheelwright, said one or more of the four companies that responded to the R.F.P. but were not selected to handle the collection raised certain issues about the selection process. He said he could not specify which company or companies voiced concerns or what those concerns were.

Wheelwright added, however, that after it became an issue, it was decided that a contract that had been prepared for Fleet Environmental Services Inc. in Lakeville, the firm chosen to handle the collection, would not be awarded.

"There was enough confusion that we just rescinded the contract," said Wheelwright, who wrote the R.F.P. He added that the R.F.P. for the fall collection will be rewritten.

The other four companies that responded to the R.F.P. were Triumvirate Environmental in South Boston, Clean Harbors in Braintree, and Laidlaw Environmental in Cambridge, all of which have handled the collection before, and Clean Ventures

Inc. in Stoughton.

Wheelwright said Fleet Environmental offered the second lowest overall bid but could not recall which firm had the lowest. Al Grazioso, the city's purchasing director, could not be reached at press time.

Wheelwright, however, added that cost is only one of nine factors—including organization, management and others—that are considered before such a contract is awarded.

The city annually holds two Household Hazardous Waste Collections—one in the spring and the other in the fall—so the October date would have been used even

Hillary Clinton Unable To Attend Abigail Adams Statue To Be Unveiled June 14

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A statue of Abigail Adams, second First Lady of the United States, will be unveiled on Flag Day, Saturday, June 14 at 6 p.m. outside United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Ed Keohane, chairman of The Quincy Partnership—the civic organization that helped make the statue a reality—said the city's annual Flag Day Parade will march past the site after the dedication.

Keohane said former First Lady Barbara Bush—whose husband, former President George Bush, was born in Milton—has been invited to attend the ceremony but has not yet responded.

"We thought Barbara Bush was a good choice because her husband was originally from the same county, Norfolk County, as (Abigail's husband and second President of the United States) John Adams," said Keohane.

First Lady Hillary Clinton, an admirer of Abigail Adams, previously had been invited but cannot attend, he added. Mrs. Clinton said in October after an appearance in Quincy that she hoped to attend the ceremony.

Board Stands By 30-Day Suspension For Pub

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board decided to stand by its 30-day suspension of the Quincy Point Pub in spite of the vote overturned by the ABCC. and the possibility of a court suit.

The vote to stand by their decision was 3-1 at Tuesday's meeting. Voting in favor was Health Commissioner Jane Galloway, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Police Chief Francis Mullen. Chairman Joseph Shea voted in opposition. Building Inspector Matt Mulvey was unable to attend the meeting.

A failed motion by Gorman to reduce the suspension to 10 days, drew opposition from Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond.

The license board has to send the results to the ABCC for reconsideration.

Atty. Louis Cassis, representing Point Pub told the board to take no action, calling the situation "not a serious offense", but just a failure to "call the police".

After an alleged disturbance involving a woman who had been drinking and dancing at the pub, the victim said she was bruised and hit inside the pub, but later accused Detective Kevin Murphy of telling her to make false statements. She claimed Murphy told her to lie about her boyfriend hitting her and to say she was accosted inside the club.

"The credibility of the victim was believed by the license board, but not the ABCC" said. Cassis. He added the "progressive discipline" action by the license board is used after an establishment has had several problems. In this case, he said, this was the first time the owners of the pub had any problem. He said a first offense calls for a seven day suspension, the second offense, a 30 day suspension and the third, revocation of the license.

Assistant City Solicitor James Timmins told the board they should reconsider the credibility of the witness.

Shea said the license board has had a "long history with the ABCC and has batted ".900 in wins".

Raymond told the board that there is "no change in the facts, nothing has altered its course". He added it was a violation of city ordinance not to call the police when the victim was allegedly assaulted on the premises.

Atty. Robert Fleming was representing Stephen Barrett who is proposing to purchase the building that houses the pub and expand to have a suitable kitchen area for an expanded menu.

Opposing the transfer of the license to Barrett, Raymond responded by saying "We don't want a barroom at this site, that's the old Quincy Point. This is a new Quincy Point—we want restaurants not bars."

Raymond revealed that St. Joseph's Church is purchasing property which abuts the pub and said "it is my intention to rid this community of this license."

Fleming said the suspension "was not an issue" as far as the transfer of the license was concerned and promised the owner would not take title until after the 30 days suspension was served.

At the request of Gorman and Mullen, Fleming promised a floor plan of the expansion at the next meeting. He also plans a community meeting even though he feels a "strong resentment" in the community.

During the meeting, an abutter said he opposed the pub because his daughter has to cross Washington St. He claimed cars were illegally parked in front of the pub.

Two residents from Faxon Commons spoke in favor of Barrett.

The meeting will be continued May 27.

Council FY98 Budget Sessions Begin May 21

The City Council Finance Committee will hold at least five sessions to review Mayor James Sheets' proposed Fiscal Year 1998 municipal budget beginning next week.

Sessions will be held Wednesday and Thursday, May 21 and 22, and Tuesday through Thursday, May 27, 28 and 29 at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall. If an additional meeting is required, it will be held Saturday, May 31.

Sheets has proposed a FY98 budget of $149.6 million, a figure 4.3 percent or $6.1 million higher than the $143.5 million FY97 budget passed by the council last year.

The council has the authority to reduce the mayor's proposed budget but cannot add to it. The budget must be passed in some form before July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The schedule is as follows:

- May 21: Fifteen budgets, including those for the inspectional services (building, wiring and others), parks, recreation, planning and other departments will be reviewed.

- May 22: Fifteen budgets, including those for the fire, library, auditor's and treasurer's departments.

- May 27: Fourteen budgets, including those for the police, public works, assessors and emergency management departments.

- May 28: Twelve budgets, including those for the City Council and mayor's and city clerk's offices.

- May 29: The budgets for the Quincy School Department and the city's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program will be reviewed.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers will hold a community meeting Thursday, May 22 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Marina Bay Cafeteria on Victory Rd.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the revised Marina Court Development plan, which has been developed in cooperation with various Marina Bay residents and neighborhood groups.

Ayers To Hold Marina Court Meeting

Marina Court Associates has developed a new plan for the vacant 20-acre parcel adjacent to Marina Point, Harbourside and Seaport. It includes single-family homes, townhouses and residential flats and is based on a traditional neighborhood design featuring a strong emphasis on the pedestrian streetscape with sidewalks and street trees.

A village green is centrally located in the site and is surrounded by townhouses and residential flats. Two residential squares are incorporated into the single family area, one of which serves as a pedestrian promenade to the Seaport property.

Flags Sought For Flag Day Parade

The Quincy Flag Day Parade Committee, in partnership with Keohane Funeral Homes, announces its seeking veteran's memorial flags to line this year's Flag Day Parade route.

Each year, the 1.5-mile parade route is lined with flags donated by the families of deceased veterans, enhancing the patriotic atmosphere of the parade. Last year more than 125 veteran's flags decorated the parade route.

The 46th annual Flag Day Parade and Celebration will be held Saturday, June 14 beginning at 7 p.m. The parade will include marching bands, color guards, specialty units, and 2,500 flag-waving youngsters. The veteran's memorial flags will be labeled and placed on telephone poles along the parade route.

The parade will begin on Coddington St. in Quincy Center before preceding north onto Hancock St. It will turn onto Southern Artery and end at Adams Field. Directly after the parade, there will be a ceremony at Adams Field followed by a fireworks display over Black's Creek.

Flags may be dropped off at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. The flags will be marked and returned after the parade's completion.

"The Veteran's Memorial Flag program allows us to dramatically add to the patriotic theme of the parade while paying tribute to those who fought to defend the flag which we are celebrating," said Ed Keohane, Parade Committee chairman and master of ceremonies.

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Remembering Ruth Abbiatti

Ruth Abbiatti was one of those rare and special people who come into your life—if you're lucky. I was lucky. I was one of her fifth grade pupils at the old Pollard School in Quincy Point.

It was a great school with great teachers. She was one of them. Among others, fondly remembered, were Mildred Litchfield, Mary DiBartholomeo, Irma Salvucci, Esther Sullivan, Helen O'Connor, Beatrice Fitts and William Morrison, the principal.

At Miss Abbiatti's funeral in St. John's Church last week, I found myself back at the Pollard with fond memories.

It wasn't unusual for those teachers to provide milk and cookies to a pupil who came to school hungry during those middle years of the Great Depression. Or to share a lunch with one.

I had to smile to myself at another memory.

I had a crush on a pretty little girl named Ena who sat directly in front of me. Fifth grade boys didn't really know how to tell a girl they liked her. Or were afraid to. So they tried to show it.

I used to pull Ena's hair—gently I think—hoping she got the message.

But the message got intercepted one day. Miss Abbiatti caught me in the act.

Next thing I knew, she had my chin firmly between her thumb and index finger delivering a message of her own: "We don't do that in this classroom. And you aren't going to do that again—are you!"

I managed a weak, "No, Miss Abbiatti. I won't do that again."

And you can bet I never did. I've always wondered, though, what Ena thought about it all. Gee, she was a pretty little thing.

Miss Abbiatti, who went on to become an outstanding principal at the Pollard and the Atherton Hough School in Houghs Neck, was a disciplinarian. You didn't horse around in her class very long. You were there to learn and she saw to it that you did.

She and the other teachers were genuinely interested in their students and were always there to help and guide them in class, out of class, after school. They were teachers who were always there for them.

And that is why anyone who was fortunate enough to go to the Pollard in those days remember the school and the teachers with lasting fondness.

There wasn't much money around back then but with dedicated teachers like Ruth Abbiatti, we were really rich little kids and didn't know it.

But as the years go by, we know it.

RETIRED QUINCY HIGH School teacher Don MacDonald, who attended the funeral Mass, notes:

"One would assume that a 90-plus-year-old woman had outlived most of her friends. The large turnout and the many words of tribute expressed made it clear to me that Ruth had influenced many generations."

The participation of retired Bishop Joseph Maguire, former pastor of St. John's, in the Mass, brought back another memory for MacDonald.

It concerns Bill Hutchinson, former teacher and hockey coach at Quincy High School and a friend of Bishop Maguire.

MacDonald once asked Hutchinson how he got to know the then Monsignor Maguire so well.

They "met," Hutchinson said, in a hockey game between Boston College and Northeastern.

Hutchinson was carrying the puck for Northeastern and Maguire checked him into the boards.

"We tangled," Hutchinson told MacDonald "and he kicked the tar out of me and we've been good friends ever since."

MacDonald reports that Hutchinson is a patient at the Brockton Veterans Hospital and thought friends and former players might like to contact him or send a card. The address: Brockton VA Hospital, Ward 4 ZC, 940 Belmont St., Brockton, MA 02401.

MIKE McFARLAND, who will be stepping down July 1 as Mayor James Sheets' executive secretary, to return to business, may be about to make his political debut.

McFarland says he is "very seriously considering" running for the open school committee seat. That's the one former Mayor Frank McCauley is vacating to run for city councillor at-large.

McFarland, who owns Barry's Deli on Beale St. in Wollaston and served as city purchasing agent before moving to the mayor's office, says he feels with that experience he would be an asset on the school committee. That and the fact he has parental experience with three children in the public schools—twins Erin and Ryan, 12, at Central and Tara, 7, at the Wollaston School.

He says he will make a final decision shortly.

McFARLAND'S decision to leave the mayor's office and return to his business caught City Hall by surprise. The speculation was that he might be leaving but for a different reason.

He was considered a strong possibility for the Quincy Housing Authority executive director's job from which John (Jake) Comer just retired.

Those interested in that post will probably now breathe a little easier with him out of that picture.

PATRICK McDERMOTT will launch his bid for a second term as Ward 3 city councillor with a re-election announcement party Thursday, May 22, 7 to 10 p.m., at the Presidents Golf Course clubhouse, West Squantum St. Tickets are $25 can be obtained by calling 471-3366. They will also be available at the door.

McDERMOTT

LOOKS LIKE THERE will be preliminary election contests for the Wards 1 and 6 city council seats.

Martin Ervin of Union St., who almost ran against Mayor Sheets for years ago, has nomination papers out in Ward 1. That makes three potential challengers for incumbent Peter Kolson.

Patricia Thorley, director of the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, has taken out papers for the Ward 6 seat. That makes two apparent challengers for incumbent Bruce Ayers.

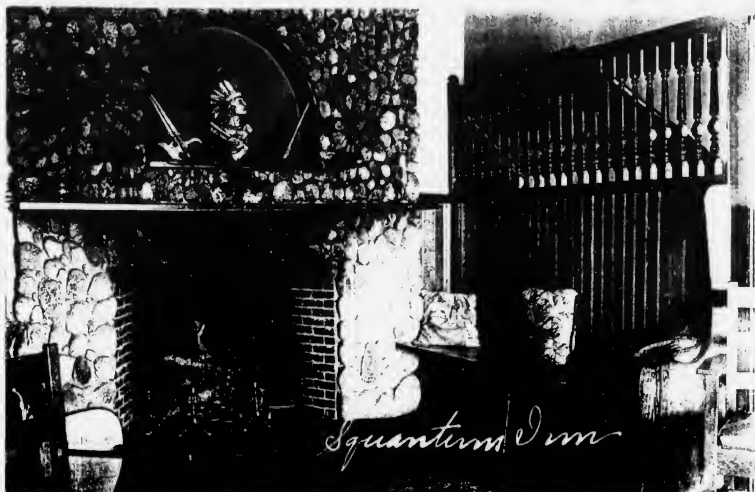

And to no one's surprise, Tim Cahill has nomination papers in circulation for re-election to his city council at-large seat.

CITY COUNCILLOR Paul Harold was recently re-elected as a director of the Charitable Irish Society. Founded in 1737 and based in Boston, it is the oldest charitable organization in the western hemisphere.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard view of the interior of the old Squantum Inn that was built in 1898 near today's Shoreham Street. The Inn's rooms and dining parlors had panoramic views of Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay. This area was probably reserved for gentlemen to enjoy a fine cigar and a glass of brandy after dinner. The Inn was torn down in 1928 and the property was divided into house lots.

Gov. Paul Dever was reported to seize the operations of the Eastern Mass. Street Company, as the strike by drivers entered its ninth week.

To avoid a take-over labor and management scheduled their 27th meeting since the strike began.

Meanwhile, pickets increased outside the Quincy garage. There were no disturbances, as new workers entered the garage to be trained to take over the jobs of striking workers.

RICE ESTATE REJECTED AS SCHOOL SITE

The Rice Estate on Adams St. was rejected as the site for the proposed Furnace Brook School when it was learned that part of the land had already been sold.

Harry Stein who represented the Adams Circle Trust notified the school committee that lots from the estate had been sold so there was not sufficient acreage for a school building.

LONG SERVICE CLUB HONORS GEEHR

The Fore River Long Service Club honored Edward Gehr at its annual meeting in the shipyard's administration building.

Gehr had presided at the launching ceremonies of more large merchant and naval ships than any man in the nation. He had worked in the shipbuilding industry for 56 years; 25 years at Fore River, most recently as assistant for General Manager Samuel Wakeman.

During his tenure, no christening had ever been a failure. He lived at 111 Greenleaf St. and was past president of the Quincy Rotary Club.

QUINCY-ISMS

Leo Lamb of the health department was general chairman for the city's baseball outing. Three thousand youngsters were scheduled to see the Braves play the St. Louis Cardinals. . . The Board of Managers of Quincy City Hospital recommended that Dr. Joseph Leone be appointed director. City Manager William Deegan said he would hold off the appointment until he checked his qualifications with other applicants. Meanwhile, three doctors, Daniel Reardon, Fred Bartlett and Edmund Fitzgerald, with a combined service of 110 years, voiced their confidence in the Board of Managers and the hospital administration. . . New officers of the Quincy Teachers Association were Elizabeth McConarty, president; Gilbert Berry, vice president; Barbara DeWolfe, secretary; and Mabel Pratt, treasurer. . . Arthur Cutting of Myrtle St., drawbridge tender at the Neponset River Bridge, collapsed and died in the bridge house. . . Secretary of the Navy of Peru and staff, Rear Admiral Rogue Saldias, visited the Squantum Naval Air Base. . . Muriel Goudey was the faculty advisor for the QHS radio club. . . Charles Sweeney, outgoing president of the Willard School PTA, was honored at a house party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Swartz on Hilltop St. It was the 11th wedding anniversary of Sweeney and his wife, Betty. . . At the 60th annual meeting of the YMCA, Carl Haywood resigned as president, after a term of 30 years. He was succeeded by former Mayor Thomas Burgin. The conference room and director's room in the proposed new building would be named for Haywood. In other business, the Y allowed women members to vote at YMCA meetings. . . Mrs. Benjamin Leopold was elected president of the Quincy Hadassah. . . Helen Neal recently married Joseph Shaheen. . . An air raid test was held recently in the city. Because sirens from the government were not yet installed, whistles at Procter and Gamble, Quincy Adams Yacht Club and Tubular Rivet and Stud were used. . . The twins of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sordillo of Newcomb St., Louis Joseph Jr., and Gloria Angela, were nine months old. . . The old Quincy Civic Association, founded in 1914, honored Mayor David MacIntosh at its reunion. . .

A 'Well Done' For NQHS After-Prom Party Participants

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Much is heard of Prom Night tragedies. Most parents have experienced the anxiety this night brings.

Recently, I attended the very successful second annual North Quincy High School After-Prom Party held at State Street South. I felt compelled to write of the cooperation of the parents, teachers, sponsors, supporters and students in making this event a success.

The entertainment provided the graduates with a wide range of activities in a safe environment. Parents were reassured by phone of their graduate's arrival and departure.

Hats off to the Class of 1997 and everyone who participated! We hope that this After-Prom Party will become a tradition.

Dog Owners Should Be Trained To Clean Up After Their Pets

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently, both City Councillors Pat McDermott and Stephen Durkin suggested that something has to be done about dog owners violating the city's pooper scooper law. Apparently, both councillors have been hearing from irate citizens complaining about the mess left behind by dog owners oblivious to doggie droppings from their pets.

One suggestion was to ban all dogs from city parks. However, I feel this would hurt responsible dog owners who clean up after their dog messes. The City of Quincy says 1,404 dogs are licensed at City Hall, and God knows how many unlicensed dogs live in the City of Presidents.

Both councillors say most dog owners act in a responsible way picking up after their dogs. But there are still many who don't and think that they must have some Constitutional right to fertilize the city's open spaces.

Perhaps the best way to get people to scoop up after their dogs is to encourage all dog owners to take their pets to dog training classes. Chances are good dogs who graduate dog training classes are less likely to have owners with bad habits like forgetting to bag it before they leave.

Twenty-five or so years ago people never even thought of scooping poop. I had a German shepherd back then and always took him across the street to the school yard where I probably was seen as the son of the living hell by the janitor who had to clean up my dog's poop.

I have an idea. Just as you learn how to drive before buying a car, how about encouraging folks to take dog training lessons with their dogs as soon as possible? I took my first dog training classes at Beechwood Community Life Center from Lisa Aprea who owns Happy Dog Training. I learned last year that it really isn't the dog that needs training as much as the dog owner.

Dog trainers give out the tools but the real dog training takes place following any classes. The real dog training comes when the dog owner acts like a responsible dog owner. You can't blame the dog for pooping but you can blame the dog owner when he or she walks away from their scooper duties.

I believe the first step in scooping doggie poop comes when the dog owner gets trained right. If you have to fine people once in a while, that's fine with me, but don't ban responsible dog owners from taking their dogs to city parks because others are lazy dog owners.

Jerry Seinfeld had a nightclub routine on pooper scooping. He wondered what aliens from outer space would think if they could observe dog owners walking their dogs carrying bags of you-know-what. Who do you think aliens would think runs the planet Earth? Yep, we're going to the dogs and it's getting sloppy out there!

Jennifer Cleary Studies In Moscow

Middlebury College junior Jennifer Cleary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brendan Cleary of North Quincy, spent last fall studying in Moscow through the college's Study Abroad Program.

Each year, approximately one-third of Middlebury's junior class receives academic credit through participation in the program. Of those students, just over 50 percent spend time at one of the college's schools in France, Italy, Germany, Spain or the former Soviet Union. Students also study abroad in non-Middlebury programs.

In order to spend all or part of their junior year abroad, students must maintain a grade of B- or better, have a facility with the language of the country, and provide a strong academic rationale for studying abroad.

EXERCISE AND BREAST CANCER

If there is a woman out there who needed one more reason to get up off the couch and into an exercise program, here it is: Exercise may reduce the chances of getting breast cancer. Researchers have discovered that exercising an average of four hours a week during child bearing years can slash a woman's risk of breast cancer by nearly 60 percent. The type of exercise doesn't seem to be important as long as it is vigorous; dance or aerobics classes, team sports, swimming, jogging or working out in a gym all seem to do the job. Scientists theorize that the reason for the protective link is that exercise has been found to alter the body's production of ovarian hormones that are associated with developing cancer.

P.S. A woman's lifetime exposure to the hormones estrogen and progesterone are believed to be linked to her risk of breast cancer.

Exercising regularly, even in small amounts, can make an enormous difference over time in your physical and mental health. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to give you accurate medical information. We are at 700 Congress St., Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS.

For Studies At Wheaton College Science Project Lands $24,000 Scholarship For NQHS Senior

By MICHAEL WHALEN
A North Quincy High School senior who plans to someday open her own optometric practice in Quincy has received something of a boost for her upcoming college career.

A boost in the form of $24,000.

Susan Haydar, 18, of 154 Colonial Drive, has won a scholarship from Wheaton College in Norton that, divided up, will provide her with $6,000 a year toward the $28,000 in expenses she will pay annually at the four-year institution.

Haydar was awarded the scholarship after her project entitled "Make Sense Out of Blood Pressure" won the top prize at the state science fair held earlier this month at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Previously, the project won competitions at North Quincy High and Bridgewater State College to qualify her for the state final.

She said she is thrilled to be the winner of the Massachusetts competition.

"I was really honored," said Haydar, who is also an alternate to the National Youth Science Camp, a two-week biology program in Virginia. "And it's not the money so much, it's more the fact why I won it. The judges could tell I put a lot of time and effort into it."

The project consisted of testing 50 people and recognizing how their five senses caused their blood pressure to increase or decrease. For instance, Haydar learned that when the average person sees the color white, smells perfume, or listens to nature sounds, his or her blood pressure tends to go down.

Blind people, however, sometimes are affected differently by such stimuli, according to Haydar's findings. Perfume, she said, will make a blind person's blood pressure go up; however, the sounds from a radio will cause a decrease.

During the testing, Haydar said she received a lot of help from her parents, Hassan and Warde, who bought various materials for the project and offered constant encouragement.

"I'd really like to thank them," she said. "They've been very supportive."

She also praised Mary Young, head of the science department at North Quincy High—where Haydar is on the distinction honor roll—as well as the other faculty members there for their assistance.

"I think it's really good that North Quincy High School has a science fair that encourages students to study things like biology,"

she said.

Haydar noted that she initially became interested in biology and optometry because of her grandmother's blindness, adding, "Basically, anything in the medical field interests me."

Eventually, Haydar, who is of Lebanese descent, hopes to study at the New England School of Optometry in Boston and do a year-long internship in Lebanon before opening her own practice in Quincy.

But first, she will spend four years at Wheaton, something she had planned to do even before winning the scholarship. She will study as a pre-optometry major and compete on the diving team at the college.

"I think Wheaton's just a great college," she said. "I hear they do a lot to help the students. They've already changed my life."

ATTORNEY AT LAW

PLACING BLAME

The notion of liability revolves around the simple fact that most accidents happen because someone was careless or negligent. To this carelessness, the law applies the basic rule that the person who is less careful than the other involved in an accident must pay damages. However, even those who might be considered careless in what they do (or how they maintain their property) may not necessarily be liable to someone injured by the carelessness. This possibility arises out of the fact that the law says there is no duty to be careful toward those who put themselves where they are not supposed to be. For instance, if a building owner were to put up a legible "DANGER" sign over a structurally weak area of the roof, he or she would not be liable for the injuries sustained by those who ignored the warning and became injured.

HINT: Nearly the only time that someone does not have a duty of care toward others is after taking active steps to warn someone away from a place where an accident could occur.

Have you been the victim of someone else's potential carelessness? Call 773-2880 for the professional advice you need in determining if the other party is liable for your damages. Remember that your legal rights are only as good as your ability to protect them. It is our concern to take legal action only in your best interests. Our office is located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Residential Housing Sales Up 9.5% In Bay State

Despite rising interest rates and a decline in the inventory of homes available for sale, Massachusetts' residential real estate market continued to improve during the first quarter of 1997, according to data recently released by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

Sales of detached single-family homes increased 9.5 percent in the first three months of the year, rising from 6,879 units sold in the first quarter one year ago to 7,532 in the same period this year, while condominium sales rose 20.1 percent, from 1,341 units in the first quarter of 1996 to 1,610 in same quarter in 1997.

Warm temperatures this winter and modest gains in home prices during the past year are the two primary factors contributing to the strong first quarter sales activity, said MAR President Richard C. Dils.

Regionally, during the first quarter, detached single-family home sales increased by more than double the statewide rate of growth on Cape Cod and the islands (+25.4 percent), in the West region (+24.4 percent) and on the South Shore (+18.6 percent). Sales gains also took place in the Central (+6.6 percent) and greater Boston (+8.7 percent) regions, but dipped slightly from the first quarter last year in both the Northeast and Southeast regions.

In the condo market, activity improved in every region of the state except the Southeast, where sales were off by four units versus the first three months of 1996. By month, sales of detached single-family homes rose 10.2 percent in January, 20.4 percent in February and 9.8 percent in March, compared to the same months in 1996, while condo sales improved 20.3 percent in January, 35 percent in February, and by 13 percent in March.

Statewide, at the end of the first quarter, the MAR report found the number of single-family homes listed for sale had declined by 7.5 percent versus the same period in 1996, falling to 38,486 units in March 1996.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

So Many Tasks To Do -- So Little Time To Do Them

(NAPS)—We all want "time on our side," but it's not always easy. In fact, it's nearly impossible to complete weekly tasks around the home and yard and still carve out a slice of leisure time.

But it doesn't have to be that way. At least not when it comes to lawn care. For a lush lawn your neighbors will envy, these shortcuts will help give you the results you want with the time savings you need:

Prepare your mower. Sharpen your lawn mower blades and service the engine before the onset of spring. With a lawn mower that's in tip-top shape, you usually mow less often, use less fuel, and mow with less effort.

Leave grass clippings on the lawn. Homeowners usually spend more time collecting grass clippings than mowing! However, clippings actually recycle and return nutrients such as nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium back into the soil. A lawn with clippings needs one-third less fertilizer per year.

Remove debris from the lawn. Be sure to rake debris such as tree leaves, sticks and dead grass from the lawn to help make the first mowing of the season quicker and easier. Debris does not add any nutrients to a lawn.

Mow less. Mow only when the grass height reaches three inches, and never remove more than one-third of the leaf surface. Slightly longer grass ensures both shade and cool temperatures for the soil—making it more difficult for weeds to grow.

Prevent weeds. Stop this season's weed woes by preventing them before they break the soil surface with Team* and Gallery* preemergence herbicides.

Both set up a "weed prevention zone" around weed seedlings. As weed seeds germinate, this zone disrupts root and stem development, so weeds die before they emerge.

Team is effective on grassy weeds such as crabgrass and goosegrass while Gallery stops broadleaf weeds such as dandelion and clover.

Both products should be put down before the germination of target weeds—usually when the soil temperature is between 52 and 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

Team and Gallery can be found in a variety of brand-name weed prevention products available at local garden and hardware stores. Look for the logos on the front or back of the bag.

Hiring Professional Painters Can Save You Time, Money

News USA
(NU)—Have you seen all of those commercials that make painting look like a quick and easy weekend project? Well, think carefully before picking up that paint brush yourself.

"In the long run, hiring a professional painting contractor can save you time and money," says Charles F. Mann IV, president of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America. "It also will help ensure the results are what you wanted."

Before you ruin a weekend or hire a neighbor's teen-ager, Mann offers some points to consider that suggest the lowest price may not be the best value:

• Safety: Painting can be hazardous work, whether it's working on a ladder or dealing with solvents and dust. Hiring a professional contractor means you won't have to worry about these problems.

• Health: If your home was built before 1978, it was almost certainly painted with lead-based paint, which can cause serious health effects when it is scraped or sanded in preparation for repainting. Professional contractors will take appropriate steps to protect you.

• Knowing Paints and How to Apply Them: The choices today are more complicated than just oil or latex, and professional contractors will know what works and how to use it, and will have the right tools for the job.

• Preparation: Getting the surface properly prepared makes all the difference. Professional contractors know the value of preparation and do it right.

• Cleanup and Disposal: Hiring a professional contractor means you won't have to worry about cleaning up paint residues and other leftovers. They will know how to handle hazardous wastes that may be part of the job.

To find a professional contractor, the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America recommends that you keep these things in mind:

• Look for membership in a trade association; PDCA members are kept informed of the latest technologies and requirements.

• Ask for a written estimate that explains what will be done and a contract that describes the extent of the work.

• Ask for a satisfaction guarantee: Professional contractors stand behind their work and don't want unhappy customers.

• Make sure the contractor carries insurance for workers' compensation and liability.

• Get references and check them: How did the job go? Were there any problems? Were the employees respectful and professional?

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

A High-Efficiency Air Conditioner Can Pay For Itself

(NU) - A new high-efficiency air conditioner can pay for itself in electricity cost savings if it replaces an older, less efficient air conditioner.

If your air conditioner is more than 10 years old, it probably has a Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio (SEER) of 8.0 or less. A high-efficiency model, such as the Arcoaire AJ, can be configured to provide a SEER of 12-plus or 13-plus. That's like switching from a car that gets 20 miles per gallon to one that gets 45 or 50 mpg.

Here are some energy-saving tips from Colin Perkins, product marketing manager for Inter-City Products, manufacturer of Arcoaire air conditioners, furnaces and heat pumps.

- Have your air conditioning system checked and serviced by a qualified service technician every spring. Heat pumps should be serviced in the spring and again in the fall.

- Trim the shrubbery and plants around your air conditioner to allow air to flow freely around, into and out of the air conditioner or heat pump.

- Turn off the bathroom vent fan. When it pulls cooled air out of the house, it also draws warm air inside.

- If you use disposable air filters, change them at least once a month. If you use electrostatic filters or an electronic air cleaner, follow the manufacturer's instructions carefully. Clogged filters rob your air conditioner or heat pump of its efficiency and can shorten its life.

- Clean the return air grille with a vacuum cleaner every time you change or clean the air filter.

For more information about high-efficiency air conditioners, visit the Arcoaire heating and cooling products Web site, www.arcoaire.com/arcoaire.

Rug Care Needn't Be Rugged

(NAPS) - Here are a few facts that may floor you:

- The earliest known carpet was one archeologists discovered in Siberia and dated to the fourth century BC.

- The largest carpet was a red one of over 52,000 feet spread along the Avenue of the Americas in New York in 1982.

- It may be a lot easier to keep your carpet, whatever its size and age, looking good if you heed these hints.

1. Regular maintenance is of primary importance. Run a carpet sweeper over heavy traffic areas daily. Vacuum rugs thoroughly once a week. Go over each area at least seven times to keep grit from becoming embedded. Have the carpet professionally shampooed annually.

2. Try to attack spots and stains immediately. Blot up liquids, scrape up solids and treat with spray-on carpet cleaner.

3. If the stain has had time to set, don't fret. That's not the carpet catastrophe it once was. Researchers have come up with new SHOUT® Carpet Science® with SHOUT Stain Lifters that clean deep below the surface and can get out even old, tough stains. Its trigger formula has a new superior base that loosens and lifts stains.

4. If it's candle wax that's dripped on your rug, place a brown paper bag over the spot and run a hot iron over it.

When you get down to it, your carpets can be kept looking bright and beautiful for a lot less trouble than you may have realized.

5. To repair a burn in the rug, shave or tweeze some fuzz from an inconspicuous place and glue it to the spot. Cover with a piece of facial tissue and a heavy book.

6. To raise the nap of carpeting after heavy furniture has crushed it, place one or two ice cubes on the area. The next day the cube will have melted and the nap will have risen.

Keep these suggestions in mind and you can have a carpet of which you can be proud for a good long time, even if it's not the most expensive ever made. That one, by the way, was the Spring Carpet of Khuraw, made for a Persian palace. It was about 7,000 feet of silk and gold thread encrusted with emeralds. Before it was destroyed in 635 it's believed to have been valued at some $170 million.

Fifth To Be Ordained At Later Date Four With Quincy Ties Become Priests Saturday

Four men affiliated with Catholic churches in Quincy will be ordained priests in the Archdiocese of Boston by Cardinal Bernard Law Saturday at 9 a.m. at Holy Cross Cathedral in Boston.

The four comprise one-third of the 12 men being ordained.

They are: David J. Barnes, 26, son of Francis and Joan Barnes; Brian M. Clary, 26, son of James Sr. and Anne Deacon Clary; Robert Kickham, 40, son of the late John and Dorothy Kickham; and James P. Seymour, 32, son of James and Joann Seymour.

Barnes and Seymour grew up attending Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy and Kickham also has been a parishioner there. Clary grew up as a member of St. Mary's Church in West Quincy.

They will celebrate their first Masses as follows: Kickham, St. Aidan's Church in Brookline, Sunday at 11 a.m.; Barnes, Sacred Heart, Sunday at noon; Seymour, Sacred Heart, Sunday at 2:30 p.m.; and Clary, St. Mary's, Monday, May 19 at 7 p.m.

A fifth man, Richard Wilson of Sacred Heart Church, is scheduled to be ordained a priest in the Diocese of Fall River later this year.

Before ordination, the men serve internships in a parish or institutional setting where they teach religious education, visit shut-ins and hospital patients, and minister to anyone in the parish in need.

After three years of alternating between courses and interning, the men spend their final year as seminarians at another parish, working during the summer and on weekends.

In January, they were ordained deacons, which allows them to baptize, perform marriages, preach the homily and preside over graveside services. As priests, they can do all that as well as celebrate Mass, consecrate the Eucharist, hear confessions and anoint the sick.

Hospital Offers Birthing Classes

Quincy Hospital is offering first time and refresher childbirth classes in May, June and July at the hospital.

The first time childbirth class is offered as a four week series or as a weekend course. The four-week class is held Tuesday evenings, from 7 to 10 p.m., May 6 through June 3, and again July 1 through July 22. Weekend classes run from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, June 28 and 29.

The first time childbirth class covers labor and delivery, breathing relaxation, post partum and baby care. The refresher course reviews several sections of the first time class for women who are having another child.

The cost of the first time series is $100, and the refresher course $50. Advance registration is required, and space is limited. For information on additional classes or to register, call the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at (617) 376-4018.

Correction

The name of Dawn McCauley was incorrectly listed as Jennifer McCauley in last week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

Dawn, 8, is the granddaughter of former Mayor and current School Committeeman Francis McCauley. At her suggestion, the City Council last week passed a resolution designating the daffodil as Quincy's official city flower in honor of Abigail Adams.

The daffodil was Mrs. Adams' favorite flower. Jennifer is the name of Francis McCauley's daughter.

The Sun regrets the error.

Accent On Quincy Center

By BRUCE ARONS
Quincy Center Development Coordinator

I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream! Ever since the Baskin Robbins closed on Hancock Street last year, I have been getting many letters asking when an ice cream shop would be reopening.

Sweet Jeanne's on 68 Washington St. is getting ready to offer ice cream to their customers very shortly. This will help fill the ice cream void downtown, and if the ice cream is as good as their sandwiches, everyone is in for a real treat!

Mike Rie, Quincy 2000's economic development coordinator, is very pleased with the response he has received to the second round of applications for the Quincy 2000 Commercial Property Improvement Grant Program. Due to the success of the first round of projects, the interest in and demand for this program has increased beyond expectations.

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association is busy planning this year's Sidewalk Sale for Quincy Center. This event takes many hours of advance planning and hard work to assure its success. Everyone looks forward to the great bargains and fun-filled activities scheduled for this July in the downtown.

City Councillor Patrick McDermott has invited the Quincy 2000 Corp. to hold two meetings during the month of June for residents of Quincy. The purpose of the meetings is to explain Quincy 2000's programs and how the implementation of their Quincy Center Action Plan ultimately benefits all of the residents of Quincy. As soon as the dates and locations for these meetings are determined, they will be announced via the news media.

Look for some great new restaurants opening up this summer in Quincy Center. (Kevin's at the Heritage, Mando's and Puccini's.) These businesses will be attracting both new and existing customers to the downtown. Each will be offering a new and additional choice for consumers coming to Quincy Center. This is healthy for every business downtown and increases the employment opportunity for local residents.

'Til next time-be sure to check out what's "happening" in downtown Quincy Center, and feel free to write me with your comments and suggestions. (Mailing address: The Quincy 2000 Corp., 1250 Hancock St., Suite 802N, Quincy, MA 02169.)

In the volleyball game between the Celebrities and the Seniors, Mayor James Sheets' Celebrity team look to snap the Seniors' two-year winning streak. The months of rigorous training with coach Mike McFarland paid off as his stern coaching, the Mayor's wicked serve and the Celebrities' height advantage (and countless "timeouts" for "strategizing") secured a Celebrity triumph.

Peggy McLeod, the official who has the unenviable task of officiating our volleyball competition each year, was enthusiastically acknowledged by Mayor Sheets, the Celebrity captain, and Don Strong, the Senior captain. Mayor Sheets presented McLeod with a Quincy afghan and Strong presented her with a spring bouquet.

Quincy Reaches Tourney; NQ Knocking On Door

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The boys volleyball team at Quincy High School clinched a spot in the MIAA state tournament last Friday, while the North Quincy High School squad had not yet qualified, despite its 9-5 record through Monday's action.

To qualify for the state tournament, a team must finish with a .500 record or better. The Presidents (9-4) won their ninth match with only five matches left to play, meaning they can finish no worse than .500.

North, on the other hand, still had six matches left in the regular season and could finish 9-11 if it loses all six. Granted, that is an unlikely scenario, but one that still could occur. A win over visiting Medfield Tuesday would have been the Red Raiders' 10th of the season and would have qualified them for the state tournament.

Both squads have been on a roll of late, winning their last three matches, and four of their last five through Monday.

The Presidents qualified for the tournament with a 2-1 win over Weymouth. Don McCarthy sparked Quincy with 11 kills, two aces and 13 digs, while Ed Smith added six kills, one ace and nine digs. Quincy won the match, 15-12, 9-15, 15-3.

"I'm happy we qualified, but I've been preaching consistency to them the entire season," said Tom Henderson, Quincy coach. "We need to be more consistent if we're going to succeed in the tournament. Now, we want to get as many wins as we can, in hopes that we can get a home match in the tournament."

Last Thursday, Quincy topped host Dighton-Rehoboth, 2-0, paced by Jared Downey (17 assists, two digs). The Presidents won the match, 15-10, 15-13.

Quincy also knocked off Xaverian by a 2-1 score last Wednesday. Smith led the host Presidents with strong defensive play (20 digs) in the 15-12, 13-15, 15-10 triumph. Geoff King had 10 kills and six blocks. Downey had 20 assists and five digs and Domenic Catrambone contributed eight kills, three digs and four blocks.

The Presidents took on visiting Greater New Bedford Vocational Tuesday. Yesterday (Wednesday), Quincy played at New Bedford. Quincy hosts Duffee Friday at 4 p.m. and Dighton-Rehoboth next Tuesday (May 20) at 4 p.m.

Meanwhile, the Red Raiders picked up their third straight win Monday, topping Milford, 2-0. Matt Bromley (nine kills, six blocks) and James Cheung (15 service points) led the way in a 15-5, 15-9 triumph.

Last Friday, the Red Raiders handed Wareham a 2-0 defeat, paced by the consistent efforts of Rob McCauley (five kills, six blocks), John Li (eight service points) and James Cheung (five kills, three blocks). North won the match handily, 15-3, 15-5.

"All the guys have been playing well and stepping it up lately," said North coach John Perkins. "We're getting contributions from a bunch of different players, not just one or two guys."

North also topped Brockton, 2-1, last Thursday behind the balanced play of Jimmy Wong (14 kills), Bromley (13 kills) and Eddie Tan (11 service points). NQ won the opener, 15-9, dropped the second game, 11-15, then took control again and clinched the win by taking the third game, 15-8.

Last Tuesday, North hung tough against a strong Greater New Bedford Vocational squad in a match for first place in the South Alliance. North won the opener, 15-11, dropped the second, 4-15, then battled in the third before falling, 11-15. Leading NQ's offense were Bromley (14 kills, 11 blocks) and Nick Shea (eight kills, 10 blocks).

Yesterday (Wednesday), North hosted Weymouth. North is at Dighton-Rehoboth Friday at 4 p.m., at Brockton next Tuesday (May 20) at 3:30 p.m. and at Cambridge Ringe & Latin next Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

Deptula Sparks Raiders; QHS Loses Fifth Straight

A tough, one-run loss to Silver Lake Monday snapped a four-game winning streak for the North Quincy High School softball team, while the Quincy High School squad lost its fifth straight game the same afternoon.

The Red Raiders (6-7 overall, 6-5 Old Colony League through Monday) held a 6-3 lead before the Lakers tied it with a three-run third inning. North then fell behind, 7-6, before catcher Bridget Shaughnessy ripped a double to left with two outs in the fifth to tie the game again.

The Lakers won the game in the bottom of the seventh, using a walk, a sacrifice bunt, a passed ball and an infield single to score the game-winner on a close play at home.

Pacing North offensively were Laurie Flynn (three hits), Kristen Bowes (two hits) and Rachael Powers, Kerry Skehan and Kristy Deptula (one hit apiece). Deptula fired her third straight five-hitter, along with eight strikeouts and eight walks.

Last Friday, North trailed Barnstable, 5-1, then erupted for six runs on six hits in the bottom of the fourth en route to an 11-7 triumph. Deptula tossed a five-hitter with six strikeouts, including the side in the seventh to preserve the win. NQ pounded out 15 hits, paced by Flynn, Bowes and Skehan (two hits, two RBI apiece).

In North's 16-9 victory over host Falmouth last Wednesday, Deptula was the all-around star for the Red Raiders. Not only did she fire a five-hitter, but she also went five for six, including a tremendous 300-foot home run, and drove in five runs.

"That was an incredible shot," said NQ coach Bob Doyle about Deptula's blast. "Kristy was the big star of the game, on the mound and at the plate. It was a big win for the girls, because they had never beaten Falmouth before. They were really upbeat and played a great all-around game."

Flynn, Bowes, Powers and Shaughnessy (three hits apiece) and Skehan (two hits) continued their consistent hitting as North rapped out 21 hits.

North was at Taunton Tuesday, at New Bedford yesterday (Wednesday), hosts Weymouth today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. and Taunton Friday at 4 p.m. Monday at 4 p.m., North is at Weymouth; next Tuesday at 3:30 p.m., North is at

Raiders Lose Nail-Biter; QHS In A 'Team Slump'

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The baseball team at North Quincy High School saw its three-game winning streak fall by the wayside Monday, while the Quincy High School squad is still seeking its first win in a month.

The Red Raiders lost to visiting Silver Lake, 1-0, despite the strong pitching performance of freshman Rob Celata, who went the distance, gave up only five hits and struck out five.

"We had our chances and should have won it," said North coach Dave Perdios. "Three times we had the bases loaded and did not get a run across. We tried everything, but nothing worked. We definitely outplayed them, but they won the ballgame."

The Lakers scored the game-winner when Joe Lanes, the winning pitcher, came home on a fielder's choice by Tom Troup. Offensively for NQ, Pat Dolbear collected three of the team's seven hits.

Saturday's game against Taunton and Friday's matchup against South Boston were both postponed due to inclement weather. The Taunton game will be made up May 28 and the South Boston contest has been re-scheduled for May 29.

North pulled out an exciting, come-from-behind 4-3 victory over visiting Falmouth last Wednesday. Adam Delorey's RBI single

TRIPLE A

CNA, Spillane, Thrifty Victorious; Quincy P.A.L. Unbeaten At 4-0

Jonathan O'Connor went the distance for his first victory, striking out eight and walking just three to lead CNA Insurance over Yellow Cab, 13-8, in recent Quincy Youth Baseball Triple A action.

CNA's Brian Lee had three hits, including two doubles, two RBI, scored three times and combined with Mike Tormey and Mike Merlis on a 7-6-5 putout when a Yellow Cab batter tried to stretch a double into a triple. James Losi had three hits, two RBI and scored twice and Lee also scored two runs. Tyler Lagrotteria and Kellan Losi made key defensive plays to support O'Connor's pitching.

Steve Dunn started for Yellow Cab, but despite throwing well he was relieved in the third by Gary Dalton, who shut down CNA the rest of the way. By that time, CNA had built a comfortable lead, only to see much of it disappear in the bottom of the fourth, when Yellow Cab scored five runs. Yellow Cab added three more in the sixth but couldn't get any closer. Dunn had two hits and three RBI and Dave Tipton and Sean Murray each scored twice. Paul Orum and Tipton backboned the defense.

In other action, Mike Tormey tossed five strong innings, striking out six and walking only three to pace

CNA over Thrifty Car Rental, 12-8, in other recent action. Rob Richards pitched the sixth and got the save.

Offensively, CNA rode five-run and four-run innings to take control. Merlis homered and scored three runs. O'Connor, Tormey and Richards each scored twice. O'Connor, Lee (who also tripled) and Losi led an alert defense.

Ryan Fandetti was Thrifty's starting pitcher and persevered into the fourth before tiring. Michael Donnelly and David Andronico each scored twice for Thrifty, while Vincenzo Prisco and Fandetti contributed extra-base hits. Andronico and Michael Little played solid defense.

Spillane & Epstein, which remained undefeated and atop the American League standings, collected 24 hits in a 13-3 win over Hurley Insurance.

Kosta Kalpakidis tossed a no-hitter, striking out 13, to earn the victory for Spillane. Joey Scribi led the hit parade with five hits. Darryl Zoria had four hits. Tim Smith added three hits and Jonathan Mendez and Jarrod Abbott each collected two hits. Jeff Tam, Tommy Cabral, Kevin Shinnick, Brian Masters and Chris Mercurio all played excellent defense.

Thrifty Car Rental's

Bobby McEvoy gave up three hits in five innings to pick up the win in a 17-5 triumph over Flavin & Flavin. Michael Donnelly came on in relief to close out the game in the sixth. Thrifty broke open a 3-1 game with an eight-run fourth inning.

Thrifty's David Andronico threw out a baserunner and had an unassisted putout. Ryan Fandetti scored three runs. Joe Maloney, Vincenzo Prisco, Dan Duval, Sean Maffeo, Michael Little, Raymond Cheng and Andronico each scored two runs. Peter Karapatsas and James Carita played flawlessly in the field.

Flavin & Flavin's Harvey Chan scored three runs. Stephen Malloy and Scott Rosenberger each scored a run and Rosenberger had one putout.

Quincy P.A.L. has started the season 4-0 with wins over Flavin & Flavin, Hurley Insurance, I.H.O.P. and Kenny's Lock. Outstanding efforts from Brian Pettit, Peter Monaco and Richard and James Zapata have paced P.A.L. to its strong start. Other major contributors have been Michael Lally, Nicole Murray, Anthony Navarez and Alex Hardy. Enthusiastic play by Matt Francis, Dom Poli and Joe Sweeney has also led to P.A.L.'s early success.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Buick Improves To 5-0; Keohane's And Jaehnig Club Earn Two Wins

South Shore Buick improved its record to a league-leading 5-0 with a 7-3 victory over Beacon Sports in recent Quincy Youth Baseball Junior League action.

Jason Fidalgo went two for three and rookie John Folino kept up his hot hitting with two hits in three at-bats to pace Buick's offense. Assistant coach Fidalgo cited the defensive play of Matt MacNeil and Ryan McHugh as a major reason Buick claimed its fifth win to start the season.

Earlier, S.S. Buick blanked Burgin Platter, 7-0, behind the solid pitching of Brian O'Hanley, who went the distance with 12 strikeouts. O'Hanley helped his own cause with two hits in three at-bats. Other offensive stars were Folino (three for three, three RBI) and Jonathan Carroll (two for three). Michael O'Malia played well defensively.

In other action, Keohane's used two five-run innings to overpower Rotary by a 15-3 score. Keohane's, the 1996 National League champions, notched its third straight win.

Chris Dolbeare, who struck out 11 and picked up the win, helped himself at the plate with four hits, including a home run and a double. Other offensive standouts for Keohane's were T.J. Kelly (three hits) and Brendan McDonald, Ryan Donahue, Kevin O'Connell, Dominic Delgado and Adam Terlage (two hits apiece). One of O'Connell's hits was a double. Donahue had a solid game behind the plate.

For Rotary, Steve Pizzi had a multiple-hit game and George Phipps added a home run. Craig Keenan made a nice catch with the bases loaded.

Keohane's broke open a 5-5 game with a seven-run sixth inning in a 12-5 triumph over Burke Club. Chris Dolbeare was the hitting star for Keohane's, collecting a home run, double and six RBI. Dillon Saye picked up the win and Brendan McDonald came on to pitch two perfect innings with three strikeouts.

Bill Cosgrove, the losing pitcher, shined offensively with a single and a double for Burke, which managed just three hits in the game.

The Jaehnig Chiropractic Club evened its record at 2-2 with two exciting victories. In a wild and woolly affair, the Jaehnig Club scored six last-inning runs to upend Kiwanis by a score of 12-11. Kyle Carmody (three-run homer) and 10-year-old Chris Marinilli blasted back-to-back homers to spark the comeback. David Buttomer smacked three hits, including a homer and a triple, while Pat O'Brien and Jeff Butts each had a double and two singles.

Jaehnig's Mike McLaughlin and Steve Kelley each hit key singles to help the late rally. Brian Donovan played well defensively. Ten-year-old David Jaehnig picked up his first win with three excellent innings of relief which included four strikeouts. Mark Tobin recorded the game's final out with a heads-up play at second base which prevented the tying run from scoring. John Mateu pitched well for Kiwanis, Chris Sheehan caught a strong game and Erik Ranstrom smashed a three-run double.

The Jaehnig Club defeated Burke Club, 12-2, in a matchup of last season's championship game. Jeff Butts pitched a strong game, striking out six in five innings for his first victory. He helped his own cause by scoring four runs. Pat O'Brien cracked two doubles and a single. Mark Tobin hit a three-run triple and Derek Keezer slapped a double while hitting the ball hard three times.

Jaehnig's John Fitzgerald placed a beautiful squeeze bunt for his first career Little League hit. Kyle Carmody doubled and pitched the last inning in fine style. Chris Marinilli had a single as he continued to hit the ball well. Ten-year-old Ben Kelleher made a running catch in left field which saved two runs when the game was still close. Patrick Maxey played a solid game at first while shortstop David Jaehnig handled five chances flawlessly.

Sean Moriarty was the big hitter for Burke with a double and a triple. Brian Rooney lined a long double and Steve O'Brien hit a sharp single. Dan Cosgrove deserved better as he pitched in tough luck.

The standings after two weeks are as follows: Buick (5-0); Keohane's (3-2); Elks (2-1); Jaehnig Chiropractic (2-2); Burgin Platter Hurley (2-2); Police (2-2); Burke (2-3); Beacon (1-2); Kiwanis (1-2); Lions (1-2); Colonial Federal (1-2); Rotary (1-4).

WARNING TO THE TASK?

Conventional wisdom used to be that an engine should be allowed to warm up for several minutes before drivers pulled out of the driveway in the morning. A long, idling warm-up, however, is no longer recommended for today's engines, which (along with the entire drivetrain) warm up more quickly when driven soon after starting.

Moreover, because the combustion process is less efficient when the engine is cold, allowing the car to warm up slowly introduces more unburned fuel into the motor oil than is necessary. Thus, the recommendation is to allow a cold engine to idle only until the oil pressure comes into its normal range (a few seconds) before driving away at moderate speed until the engine reaches its normal operating temperature.

A Thought For The Week

We all know that we should live each day as it comes... Sometimes this is a hard thing to do. We seem to be burdened with yesterday's troubles and tomorrow's anticipation and fears...

With this thought in mind, we would like to share with you some wise and profound thoughts of some great men of time gone past...

Benjamin Franklin urged: "Never leave that till tomorrow which you can do today." And Ralph Waldo Emerson made the point: "One of the illusions in life is that the present hour is not the critical, decisive hour. Write it on your heart that everyday is the best day of the year. He only is right who owns the day, and no one owns the day who allows it to be invaded by worry, fret and anxiety. Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could." ... And John Newton once said: "We can easily manage, if we will only take, each day, the burden appointed for it. But the load will be too heavy for us if we carry yesterday's burden over again today, and then add the burden of the morrow to the weight before we are required to bear it."

Yes, yesterday's gone and there is no real hiding place from today. Now is the day, the hour! There is little we can do about yesterday and tomorrow is uncertain, but today is vital and is all we can really "deal with." ... Today is the day! Own today! Get on with those unfinished tasks. DO IT TODAY!

if Saturday's collection had not been postponed.

Asked why another spring date could not be used, Wheelwright said it will take two-and-a-half to three months to go through the entire R.F.P. process and meet local and state requirements.

All five companies that responded to the R.F.P. were informed which firm was selected in March, Wheelwright said, and the decision to postpone the event was made by Mayor James Sheets upon the recommendation of City Solicitor Stephen McGrath this week after concerns were raised.

McGrath, like Wheelwright, said he could not offer specifics on the concerns raised.

As recently as Monday morning, Fleet Environmental officials were discussing the event on WDA Radio and there were billboards in the city advertising the collection.

Wheelwright, who said the city has never before had such a problem with the selection process for the event, which is now in its fifth year, said the whole situation is something of an embarrassment.

"Nobody likes to postpone a program when it's so well-advertised and so popular," he said.

Want To Raze House To Expand Auto Repair Shop

The Quincy License Board told Peter Bourikas, owner of Perfection Auto Repair, Inc. on 105-109 Water St. to go to the Zoning Board of Appeal before they would vote in favor of an expansion.

license is issued they forget them".

DeCristafaro said he has witnessed fire trucks unable to travel on the heavily travelled street, and cars parked on the sidewalk.

Peter and George Bourikas are proposing to raze a two family home on Water St. and showed the board extensive plans of a new building, plus the construction for an additional three bays.

They are also requesting a permit to store 200 gallons of gasoline in motor vehicles being repaired on site (approximately 20 cars). Also the painting and storage of fuel and flammable liquids at an existing common garage.

Two abutters, Christine Graham, who lives on Water Street, and Frank DeCristafaro who owns property there opposed any kind of expansion. They complained of added traffic, and lack of space. Graham said there are trucks being parked at Aiello's across the street and said "no one lives there". She said business owners "make many promises, but once the Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond agreed with the abutters and said between the "traffic, odors and fumes, the residents are desperately trying to attain their residences".

Chairman Joseph Shea said he had a "negative feeling about the expansion" and spoke about the traffic situation in the area with Sunshine Fruit, Aiello's, the 7-Eleven. Police Chief Francis Mullen reiterated the traffic problem on Water Street.

Bourikas explained that his expansion will lessen the traffic situation because the cars will have a place to go instead of on the sidewalk. He said they plan to landscape the abutters property and build a large fence to soften the noise.

Bourikas plans to appear at the Zoning board of Appeals and then report back to the license board.

The previous day, Barn-led in the game, 5-4, in the Barnstable's offensive

In an 11-4 loss to Wey-

With the bases loaded, game of the season and eighth in a row Monday to New Bedford. Last Friday's game against Bridgewater-Raynham was rained out.

Quincy lost to Weymouth,
11-3, last Wednesday.

Coach Bob Sylvia cites the Presidents' consistent lack of hitting as the major reason for his team's lack of success.

"That's been the one constant all season long--no hitting," he said. "With the exception of senior Mike Russo, who's hitting around .300, our team batting average is below .200, and you're just not going to win doing that. We're in a team slump."

"Our pitching and defense have been good, but without consistency from our hitters, we won't turn this thing around. Mark Kelly and Dennis Palardy have pitched well and we should be able to compete with them on the hill--if we were hitting better.

"We do have a lot of new faces in the lineup, kids without much varsity experience who need to work on their games over the summer. They have to be willing to put the work in, because that's the only way they'll improve. If you want something bad enough, you have to work at it."

to 5-4.

At Adams Field, North beat Quincy, 6-3, behind the seven-strikeout performance of Jody Bravo. Bravo gave up two runs on five hits while Mike Reidy earned the save.

North jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first, parlaying five hits into four runs. Joey Flynn led off with a double and was singled home by Chris Walsh. After Jim

Mateu reached on an error, Shawn Boostrom singled in a run. Bravo drove in a run with a triple and Ryan Murray singled in a run.

from Jim Fitzpatrick and

Sweeney Funeral Services Wins; Sweeney Bros., Reggie's Oil, Bocce Club, Pirates Also Triumphant lieri and David Regan each singled twice and Totten added a single and a triple.

Bordeur Construction Co. scored five in the first and added seven more in the third to defeat Sweeney Funeral Services, 13-0. Wright had SFS's only hit, a single in the second. Powers was the losing pitcher for SFS.

The South Quincy Bocce Club Red Sox win its third game of the season, beating the Bolea-Buonfiglio Giants by a 13-5 count. Jonathan Coska's three-run homer paced the Red Sox (3-1) offense. Tom Callahan added a two-run triple and James Hutchins scored two runs for the winners. Tom Callahan tossed three solid innings and struck out six to pick up the win. Dan Cosgrove struck out six in two innings of relief. Alex Santiago and John Paul White made some solid catches in the field.

In an 11-1 victory over the Dairy Freeze Yankees, the S.Q.B.C. Red Sox jumped out to a 4-1 lead en route to the win. The Red Sox were paced offensively by Matt Frangipane (single, double, triple, five RBI). Matt Callahan, Bill Cosgrove, Tom Callahan and John Paul White all chipped in with key hits. Tom Callahan (winning pitcher) and Matt Frangipane each pitched three strong innings and each struck out six batters.

The Bordeur Construction Co. Pirates, which has been plagued by growing pains and inexperience in the past, has finally come of age. Through practice, concentration on fundamentals and contributions from a number of players, the Pirates have matured into a formidable and highly competitive team.

Powered by a grand slam by Craig Calley in the opener, the Pirates have been on a roll from the start, winning four straight to begin the season. Of the four wins, pitcher Drew Loud has compiled a record of 3-0 with one save and also has two home runs. Matt Quigley has also performed on the mound (one save) and at the plate (one home run). Calley has one win and one save to his credit.

Also contributing to the Pirates' early-season success is Chris Okoury, who has excelled defensively and in his signal-calling behind the plate. Veteran Steve Maltman scorched a line drive triple to aid the Pirates in their fourth victory. Craig Perry and Anthony Adams are coming around offensively and defensively. Brothers Dave and Ted Finnegan have returned and are playing solid baseball, adding depth and experience to the Pirate squad.

Sam Calley heads up the list of seven rookie players contributing to the Pirates' success. Rookie Dave Djerf has lightning speed and had one round-tripper in his debut. In his first year, Dan Quigley, brother of Pirate slugger Matt Quigley, hopes to follow in his brother's footsteps. Rookie Jeff Wallgreen has a keen eye and has compiled a high on-base percentage. Dave Hennessy, Tom Pasquantonio and Tom Hazelhurst round out the seven rookies. They are all maturing into solid ball-players as well as young men, which is what the program attempts to promote.

band, including Brewers Corner in West Quincy--where Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico has requested a community police presence--as well as Washington Street in Quincy Point. Crime rates and other neighborhood statistics must be reviewed before a final decision is made, he said.

Sheets added that he plans to discuss the matter with Police Chief Francis Mullen as well as the chief's successor. Mullen plans to retire when he turns 65 this summer.

Community policing is a concept that harkens back to the concept of the "cop on the beat" who in past years would be assigned to a specific area, get to know personally the neighborhood residents and business owners, and help them with their problems.

Currently, there are two community officers in Germantown, and city officials have said their presence there has been very successful.

Sheets said if more community officers are added to that area--something that he noted could happen--he would like to possibly add some kind of satellite police presence there.

"I think if we expand in Germantown, we'll need more of a satellite presence in that neighborhood," he said. "How that would happen has yet to be defined."

Abigail Adams Statue To Be Unveiled June 14

young boy, stands about 6 feet high and weighs approximately 500 pounds, according to Keohane. It was created by acclaimed sculptor Lloyd Lillie of Newton, whose works include statues of former Boston Mayor James Curley and Boston Celtics executive Arnold "Red" Auerbach, among others.

The statue cost about $70,000 and was paid for entirely through private donations, Keohane said. Most of the donations from Quincy residents, former residents, and local businesses ranged anywhere between $1 and $1,000, although the largest, which came from Colonial Federal Savings Bank, totaled $2,500, he noted.

Funds were raised over a three-year period and it took Lillie about 18 months to work on the statue, he added.

The Quincy Park Department is preparing the site where the statue will be located, and the National Park Service has volunteered to maintain the statue, according to Keohane.

The Quincy Partnership was formed seven years ago by representatives of Quincy's business, political and historical communities. Among the other projects it has made possible are "Welcome to Quincy" signs at various sites in the city, new lighting for historic buildings, and the return of the city's Flag Day Parade, the largest parade for that occasion in the country.

Violators Will Face $100 Penalty City Doubles Handicapped Parking Fine

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city has raised its handicapped parking fine from $50 to $100 in an attempt to crack down on violators and generate revenue for projects that will make the city more accessible to people with various disabilities.

The City Council voted 8-0 to approve the increase, proposed two weeks ago by Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, Monday night. Councillor Michael Cheney, who is recovering from surgery, was absent from the meeting.

As a result of the amendment, half of each $100 fine charged to those who illegally use designated handicapped parking spaces will be used for improvements at various city buildings as well as educational tools and anything else that, in Ayers' words, would "make the city more friendly for those who are challenged."

Improvements made will not only aid those in wheelchairs but also those who are affected by blindness, deafness and other disabilities, according to Ayers.

Cahill Credit Card Plan Would Raise Funds For Library

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City Councillor Timothy Cahill has proposed that the city participate in a program that would help raise funds for a planned addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

The council Monday night unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Cahill that calls for the city to participate in an endeavor devised by the commercial banking industry called an Affinity Card Program. Through the effort, a municipality can form a partnership with a chosen bank and derive passive income by sponsoring a credit card program administered by that institution.

The resolution encourages Mayor James Sheets to prepare and publish a request for proposals (R.F.P.) for an Affinity Card Program in Quincy.

After a bank is selected through the R.F.P. process, a percentage of the income generated through the use of credit cards held by program participants would benefit the library addition for the first two years of the program's existence. Subsequently, it would go toward

"such worthy program or project as the mayor may deem appropriate, subject to City Council approval."

"It's worked with relative success in some towns," said Cahill, who noted that the city, by law, is allowed to solicit and entertain proposals for an Affinity Card Program at no cost. "I think

New Graffiti Law Aimed At Building Owners

The City Council passed an ordinance Monday night that will slap a $200 fine on owners of private buildings who do not have graffiti removed from their property within 30 days.

Under the law, the city will notify the property owners to either remove the graffiti themselves or have the city do it, free of charge, within a month's time. Property owners who take no action within 30 days will receive the fine.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said the city should have a recently-purchased graffiti removal machine in hand within two weeks. The $60,000 machine, which is non-toxic, sandblasts a surface with baking soda.

Council President Peter Kolson, who has lobbied for such an ordinance, said he is glad the graffiti problem is being addressed and that he looks forward to the machine's arrival.

Council Gets Tough On Nuisance Dogs

The City Council, in an attempt to crack down on irresponsible dog owners, has raised fines for various types of dog behavior as well as boarding fees for canines brought to the Quincy Animal Shelter.

The council voted Monday night to increase all behavioral fines to $20, $35, and $50 for first, second and third offenses respectively within a calendar year. Fourth and subsequent offenses also will be $50.

Previously, the law called for fines of $20, $25, $30 and $50 for unleashed dogs and $20, $25 and $50 for dogs who bark, bite, or defecate in public. In addition, owners of dogs who fell in the latter category used to receive a warning for a first offense before receiving a $20 fine the second time around.

Boarding fees were raised from $3 to $5.

Phyllis Berlucchi, the city's dog officer, said the increases bring the city's fines more in line with those of other communities. She said she only issues fines when she receives complaints from someone about a neighbor's unleashed dog running around in his or her property, constant barking, or a dog that has been known to bite or defecate in public.

"We have to remember, there are no bad dogs, only irresponsible dog owners," she said.

The council voted 7-1 to pass the increase. Councillor

Paul Harold voted in opposition, saying dog owners should still be given the courtesy of a warning for a first offense. Councillor Michael Cheney, who is recovering from surgery, was absent.

Berlucchi said dog owners need to monitor their dog's actions more closely and that a warning is not a strong enough response.

"It really bothered me that we had dogs that were biting and the first offense was a warning," she said.

Elizabeth Thomas Winner Of Disney Vacation Prize

Elizabeth Thomas, 10, a fifth grader at the Merrymount School, is the winner of the Disney World Family Vacation for Four Quincy Center promotion contest.

Elizabeth's name was selected during a drawing last Saturday in front of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association office, 1416 Hancock St.

Her name was drawn by Jeff Bertman of Rogers Jewelry, chairman of the QCBPA Promotions Committee, as several of the contestants looked on.

Some 269 youngsters submitted correct entries and were eligible to be selected. In all, more than 300 youngsters in 20 Quincy schools, kindergarten through Grade 8, participated in the contest.

Elizabeth said she is looking forward to going on the trip to Disney World with her father Marty, mother Cathi and sister Erin, 8, a Merrymount School third grader.

"I didn't really think we were going to win," said Elizabeth. "I was really surprised. We're excited about going."

Cathi Thomas said she is proud of her daughter.

"I was shocked," she said. "We can't believe she won. But she's a very industrious little kid."

Elizabeth participated in the contest with the assistance of her grandmother, Lorraine Yoerger. Although Mrs. Yoerger will not be going on the trip, Mrs. Thomas noted, "We'll do something special for her."

Elizabeth said she found the contest to be both fun and educational.

"I learned a lot about the architecture in Quincy," she said.

The contest, co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun and Fine Light Photography, featured photos showing architectural details of 16 Quincy Center buildings.

Contestants were invited to identify the buildings through the photos which appeared in The Sun for four weeks and on flyers distributed at the schools. The photos were taken by Mike Ryan of Fine Light Photography.

Correct Identities Of The 16 Sites On Page 14

The prize is a five day four night vacation to Disney World for two adults and two children.

It includes round-trip airline tickets from Boston to Orlando, Fla., and four-day passes. Hotel accommodations will be inside Disney World at either the Caribbean Beach, Port Orleans or Dixie Landings Resort. Hotel taxes are included.

There also will be unlimited admission to the theme parks.

10 New Police Officers Are Sworn In

Ten police officers were sworn in by City Clerk Joseph Shea during a ceremony last Friday in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The new officers, in the order they were selected from the Civil Service examination they took, are: Timothy G. Simmons, 25; Thomas P. Gaeta, 40; Stephen R. Elmes, 27; Ralph C. Radzevich, 49; Joseph J. Lencki, 22; Sean M. Biggins, 29; Frederick Stevenson, 27; Gregory A. Goyette, 27; James Greene, 25 and James M. McNeil, 28.

All of the men are Quincy residents except Biggins, who is from Weymouth. Police Chief Francis Mullen noted before the swearing-in ceremony that Goyette and McNeil are both sons of Quincy police lieutenants and Simmons is the son of a Boston lieutenant.

Mullen added that Goyette is a former U.S. Marshal who was trained for the Boston Municipal Police and will be able to start work in about 10 weeks after completing a Quincy field training officer program. The other nine men will not be on the streets until they complete about six months of academy training, he said.

Originally, 14 officers were slated to be sworn in, but four did not pass all of the required tests necessary to join the department. Physical and psychological examinations are among the tests that must be passed in order for someone to join.

At Friday's ceremony, Mullen, Mayor James Sheets and Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymonti, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee, praised the 10 new officers for the hard work they put into preparing for their new careers.

Mullen offered his congratulations and added these words of wisdom: "Public trust can exist only when police officers exercise their duties fairly and responsibly."

"This is a significant day, not only for these 10 men, but for the City of Quincy," said Raymonti, who also praised Mullen, who will retire in August, for his "40 dedicated years of public service."

Sheets said he is proud of the 10 officers.

"If one of my sons had chosen to be a police officer, I would be one of the proudest parents in this city and this country," said the mayor. "I think you're the greatest; I know you're going to do the job. Congratulations, and God bless you."

Quincy Personnel Director James Chiccinio said the 10 new officers brings the department's total up to 154. All 10 will earn the starting annual salary of $29,326.

Sheets and Mullen said six of the new officers will fill vacancies on the force left by retirees or deaths and will not impact the city's municipal budget because those positions already exist.

The other four positions will be partially reimbursed by the federal COPS Program until the men's third year on the force when the city will assume full responsibility, they added. Sheets said last week the city should be able to absorb the full amount in three years because more retirements are anticipated.

The COPS Program will pay for two-thirds of four of the salaries the first year and one-third the second year, according to Sheets. There must be 150 officers on the force before the city can take advantage of the program, he added.

Earlier last week, Sheets told The Quincy Sun that six of the new officers would be assigned regular patrolmen's duties while the rest would be assigned community police walking beats in specific neighborhoods. Both the mayor and the chief said Friday, however, it has not yet been decided who will receive the community police assignments.

Linking Two Schools

The Pollard School is gone, the victim of a suspicious fire and then a wrecking ball, but it lives on in the hearts of its former students.

One of these students is Jim Hardie who still lives on Southern Artery across the street from the site of the old Pollard.

Now he keeps watch on the construction progress of the new Clifford H. Marshall School as it takes shape just a few yards from where the Pollard once stood, the site now occupied by an apartment complex.

He would like to see a bonding between the old and the new schools in the form of a tribute at the Clifford Marshall School to the teachers who taught at the Pollard.

Ruth Abbiatti who died recently was an outstanding teacher and then principal at the Pollard and Hardie was one of her students from 1937 to 1940.

"I was wondering," he writes in a letter, "if anyone has thought of putting up a plaque in the new school when it opens, as a memorial to the teachers who taught there (Pollard) in the 1930s and 1940s.

"Some I can remember. They were Miss Abbiatti, Miss Litchfield, Miss Hofferty, Miss Duncan, Miss DiBartholomeo, and Mr. Morrison.

"I know you had an article about how Miss DiBartholomeo guided you towards the journalistic field.

"I think we owe them this much so that their names will not be forgotten. They gave us some good values to go by in our early lives. Could you speak to Mayor Sheets about this idea of a plaque in the new school?"

"I am a life-long resident of Quincy Point. I have two granddaughters going to the Daniel Webster School now who will go to the new school when it opens.

"We daily watch the construction of the new school going up across the street from us and I take some pictures every month of the construction progress."

A plaque in the Marshall School with the names of those Pollard school teachers inscribed on it sounds like a great idea. Former students will agree, I'm sure. I think Kippy Marshall would have, too.

Hopefully, Mayor Sheets and the School Committee will, too. It would be a nostalgic and appropriate link between the two schools.

HARDIE ALSO GOT to reminiscing about Quincy Point and the old days in his letter.

"GAWD--has Quincy Point changed in 40 years. Where have all the places gone? The three drugstores--Stone's, Sagamore and Campagna's, the Lincoln Theater and bowling alleys, Prime's and Max's hardware, the First National Market on Washington St.

"Jake's cobbler shop and Melville's market across from the Lincoln, Scott's market on Kittredge Ave., Jimmy Coreaty's little variety store at the corner of River St., Brownie and Sara's market at the end of Broadway.

"The Finnish bathhouse on Broadway, the old horseshoe courts against the cliffs behind 1000 Southern Artery, the Quincy Point branch of the Crane Library, the fish and chips store at the end of Germain

Durkin To Hold June Office Hours

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin has announced his office hours to be held in the second floor Conference Room of City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center, during the month of June.

The hours are: Tuesday,

June 3 from 6 to 7 p.m.; Tuesday, June 10 from 7 to 8 p.m.; Tuesday, June 17 from 6 to 7 p.m.; and Tuesday, June 24 from 5 to 6 p.m.

All Ward 5 residents are invited to meet with Durkin to discuss their concerns.

Ave., the Washington and Pollard Schools.

"Eddie's Diner and the Ace junkyard across the street where Roche Brothers is now located. The flooding of the meadow every winter for ice skating where 1001 Southern Artery now stands. And last but not least, Joe Hubla's pool room on Chubbuck St."

That should bring back fond memories for old Quincy Pointers.

Familiar places that have vanished one by one down through the years. Time marches on--too fast.

A LITTLE MOVEMENT on the political front.

Steve Hawko, who stepped down as president of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, has taken out his nomination papers to challenge Mike D'Amico for the Ward 4 city council seat.

Greg Hanley, who has run for the school committee, has papers out for city councillor at-large.

ATTY. GEORGE BURKE is awarding six more $1,000 scholarships this year to graduating Quincy and North Quincy High School seniors going to the University of Massachusetts, his alma mater.

This year's scholarships, named after friends of Burke and the two schools and their recipients:

QHS: Amer Osman, Guido Pettinelli Scholarship; Mark Glynn, Munroe MacLean Scholarship; Angela Hogrell, Martin Finnegan Scholarship.

NQHS: Cynthia Wong, Kenneth Rickson Scholarship; Diane Jordon, Richard Koch Scholarship; John Ferraro, Jr., Gerard Coletta Scholarship.

This is the fifth year Burke has awarded six $1,000 scholarships, bringing the total to date to $30,000.

HANK BRADLEY, Quincy Veterans' Services Director, is a candidate for American Legion National Executive Committeeman.

Bradley, past commander Morrisette Legion Post and state department commander, is now an alternate national executive committeeman.

Bradley is seen by many as a potential national commander. If so, he would be the second from Quincy, following John (Jake) Comer.

ALL IN THE FAMILY: Councillor Steve Durkin's brother, Kevin, 34, topped the ballot for school committee in the recent Marshfield town election. Brother Steve was a school committeeman here before being elected Ward 5 councillor.

THINKING OUT LOUD: Why is it that no matter how fast you're driving, there's always someone on your tail wanting to go faster. And when you look in the rear view mirror, it usually seems to be a young girl in a small car. Is that supposed to help make them look glamorous?

Twenty-one salutes have existed since at least the sixteenth century, but the number of guns fired evolved gradually and inconsistently from country to country.

Scenes From Yesterday

The Square, Houghs Neck, Quincy, Mass.

THIS IS A 1914 postcard view of the end of Sea Street in Houghs Neck. The picture was taken from what is now the parking lot of the Quincy Yacht Club. At this time, Arthur Dunham's store on the right was also the Post Office. The trolleys turned around for the return trip to Quincy Square at the foot of Sea Avenue on the right. The Great Hill school was later built on the site of Moore's Ballroom, but the school and all the other buildings in this view disappeared long ago.

READERS FORUM

Supports Marina Bay Senior Living Campus

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a business person living and working in Quincy I am concerned about job creation and the quality of life here. I believe that the Marina Bay Senior Living Campus will create many temporary and permanent jobs as well as improve the quality of life for seniors who live there and their family members who live nearby and want to visit them.

Quincy needs continued development to help employ the many people who live here and work in the building trades. Marina Bay has vast open spaces that long ago were cleared for development. As a former naval air station, it can hardly be considered pristine wetlands. Indeed, such concerns were settled long ago when the city originally approved the master plan for development in Marina Bay.

The senior living center will create many high-wage construction jobs and, after the center is built, it will support a broad range of service workers, from doctors and nurses to maintenance personnel. This is the ideal kind of residential development because it will have so little impact on its surroundings. Few of the seniors who live there will drive cars. All will contribute to the tax base. And by providing our local seniors with a place to live in dignity as they age, we will be helping to keep the city's families together.

The Marina Bay Senior Living Campus is an all-around win for Quincy's political leaders, its residents, workers and, above all, its seniors. Let's hope it is approved and developed without delay.

Olin Taylor 'A Remarkable Person'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thank you for the two copies of The Quincy Sun honoring Mr. Olin Taylor as the Citizen of the Year.

Mr. "Tex Taylor" is what we called him in our department. He was my supervisor when I was employed by Polaroid.

He was and still is a remarkable person, willing to help all, especially the elderly. I remember him quite fondly; he hired me when I was 42 years old. May God keep him in good health in his remaining years.

My niece and sister, who live in Quincy, happened to see the award on Quincy cable, and they called me.

I wish you and all your employees very good and profitable years. The pictures were beautiful and the printing was great, and I read every line. (Quite an accomplishment for me.) I am 84 years old.

Throughout the summer months The Family Re-

Burger Mexicana

With the big weekend upon us, it won't matter if it rains or not, we're cooking out no matter what! If you're tired of the same old hamburgers and enjoy eating Mexican food, here is a great recipe I found for a grilled Mexican burger..

Burger Mexicana

1 pound lean ground beef or turkey
1 teaspoon chili powder or ground cumin

1/2 teaspoon garlic powder salt and pepper to taste

1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

1/2 cup salsa (use half for mixture)

1/4 cup crushed tortilla chips

1/4 cup scallions

tomato slices and lettuce

Mix the meat, 3/4 cup of the shredded cheese, 1/4 cup of the salsa, chips, onions, cumin or chili powder and garlic powder.

Blend and shape into four large patties. Grill or broil them. Place them on a favorite bun with remaining salsa and sprinkle with the remaining cheese.

Serve with sliced tomato and lettuce (optional).

(Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing many of the recipes that have been printed in The Quincy Sun.)

The book is available at the Fruit Basket (near Star Market), Previte's Market on Sumner St., Nanci's Barbershop, Elm St., Braintree, and Harvest Moon Restaurant, Front St., Scituate..

Squantum Gardens Plan Supported

The city's plans to rent the Navy's Squantum Gardens complex to senior citizens received mostly support at a City Council public hearing Monday night.

Ten people spoke in favor of the plan and about 40 signed in support. Only three residents voiced opposition, with no one signing against it, although state Sen. Michael Morrissey again voiced some of his own concerns.

Support for the project came from such well-known residents as John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging and Linda Stice, executive director of the Mayor's Commission on the Family.

"This is one of the most important services a grateful city provides to its elderly," Noonan said of the plan, which calls for 112 units of senior housing on 27 acres. The Council on Aging put the plan together with Mayor James Sheets.

The plan also calls for a separate residential building, occupied by the Commission on the Family, that will have six transitional-housing units for temporarily homeless families. Stice said there are a number of children in Quincy who have had to leave their schools when their families temporarily became homeless, since state law requires parents in that situation to accept the first available shelter in any given community.

"We must keep them in the Quincy Public Schools until we find permanent housing," said Stice.

A couple of other residents, including John McCarthy of 36 Andrews Rd., supported the plan but suggested some amendments. McCarthy, who has an 18-year-old retarded son, suggested that the mentally and physically disabled also should have a place in the Squantum Gardens plan.

The main concern of the handful of opponents, including Jim Stamos of 22 Sonoma Rd., seemed to be that not enough community input has been allowed.

"I am very concerned about the process that basically wasn't there," said Stamos, who added that he supports the concept of senior housing in general.

Morrissey also said there have not been enough public hearings held and raised concerns about the financial details of the plan. But although the senator has said the program will result in a small deficit for the city, other officials maintain it will end up with a minimal profit.

"I'm just very confident that what we're doing is right," said Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymond, chairman of the council's Senior Citizens Committee.

Six ward meetings on the plan were held prior to Monday night's hearing. Ward 6 Councilor Bruce Ayers, whose ward includes Squantum Gardens, has scheduled another for June 4 at 7:30 p.m. at Beechwood on the Bay and said a subsequent meeting might also be held.

The City Council approved two weeks ago an interim lease between the city and Navy that will allow senior citizens to begin moving to Squantum Gardens this fall. If the Navy officially approves the lease, the city will have temporary control over the property located on East Squantum Street while the mayor and others work toward a permanent transfer of the property to the city.

The Navy is giving up the Squantum Gardens site as part of the military's base closure program that is occurring throughout the country.

HEATBURN: HIDDEN HAZARDS

Antacids tablets are almost a badge of honor in our society. After all, heartburn and the stress that often ushers it in go with carrying important responsibilities and being a "Type A" personality. However, researchers are now finding that the chronic use of antacid medications may also involve a serious health hazard. The problem is that antacids do their job too well—they relieve the pain of heartburn, at least temporarily. For someone who experiences heartburn frequently over a period of time, simply masking the pain without addressing the cause allows the lining of the esophagus to sustain repeated attacks by stomach acid. The result may be serious damage to the esophagus, which, in turn, can make one susceptible to even more serious health problems, including cancer.

P.S. Anyone who has several bouts of heartburn a week or whose symptoms include wheezing or difficulty swallowing should see a doctor.
